SOME STARLING TIPS.

We have carefully thought up the following suggestions for changing the parking regulations for starlings, and respectfully submit them to the Board of Commissioners:

Put signs in the branches of all Avenue trees: "Roosting limit one hour between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m."

Rig a phonograph on the Municipal Building roof and have it play "Follow the Swallow Back Home." The starlings will at once start for Miami.

Cut down all the trees in the city. This will compel the starlings to move to Alexandria.

Let the starlings alone! Swinging on their frozen perches through the cold, dark nights, pluckily yielding neither to sleet nor snow nor wintry blast, what the heck harm are they doing? And moreover, furnish 'em with warm overcoats and mittens. Is this a Christian Nation, or what?

"Some perish where the bounding wave
Rolls thund'ring on the stormy deep,
All dark and cold their ocean grave,
Nor tempest more shall wake their sleep."

God's pure fresh air is still being forced into the torpedo room of the S-4, where by but a slim chance still live some of the ill-fated crew, gasping in their agony, too weak to make known their presence, but fighting on. It is encouraging to learn that the service which has never quit yet decides not to quit now.

MRS. GRAYSON OFF IN OVERSEAS PLANE FOR HARBOR GRACE

CAPE COD OBSERVER SIGHTS HER PASSING

ENGLAND IS THE GOAL OF FOUR IN AMPHIBIAN

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The French Cable Telegraph Co.'s station at Cape Cod, Mass., reported that Mrs. Francis Wilson Grayson's amphibian plane Dawn flew over that point about 7:25 o'clock tonight.

Before taking off from Roosevelt Field for Harbor Grace, N. F., it was announced that the plane probably would follow a course that would take it between Worcester and Boston. Lieut Oskar Omdal, the pilot, said that he would follow a compass course. The report of the plan's passing over Orleans, Cape Cod, site of the French Cable Telegraph Co.'s relay station, which sent the report, puts the fliers about 70 miles to eastward of their announced course.

Portland, Me., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—While a report was in circulation late tonight that an airplane had been heard out over the water in the vicinity of Old Orchard about 10 o'clock, efforts to establish such as a fact failed. The United States Naval Radio Station at Cape Elizabeth stated at 11:40 o'clock that its attempt to locate the Dawn, amphibian plane of Mrs. Grayson, had proved futile

The Coast Guard Station at Biddeford Pool, an exposed point extending out into the ocean, about 2 miles west of Old Orchard Beach, reported that no aircraft had passed in that section tonight, at least, near enough to have been heard.

The Dawn Hops Off.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Dec. 23 (A.P.) Heading into the north on the first leg of what she hopes will be a transatlantic flight to Croydon, England, Mrs Frances Wilson Grayson hopped off a few minutes after 5 o'clock today for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

It was twilight when her huge amphibian plane Dawn was trundled to the foot of the mound, where mechanics warmed up her motors, but dark-

8 KILLED, 7 INJURED IN 3 GRADE CRASHES

Two Virginia Boys Lose Lives, Third Dying; New Jersey Girls Are Victims.

Columbus, O., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Three men and one woman were instantly killed when their automobile was wrecked by a Big Four pasenger train at Monta Rose crossing near here today. All were from Columbus.

Two of the victims were identified as Joe Serbg and Angel Fonda.

Glassboro, N. J., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Two school girls were killed and six injured, two critically, when a Pennsylvania Railroad train struck their automobile today at a grade crossing near here Those killed were Estella Knorr, 13 and Naomi Robinson, both of Monroeville. The brakeman on the train Amos Nobloch, was the father of one of the injured girls.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 23.—Clarence Clarke, 14, and Robert Olinger, 14, were killed and Earl Clarke, 16, is dying from injuries received when their automobile was struck by a passenger train at Inlet Crossing, in Culpeper County, this afternoon.

All three boys were students at Brandy High School and were on their way home for the Christmas holidays The train demolished the car and hurled the bodies through the air. The Clarke boys were sons of Melville Clarke of Elwood, and Olinger was a son of William Olinger, who lives near Brandy.

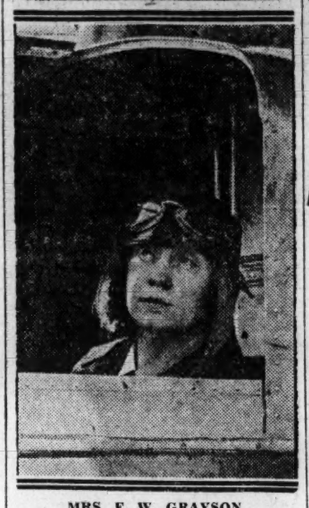

New Chevrolet Line Out on First of Year

Detroit, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The Chevrolet division of the General Motors Corporation, chief competitor of the Ford Motor Co., will bring out a "complete" new line of cars on January 1 it was announced today by W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Co.

Production of the new model, Mr. Knudsen said, has been under way in the company's various assembly plants since December 12.

No details of what changes have been made nor of prices of the various body styles, will be available, the announcement stated, until January 3.

AIR BOMBS LAY BRIDGE, 1,000 FEET LONG, IN RUINS

GUNS TO FIRE ON DEBRIS

Albemarle, N. C., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Thousands of pounds of TNT hurled by speeding airplanes a mile and more above the earth today reduced the Swift Island Bridge over the Pedee River to a twisted mass of concrete and steel as army aviators loosened their heaviest salvos in War Department tests being conducted here.

The 1,000-foot modern concrete highway structure, rendered useless by a power development and turned over by the State for the Government wartime tests, was struck squarely in the center by eight high explosive projectiles today, four of which were scored by Lieut. William K. Andrews, of Roanoke, Va.

Two bridge spans 80 feet long, and their supporting pillars, were blown up and another span was rendered impassable. Seventy bombs rained on and around the bridge transformed the peaceful countryside into a veritable no man's land as the projectiles blasted huge craters into the river banks and sent showers of mud and water hundreds of feet into the air.

The planes, flying in war formations of three each, swooped out of the East at altitudes from 6,000 to 8,000 feet, circled the structure to align their sites and then streaked for their base at Fort Bragg after releasing their bombs to avoid imaginary antiaircraft fire.

Assistant Secretary of War Davison and his subordinates from Langley Field, Washington and Pope Field, Fort Bragg, agreed that the destruction of the $192,000 structure afforded

Obregon Must Miss Lincoln Celebration

Mexico City, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Gen. Alvaro Obregon will not be able to accept the invitation extended to him to speak at the Lincoln birth celebration at Springfield, Ill. He explained that acceptance was impossible because the Mexican law prohibits a presidential candidate from leaving the country in the year preceding the elections.

New Altitude Mark Set by Italian Flier

Turin, Italy, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Renato Donati has broken the world's altitude record by flying to a height of 11,827 meters (38,792 feet), officials who controlled his flight announced today.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY DECIDES TO RETAIN HEAD OFFICES HERE

BUILDING TO GIVE WAY TO U. S. MALL GROUPS

Washington Merchants Win in Fight Against Other Cities. Harrison's Views.

The Southern Railway Co., which has had its headquarters in Washington for more than 41 years, will have to select a new site for its central office building within the next few months.

The House of Representatives already has passed the Elliott bill, authorizing the Federal Government to purchase the railway company's headquarters building at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and the Senate is expected to do likewise immediately after the Christmas recess.

Although a number of cities are eager to get the Southern's headquarters, it has been learned on good authority that the company plans to continue its headquarters here in Washington.

Approximately 2,200 men and women are employed by the company in Washington, and the pay roll exceeds $4,000,000 a year.

Among the cities which have been trying to get the headquarters are Atlanta, Ga.; Richmond, Va.; Alexandria, Va., and Charlotte, N. C. At least two of these have made very attractive offers to the company.

Provides $25,000,000 Fund.

The Elliott bill, heretofore mentioned, authorizes an appropriation of $25,000,000 for purchase of privately-owned property in the triangle which is to be the site of a great array of Federal office buildings. Passage of the bill was blocked at the last Congress by the filibuster that broke out in the Senate in the closing days of the session.

The bill last year specifically excluded the Southern Railway Building from the property that was to be acquired, because at that time it was believed that the building would eventually be needed by the District government rather than the Federal Government.

When it was introduced at this session, however, the bill specifically provided for purchase of the building by the Federal Government.

The House passed the bill with virtually no opposition, and its passage in the Senate is expected to be just as speedy.

Had it not been for the death of Senator Andrieus A. Jones, of New Mexico, the Senate probably would have passed the bill before it started its Christmas recess. On that day, however, it decided to do no business out of respect to Senator Jones

Boy, Struck by Truck While Coasting, Dies

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 23.—Billy Mason, 8, son of Eli Mason, barber, of Webster Springs, died last evening in a Richwood hospital as the result of a coasting accident. He suffered a fractured skull Wednesday when he and a brother, Glenn, 6, were struck by an automobile as they coasted down the Main street hill at Webster Springs. Glenn was injured, but not seriously.

M'CARL ACCOUNTING ASSAILED BY DAWES AS NEEDING REFORM

Charges Official Hesitates to Throw the Antiquated Methods Aside.

(Associated Press.)

Turning aside momentarily from his campaign for a change of the Senate rules, Vice President Dawes yesterday trained his guns on Comptroller General McCarl.

In a review of a book on "The National Budget System" by W. F. Willoughby, director of the Institute of Government Research, Mr. Dawes said reform in governmental bookkeeping was contemplated by the budget act of 1921, but that one was little encouraged to believe that this reform "is at last receiving some attention from the Comptroller General."

The Vice President, who was the first director of the budget, said that "to properly carry on a business one must know it and to know it one must have the proper accounting."

Methods Still Decentralized.

"The bookkeeping methods of the different departments still are decentralized," he said, "and in their present form furnish little aid to the executive or to his agent, the director of the budget, in determining the relative operating efficiency and cost of the departments. They operate also to keep Congress uninformed. The present system of governmental bookkeeping would not be tolerated for a day in a properly conducted private business enterprise.

"The whole system could be properly changed and put in working form within a short time and should have been put in this form concurrently with the organization of the Bureau of the Budget.

Should Be Model for World.

"With the present powers in the hands of the Comptroller General, he could inaugurate a reform in governmental bookkeeping of the United States which would at once make it a model for the world. The changes thus far have been minor and comparatively inconsequential.

"The reform in governmental accounting is certain to come. It may be that the present occupant will continue in his hesitation to undertake it properly, which will be a great misfortune, but it is inconceivable that successors in the office will fail to grasp this great opportunity for governmental service. Until it is done all business by the Government will be conducted under a serious handicap."

CARRIER IS ROBBED OF $7,000 IN MAIL

Bandits Escape After Crippling His Auto; Two Suspects Held.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—G. W. Smith, mail carrier on a star route out of Boykins, Va., through several small towns to Woodland, N. C., was held up this morning by two unidentified men and robbed of registered mail valued at about $7,000, according to a report received here this afternoon.

Two suspects, roughly answering the description which Smith gave of the robbers, were arrested and are being held at Rich Square, N. C.

One of the money packages was said to contain $2,000 consigned to the Bank of Severn, and the other, which was addressed to the Bank of Woodland, was believed to contain about $5,000.

Smith, according to reports received here, was held up by two men who met him in an automobile which bore no license tag. After taking the money they cut the wires on his machine in such manner that it would not operate and then drove away.

County officers and postoffice inspectors from Norfolk are making an investigation.

Boy Tears Up $6,000 Worth of Securities

East Orange, N. J., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A 10-year-old boy, who tore $6,000 worth of securities to shreds, hiding away a $1,000 bond which "looked like money" was free today, and unspanked, only because of the Christmas season, his parents and police said.

The boy went visiting last night with his parents at the home of Mrs. Antonio Scracco, an aunt. He entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sylvia, where he found the stocks and bonds in a chandelier wall cup.

When Mrs. Sylvia discovered the torn bits and found the $1,000 bond missing, she ran to the Scracco apartment and told of her loss. Detectives were called and a confession wrung from the boy, who showed where the $1,000 bond was hidden behind a dresser.

Divers Tunnel Under S-4, Pass Line Beneath Craft; Work Halted By Gales

Salvage Operations Pushed Rapidly, Officers Making the Most of a Fair Day—Air Supply to Torpedo Room of Sunken Submarine Kept Up. Vessel Is Badly Smashed.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Department last night was informed that divers had completed a tunnel beneath the sunken submarine S-4 and had passed a line beneath the craft.

The completed tunnel was described in the official message from Provincetown as being 19 feet back of the bow. The message added that work was proceeding on another tunnel 46 feet behind the bow, about the center of the torpedo room.

With all hope gone that life exists aboard the sunken submarine, the rescue fleet continued its efforts today to raise the ill-fated craft from its grave 100 feet below the surface of the sea.

The Navy will not discontinue its attempts to raise the submersible "until forced to do so," Admiral Frank H. Brumby, in command of the rescue fleet, declared.

"It must be remembered," Admiral Brumby said, "that off Block Island in December, 1925, it was necessary because of weather conditions to cease operations on the S-51 on December 6. These operations were resumed in the spring of 1926 when weather conditions permitted them. We hope to have the diving work about the submarine more advanced than it is now, but in diving operations you are doomed to many disappointments."

Joseph Eiben, one of the divers who went down late today, replaced the air hose which had been connected with the torpedo compartment.

The air indicator on the mine sweeper Falcon, flagship of the rescue fleet, had shown that the tube was in danger of collapse. Although officers of the rescue fleet had given up hope that the six men in the torpedo compartment were living, pumping of air into the room was continued today. The latest tests of the air returned to the Falcon

GIRLS USED AS SCREEN IN HOLDUP; 9 MEN SHOT

CHILDREN SAVE MONEY

Cisco, Tex., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Leaving a casualty list of eight wounded and one dead, after a raid on the First National Bank of Cisco, four robbers escaped today using two children as a screen from bullets of their pursuers and were sought by 1,000 men in the nearby countryside tonight.

Led by a man attired in Santa Claus costume, the men obtained several thousand dollars when their work was interrupted by shots fired by officers. There were five men in the raiding band of robbers, but one, Louis Davis, was badly wounded and was captured.

Chief of Police G. E. Bedford received injuries from which he died tonight. Several persons were shot by stray bullets during the hail of shots.

The fugitives forced two small children to accompany them for a short distance while making their escape, thus preventing officers from firing at them for fear of wounding the children.

Rumors of mob violence following the death of Chief of Police Bedford, caused the removal from the city of Davis.

A large crowd gathered about the hospital in which Davis was under guard and, to forestall possible violence, he was removed to Eastland in an ambulance.

Laverne Comer, 12, and Emma May Robinson, 10, were the children forced

Mitchel Field Fire Endangers Buildings

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Burning of an obsolete warehouse used as a gymnasium and boxing arena by the soldiers at this Army air field threatened to destroy the whole cantonment today, but the fire was prevented from spreading to any serious extent.

The warehouse, a barnlike structure, was at the opposite end of the field from the hangars where the Army planes are berthed.

The origin of the fire was not determined. It burst suddenly from the old structure and the wind carried a rain of sparks and firebrands to the roofs of the closely packed wooden barracks nearby.

Several soldier firefighters were slightly burned.

ARMY AND NAVY HELD ADEQUATE BY COOLIDGE

In Better Condition Than Ever Before in Peace Times, President's View.

FUNDS LIBERAL, HE ADDS

(Associated Press.)

President Coolidge feels that the Army and Navy are in better condition than they have been at any other time during peace.

It also was stated at the White House yesterday that the President believes Congress always has been liberal in its appropriations to both branches of service and that the recent budget estimates which bore his approval have been liberal.

The estimates for replacing and maintaining the Army and Navy, it was pointed out, have exceeded by $100,000,000 those for three or four years ago.

The President was represented as being somewhat at a loss to understand why there is always considerable newspaper comment at this time of the year representing both the Army and Navy in a deplorable condition. He has an idea that these newspaper stories are a left-over from the days when it was hard to get appropriations from Congress. With the responsibility for estimates now placed in a budget bureau over which the President has supervision he feels that this situation no longer obtains.

In the opinion of Mr. Coolidge, the American public may feel entirely reassured that its Army and Navy are in as good condition as they need to be. The President understands, of course, it was said, that some people always would like to see the Army and Navy expanded, but he feels that no one need have any concern.

He considers that the men charged with the supervision of the national defenses will expend the $800,000,000 or more that is entrusted to them in a wise fashion.

The President believes that few people understand how much money it costs to maintain the national defenses. One item was pointed out at the White House yesterday to illustrate the heavy expense under which the Army and Navy operate—a freight bill of $2,000,000 for moving ammunition into the eastern storage depots in one year. Mr. Coolidge feels, also, that this freight cost demonstrates the ammunition supplies are not dwindling.

KILLINGS TO COLLECT REWARD, REPORTED

Mexicans Victims of Texans After Offer for "Dead" Bank Robbers, It Is Said.

Midland, Tex., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Murder charges were filed tonight against C. C. Baze and Lee Smith, peace officers, alleged to have slain two Mexicans they said they believed were about to rob a bank at Stanton, Tex., today.

Victor Ramos, wounded by the officers, testified he and his two companions, who were slain, had been "planted" in front of the bank.

There is a standing reward of $5,000 for dead bank robbers in Texas.

Hilario Nunez and Norberto Diaz were the men slain.

The wounded Mexican said he and his companions met the officers near Stanton, and were promised employment by them.

The officers told the men to meet them "close to the bank," in Stanton, said Ramos. The three did as they were instructed and a few minutes later the two men came back, Ramos said, and opened fire. Two of the Mexicans fell dead and Ramos suffered four flesh wounds and said he was struck on the head with a pistol.

KIDNAPER CONFUSED WHEN 'ACCOMPLICE,' IN JAIL, IS CLEARED

KNOWS THE CRAMER HELD, HE CONFESSES

Californian, in Custody Since August, Was Named by Youth as Slayer.

SPEEDY TRIAL PLANNED BY LOS ANGELES COURT

Youth, Captured in Oregon, May Be Rushed Back in an Airplane.

Pendleton, Oreg., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Confronted with the fact that Andrew Cramer, the man he named as the slayer of Marian Parker in Los Angeles, had been in jail since last August, William Edward Hickman today became tangled in his story that he was innocent of the actual killing.

Hickman declared the man associated with him in the kidnaping of the Parker girl probably had assumed the name of Cramer, but when questioned more closely, admitted he knew the Cramer in jail at Los Angeles.

How his alleged partner in the kidnaping could have masqueraded under the name of a man he knew, was not cleared up by the 19-year-old youth, who has admitted everything but the slaying and dismemberment of the child's body.

Hickman lost none of his composure when told of the developments at Los Angeles, which officers there declared, wrecked his story that he was not guilty of the killing.

"That's Strange," He Says.

He laughed when informed that Cramer said, "I don't know why he picks on me," and proved his innocence or complicity in the kidnaping by the fact that he had been safely in jail since last summer.

"That is strange," Hickman said. "It can't be."

"Perhaps the man took the name of Cramer just to get me in bad," Hickman said, as an afterthought.

Then later, when pressed as to whether he knew the prisoner at Los Angeles, Hickman said:

"Yes, I know Cramer."

Hickman glibly related that his partner in the kidnaping whom he knew as Cramer had been in trouble before, and added:

"He said he had been in a kidnaping in Denver, and knew how to do it. I fell in with his plan because I wanted the money."

Hickman said that if the woman he knew as June Dunning were located she might clear up the identity of the mysterious Cramer. June Dunning was named by Hickman in his confession yesterday as the companion of Cramer.

Halts at Details of Killing.

The youth did not reveal the nature of his acquaintance with the Cramer in jail at Los Angeles. Prior to last August when Cramer was placed in jail, Hickman said he had been in Kansas City and Chicago.

So far Hickman has undergone no police grilling in an effort to break down his ready story, which includes all the details of the kidnaping of the Parker child, the collection of ransom and the disposal of the dismembered body, but comes to a halt as to details of the slaying.

His confession obtained after his arrest yesterday and brief questioning today by newspaper men constituted the only statements obtained.

When officers from Los Angeles subject him to a thorough grilling and check inconsistencies in his story, authorities here believe Hickman may "come across."

Looks Tired After Long Sleep.

Hickman looked tired this morning despite his long sleep, and his eyes were bloodshot.

Hickman's guards were frightened in the early morning hours when one of them reported that he had watched the prisoner for two solid hours without observing a movement or even hearing a breath. Fearing he might possibly have taken some concealed drug, they roused him enough to determine he was alive.

They then combed through his mass of hair to make sure that he had secreted no drugs there.

"Do you think I will get as much publicity as Leopold and Loeb?" he was quoted as having asked his captors. He was represented as having been boastful of escaping the police machinery of the big cities, and of having thought it unusual that "small town" officers affected his capture, but ascribed it to the "will of God."

Would Conduct Own Defense.

"Wonder if I couldn't pretend that I was crazy?" he remarked to one of his guards.

"How does a fellow act when he is crazy?" he asked. Later in the conversation he declared he wanted to conduct his own case when he goes on trial.

"Remus acted as his own lawyer and

President to Press Golden Button at 6:05 o'Clock in Sherman Square After Concert by Marine Band and Colored Choristers.

The eve of the birthday anniversary of the Founder of Christianity will be celebrated in the Capital tonight by the lighting of a living tree and a burst of song, radiating as from a fountainhead to all parts of the Nation.

The national Christmas ceremonies will be held at 6 o'clock around the living tree in Sherman square south of the Treasury. At 6:05 o'clock President Coolidge will press the gold button which will turn on the 500 multicolored lights of the tree, reflecting in dazzling radiance against the 2,000 jewels which will adorn it. Simultaneously a bright flare will illuminate the sky, symbolical of the star which appeared at the birth of Christ, and a group of Boy Scouts will sound a bugle call announcing its appearance.

This will be the signal for church bells and chimes throughout the city to join in the clarion portending the significance of the hour.

Following the lighting of the tree, colored choristers assembled at the tree will sing Christmas carols. The program will close at 6:12 o'clock.

Beginning at 5:30 o'clock, the Marine Band will give a concert preliminary to the formal exercises. The President, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, will arrive at the tree at 5:55 o'clock, attended by a guard of honor of Boy Scouts. Immediately the "Cantique de Noel" will be played as a cornet solo by Second Leader Arthur Whitcomb, of the band.

At 6 o'clock Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of Maryland, chairman of the national committee, will introduce the President. All arrangements for the celebration will be completed today under the supervision of the local executive committee, of which Miss Sibyl Baker, director of the Community Center Department, is chairman, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, officer in charge of Public Buildings and Public Parks for the District, is vice chairman. Cabinet members, other high Government officials and District officials are expected to attend the celebration.

At 10:30 o'clock tonight a large crowd will gather around the tree for the national Christmas carol singing, which will be broadcast over the entire Nation by a hook-up arranged by the National Broadcasting Co. and in which

EXTENDED QUESTIONING IRKS DEFENSE COUNSEL

Examination Still in Progress When Court Takes Recess for Holidays.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

The investigation of the charge that Edward J. Kidwell, jr., talkative juror in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial, had been intimidated by the district attorney's office during the contempt trial of Harry F. Sinclair and five other respondents, adjourned yesterday for the Christmas holidays at the greatest point of confusion which has yet been reached.

Evidence almost impossible to follow or reconcile has been frequent during the three days that Kidwell has been examined with respect to the charge that he was made to sign false affidavits identifying two of the Burns operatives as being men that approached and spoke to him, but the extreme was reached just prior to adjournment. At that time Kidwell, Justice Siddons, presiding over the trial, and attorneys on both sides all had a different idea of what the witness had been talking about just previously. The divergent opinions had not been reconciled when the courtroom was cleared of all legal argument for ten days.

Lawyers Clash in Court.

The strain of the prolonged questioning to which Kidwell had been subjected showed signs of having frayed the nerves of all the participants yesterday. James J. O'Leary, assistant district attorney, and George P. Hoover, of counsel for Sinclair, who have been at odds on many occasions, indulged in frequent heated interchanges yesterday. Mr. Hoover early in the day insisted that the Government prosecutor was merely "stalling" and that for two days "he had evaded the charge brought against him."

Only a few minutes later Charles A. Douglas, of counsel for the Burns respondents, informed the court that in his opinion the Government was deliberately prolonging the examination of Kidwell either to make sure that he would still be on direct examination after the holiday recess or to make certain that he would not be cross-examined until that interval had elapsed.

Justice Siddons, although betraying at times impatience at the lack of progress that was being made, said that it was still his opinion that Mr. O'Leary had but one object and that was a sincere effort to clear up the charges that had been made, and that he would not limit the examination except where it was repetitious.

Brandenburg Files Objection.

Later in the day E. C. Brandenburg, of counsel for Sheldon Clark, showed his irritation.

"Why don't you direct his attention to what you want to know?" he asked Mr. O'Leary. "The way you're doing isn't fair."

When Justice Siddons rebuked him for the interruption, Mr. Brandenburg said that he wished to protest to the court and register an objection against the examination as it was being conducted on the ground that it was a "perfect outrage."

The examination of Kidwell, on his fourth day on the stand, was once more of the minute character which had been used on the two previous days. He was questioned at length with regard to the circumstances under which he discussed certain phases of the case with his father after he had been enjoined by the court not to talk with any one about the issue. During this questioning, Kidwell developed his belief that his father and mother had been mistreated because they had been summoned from the courtroom to the district attorney's office in order that they might be questioned during the recess of court.

More Photographs Presented.

Mr. O'Leary later carried Kidwell back over trips which had been made to Anacostia and to the soft drink establishmnet in Four and a Half street southwest, asking them to relate everything that was done or said on those occasions. Another s. of photographs, depicting scenes in the vicinity of the Myrtle House, Anacostia, was introduced during this testimony.

Just before the noon recess and during the rest of the time that the court met, Kidwell was questioned about his various trips to the office of the district attorney. None of the witness' replies indicated that he had been subjected to harsh or unusual treatment or that he had been examined at length on any of those visits.

The examination finally came down to the last visit which was made on the Tuesday, the day that Kidwell first took the stand. It was at that time Kidwell testified previously that he had disavowed the two second paragraphs in the affidavits dealing with O'Reilly and Stewart, two of the Burns operatives. Kidwell's denial of the identification of the two men was not dealt with yesterday.

Details Talk With O'Leary.

According to Kidwell, Mr. O'Leary at that time said that he was going to put Kidwell "at bat" and wanted "me to stick by you."

"Above all don't lose your nerve," Kidwell testified Mr. O'Leary said, "I am depending on you."

The witness also testified that Mr. O'Leary said:

"Listen to the questions and don't try to help me. State what you know positively but do not state what you do not know positively."

Kidwell was asked if he had not been told by Mr. O'Leary:

"All the Government wants is the truth, to hell with who it hurts," but he could not recall any such statement.

Kidwell also told the court that on another occasion the assistant district attorney told him:

"These high-priced lawyers are not going to beat me, I am going to beat them and I want you to assist me. I am going to question you as sharply as I do Akers bu don't get worried."

Disagree on Conference.

The witness testified that on one occasion when he was in a room in the district attorney's office with McMullin, the Burns operative who revealed the surveillance of the Fall Sinclair jury, that the latter said that if Kidwell could identify O'Reilly the case against King and Akers would be all over and Kidwell would not be in trouble Mr. O'Leary was not present, Kidwell said.

The closing testimony and the part that caused such decided confusion was that which dealt with the final conference between Kidwell and Mr O'Leary on the morning that the former was to take the stand. S. McComas Hawkens, attorney for Kidwell, was present, he testified, during part of this conference, but left before it was concluded In endeavoring to distinguish between the time when Mr. Hawkens was and was not there, a point was reached when all those that took part in the discussion disagreed.

The court's injunction at adjournment was that he hoped the acerbity which had been present on both sides would be absent after the holidays.

WANTED TO BRING BACK A LOAD OF furniture from New York City, Phila., Wilmington, Del.; Baltimore to Wash Smith's Transfer & Storage, 1313 U st.; N. 3343.

10,052 Words Written On Postcard by Man

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 23.—What is held to be the world's record in writing, legibly, the smallest hand, is claimed by Conrad Kemper, a young German artist, who had written the complete story of Lindbergh's flight to France, a total of 10,052 words, on one postcard of ordinary size.

The lines—perfectly straight—are so fine that at first glance the card looks as though it had only very fine, slightly wavy lines upon it. Examined under a glass, however, it is perfectly legible and written in a clear, beautiful hand.

Kemper claims that the nearest approach to this record, made by a German artist, was only a little more than 7,000 words. The Lindbergh card was done with a hard pencil.

COURT HOLDS HARRISON AS SLAYER OF SHIRLEY

TWO OTHERS UNDER BOND

Clarence J. Harrison, former employe of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., who was arrested in Baltimore December 12 on a warrant charging him with the murder on September 25 of Ernest P. Shirley, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., yesterday was held without bail in Martinsburg, W. Va., for action of the Jefferson County grand jury.

Harrison left Washington for Baltimore December 11. He and his wife had maintained a light-housekeeping apartment at 309 C street northwest.

Shirley's body was found the Monday after the alleged killing at the base of a 70-foot trestle of a Norfolk & Western bridge in Washington County, and authorities concluded he had met with an accident, falling from the bridge.

Two months afterward, not satisfied with the corner's verdict, relatives of the dead man, residing near Shepherdstown, secured private investigators and it was discovered that Shirley's body had been carried by one or more men from the home of Charles Myers, on th outskirts of the town.

At the hearing this afternoon before Justices Albert T Moler and G. O. Wille , two daughters of Myers, Louise and Mary, positively declared that Harrison struck Shirley a blow upon the head in a drunken row, and that Charles Wiltshire and Frank Hardy, two Jefferson County youths, involved in the melee, assisted Harrison to transport the body in Harrison's car to the point where it was found later.

Wiltshire and Hardy were released in $1,000 bond each, being held as accessorie after the fact. The defense offered no testimony.

HEALTH SEALS SALES BRING $32,000 TOTAL

Students in District Dispose of Large Numbers; Some Reports Awaited.

With its seasonal campaign for the sale of health seals drawing to a close the Washington Tuberculosis Association announced last night that more than 3,200,000 of the Christmas package stamps have been sold, representing $32,000, to continue the association's war against the "white plague."

Large sales of the stamps were reported by students attending district institutions of learning, Mount Vernon Seminary, Miss Madeira's School, the National Cathedral School and St. Alban's students handling more than 74,000 of the stamps. Scores of individuals have not yet reported the amount of their sales, as well as a number of organizations which volunteered their services.

Officers of the Tuberculosis Association request those who have made their purchases to report as soon as possible, so that the national organization may be informed of the result of the sale. The public was thanked for the support given the campaign.

New German Envoy Abhors Pompousness

Berlin, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Germany's new Ambassador to the United States, Dr. Friedrich von Prittwitz-Gaffron, anxiously hopes that he will never be a "pompous ambassador." He told the American Club this today at a luncheon held in his honor.

Referring to the informality of the occasion he said that he considered it a good omen to make his first speech in English under such auspices, as he abhored pompousness. He then paid a feeling tribute to the victims of the S-4 disaster and asked the cooperation of the club's members in promoting German-American friendship.

HESSE ORDERS BAN ON CHRISTMAS EVE GLEE AT MIDNIGHT

POLICE WILL ENFORCE SUNDAY CLOSING LAW

New Year's Eve Celebrations Will Also Be Curtailed, Superintendent Says.

Celebration of Christmas Eve tonight and New Year's Eve a week from tonight, so far as it pertains to night clubs, may be cut dramatically short for Washingtonians by the Metropolitan Police Department.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police, said last night that the law requiring all places of amusement, theaters and dance halls to close at midnight Saturday night "will be enforced on the eves of Christmas and New Year's." The chief had gained confidence in his movement for closing night clubs and theaters through conviction of a man during the week on charges that he had continued a dance through Saturday night into the early hours of Sunday morning.

Will Enforce Regulations.

Heretofore on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve, observance of the festivities in night clubs and hotels has proceeded without molestation. This yuletide, however, will see a different state of affairs prevailing if Maj. Hesse carries out his intention announced yesterday of enforcing this Sunday-closing regulation.

Under the regulation, however, police are not bound to interfere with the patrons of the night clubs. They are, however, ordered to proceed against owners or proprietors of places of amusement which remain open after midnight on Saturday night. Chief Hesse would not say yesterday just what procedure would be followed in enforcing the regulation. He did say, however, that where the owners or proprietors of establishments covered in the regulation are well known and are substantial citizens they would be taken to their respective precinct houses and expected to deposit collateral.

Cites Case of City Club.

It was emphasized at the District Building yesterday that no "reform wave" is sweeping the local government in its determination to enforce the regulations governing Sunday observance The law is on the books, however, and has been called to public attention recently, and therefore, it will be enforced it was said.

Pointing out that action was taken recently against proprietors of four night clubs for alleged failure to comply with the Sunday closing law, Maj. Hesse said that this action had failed only because of the fact that policemen had not obtained sufficient evidence to warrant prosecution of the cases. In the case of Jean Monk, however, it was said, who was convicted of violating the Sunday closing law by conducting a dance at the City Club after midnight on Saturday night, ample evidence had been obtained, and the subsequent conviction demonstrated that the Sunday closing law could be enforced.

8 Christmas Raids Net 15 Arrests, 265 Gallons

Confiscation of 265 gallons of alleged corn whisky and six automobiles, the arrest of 11 men and 4 women, and 8 raids on alleged "speak easies" were reported yesterday by Deputy Prohibition Administrator Robert D. Ford, in charge of Washington's dry activities.

The total, he reported, represented only one day's activities in the work of prohibition enforcement officers to stem the flood tide of Christmas liquor and make Washington arid for the holidays. Each of his 20 agents are working overtime, he said, many working sixteen and eighteen hours a day.

Seized on Baltimore Pike.

The largest single haul reported was the arrest on the Baltimore pike, near the District line, of John Edgar Williams in a touring car, which, police say, contained 90 gallons of corn whisky. Edward Lacy, of High Point, N. C., and Ethel Johnson, of Richmond, Va., fell into the net near the District line and police seized their touring car and 52 gallons of alleged intoxicants.

Roger Lee, Ruth Browner and Marie Curley and 30 gallons of alleged contraband were arrested in a touring car on Bladensburg road. Abe Pliscoe, his touring car and 15 gallons of alleged liquor were seized in Prince George county, where the agents also ran across a deserted coupe containing 30 gallons of alleged liquor.

Liquor in Unoccupied Places.

Two premises, one at the rear of 211 M street southwest, and another at 2221 Fourteenth street northwest, were raided and 3 gallons of corn whisky and 2 pints, respectively, were seized and confiscated, although the buildings were unoccupied and no arrests were made.

A raid under the direction of Capt. Maurice Collins, of the Seventh Precinct, on a vacant house at 1037 Thirty-seventh street northwest yesterday morning netted the police 100 gallons of alleged corn whisky. No arrests were made. Police reported they found the seized liquid in a lineoleum-covered cache under the kitchen floor.

WOMAN, 61, IS KILLED IN FALL DOWNSTAIRS

The grandchildren of Mrs. Arell Eiseman, 61 years old, 3520 Tenth street northwest, were waiting last night for a visit from her which they will never receive.

While Mrs. Eiseman was descending the stairs in her home, her arms laden with Christmas gifts for them, she lost her balance and fell. Her head struck a balustrade and she died two minutes later.

Deputy Coroner Joseph Rogers issued a certificate of accidental death. She had planned to take the children their Christmas presents Thursday night when she fell, and to decorate their Christmas tree tonight. Dr. Rogers said that if Mrs. Eiseman's arms had not been laden with bundles she might have caught a bannister and saved herself from falling.

millions of people throughout the country will join.

Today will be cold and cloudy, the Weather Bureau announced last night. There is little prospect for a "white" Christmas.

The Christmas spirit, descending upon the Capital today in all it fullness, will find the machinery of the Government at a standstill in preparation for it, some members of the official family gone to their homes, Congress in quiescent state, and some members of that body from nearby States also gone to their firesides.

The presidential family, of course, will remain here. The White House, probably more than any other household in the Nation, has taken on the Christmas flush and complexion.

The President has received hundreds of presents from all parts of the country. The bounty of gifts is altogether unprecedented. Admirers have extended themselves. The variety of the gifts is almost as great as their number. Mrs. Coolidge and John, who is home for the holidays, also have received their share of gifts.

No less than nine fine turkeys, lying on their backs in the White House ice box with their plump drumsticks tied together, vie for honor of adorning the presidential dinner table. Beside them is a pair of ducks, a goose and a couple of partridges.

Five Trees at White House.

In the storehouse are sacks of vegetables from all parts of the country, while the kitchen contains boxes of fruits, nuts and candy. One of the President's most prized gifts is ten pounds of honey sent from the Black Hills, the scene of his summer vacation.

In addition to the many presents, hundreds of greeting messages have been received at the White House, brought by messengers scurrying from all parts of Washington and from the Postoffice.

Five Christmas trees have been taken to the White House to be trimmed and decorated today under Mrs. Coolidge's supervision. Three of the trees will be placed in the blue room, and under one of them Mrs. Coolidge will place a reproduction of the Nativity in Jerusalem. Another tree will be erected in the hallways. The last tree will be placed in the President's private apartments on the second floor.

Vice President Dawes has gone to his home in Evanston, Ill., for the holidays. Speaker Longworth of the House, and Mrs. Longworth, however, will spend the holidays in Washington for the first time in three years. The central figure in their holiday will be Miss Paulina Longworth, who has now grown old enough to apprehend something of the mystery of Santa Claus.

The Cabinet is six to four for staying in Washington. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will spend the holidays at his home in Pittsburgh. Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilbur will go to Wayne, Pa., to spend the holidays with relatives. Postmaster General and Mrs. New will return to their home in Indianapolis, while Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Work will spend the holidays in Baltimore.

Secretaries Kellogg, Davis, of the War Department; Attorney General Sargent and Secretaries Jardine and Hoover will spend the holidays here, as will the family of Secretary of Labor Davis.

Special services will be held in the churches of the city on Christmas. The presidential family will attend the First Congregational Church tomorrow, as usual. In the afternoon Christmas carols will be sung at the Washington Cathedral in English, German and Russian. The singing will be broadcast.

The last day before Christmas will find late shoppers in a rush to complete their purchases. Homes will be brightened by the trimming of trees while the final preparedness will be made for the Christmas dinner.

Numerous turkeys will be purchased, and, as for the prices, it seems that the favorite bird has actually come down a peg or two despite that prices have struggled to persist at the high level of 60 cents for the choicer and 55 cents for the heavier birds. Although these prices were quoted at Center Market yesterday, there were other reports that turkeys could be had at lower prices, and that good birds were available even around the 50-cent level. The price today will be influenced largely by the number of birds brought in by the farmers.

Christmas trees are plentiful and are selling at reasonable prices. The abundance, in fact, has brought down the price to a relatively low figure.

Christmas is a favorite time of the year for getting married. Col. William A. Kroll, marriage license clerk, had a heavy day yesterday. Forty-eight licenses were issued. Col. Kroll issues a warning, however, that the clerk's office will close at noon today, so that expectant bridegrooms will have to be on hand early or else wait until Tuesday.

The District Public Library and all branches closed yesterday afternoon and will remain closed until Tuesday. The Library of Congress also closed for a three-day holiday.

Government workers were bidding each other a Merry Christmas as the bells tolled the close of day yesterday at 4:30 o'clock. They will begin this morning the three-day holiday granted them by President Coolidge.

The poor of the city will be provided for today. The Salvation Army, facing its biggest Christmas program, will distribute gifts today among more than 3,000 poor. At 2:30 o'clock baskets containing a full Christmas dinner will be distributed among 900 families at the Salvation Army Temple, 606 E street northwest. Mrs. Coolidge, as is her custom, will distribute the first basket.

At 8 o'clock tonight several thousand gifts will be distributed among some 1,000 children at the Christmas tree celebration in the temple.

Tomorrow a Christmas entertainment will be given 500 colored children, at which gifts will be distributed. An old-fashioned Christmas dinner will be provided homeless men by the Salvation Army tomorrow at the social center, 102 B street northwest. Visits will be made to the homes of 54 convicts.

The Central Union Mission's annual Christmas tree exercises will be held from 11 o'clock to 1 o'clock today at Keith's Theater. Mrs. Coolidge will attend and will aid in the distribution of 1,200 bags, each filled for some child present whose name it will bear.

The program of the Gospel Mission, at 214 and 218 John Marshall place, calls for the distribution of 140 Christmas bags among the residents of the Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains, while at 9:30 o'clock this morning the mission will distribute bags of toys, candy, fruit and warm clothing among 250 children enrolled in the mission's Children's Home Sunday School and daily Bible kindergarten.

Chevy Chase will hold its first Christmas tree celebration today at 5:30 o'clock. The Christmas tree is a cedar 30 feet high, to be planted in the center of the circle and lighted by hundreds of electric lamps. A bugler will be stationed in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church to catch the signal flare announcing the lighting of the tree in Sherman Square. At his call Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty will turn the switch, lighting the tree.

There will be a special recital of Christmas airs on the McKim memorial chimes of Epiphany Church at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The chimes will be played by Thomas G. Spence. The recital will be repeated at 10:30 o'clock, when the choir of the church sings the cantata, "The Christ Child."

There will be a Christmas tree celebration in Battery Park at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

An outdoor community Christmas celebration for Shepherd Park and Maryland-North-of-Washington will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at Georgia and Alaska avenues. A large spruce tree on the grounds of the Presbyterian Chapel is being decorated for the event.

Christmas will invade Union Station tonight. There will be carol singing from 8 o'clock to midnight.

Christmas trees are being installed by railroads in a number of trains, while the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will provide Christmas programs with music and distribution of gifts today on its de luxe trains

Because of the three-day holiday allowed Government workers a large exodus is expected from Washington to swell the usual holiday passenger traffic. Railroads are putting on special trains to care for this expected increase.

A Christmas pageant was given yesterday by the Wesley Heights Community Club, with special music and carol singing by children.

Christmas entertainments opened last night at the Neighborhood House with special exercises. Mrs. Porter H. Dale spoke. The Allegor Music Club, of the house, directed by Mrs. Joseph M Stoddard, gave a recital. The house still is in need of donations of clothing, fruit, toys and candy, it was said.

There was a Christmas tree party at the Navy Department yesterday. Mr. William Bowie Clarke was master of ceremonies, and speeches were made by Lieut. C. R. Eagle and Lieut. C. W. Fox. Presentation of gifts was by Mrs. E. S. Benedict and Miss Bertha Burns.

Christmas Trees in Jail; Carols and Gifts Planned

Attendants at the District jail, under the supervision of Maj. William L. Peak, superintendent, worked late last night setting up Christmas trees and assorting presents for the 500 men and women prisoners who will be forced to observe the Yuletide in jail.

A 20-foot cedar tree was placed in the rotunda of the jail for the men prisoners last night and a smaller tree was set up in the women's quarters in the rear of the main building.

This afternoon, members of the Christ Episcopal Church choir, of Georgetown, will sing Christmas carols at the jail. Early tomorrow morning an orange, an apple and a half-pound box of candy will be distributed among the prisoners. They are the gifts of Capt. Barnard, of the reformatory at Occoquan, Va., and of George W. Dow, of the Episcopal City Mission, of 1329 K street northwest.

The prisoners will be served a special dinner Christmas day, consisting of roast pork, mashed potatoes with gravy, cranberry sauce and coffee. Although visitors will be barred tomorrow, Maj. Peak will permit the prisoners to receive special Christmas baskets, containing turkey, chicken, fruit and other delicacies, from friends and relatives.

Forest Service Holds Christmas Celebration

The annual Christmas celebration of personnel of the United States Forest Service was held yesterday afternoon in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest.

There was a Christmas tree, brightly lighted. Gifts were distributed among more than 100 children of workers in the service. Will C. Barnes, assistant forester in charge of grazing, took the part of Santa Claus. About 200 were present. Mr. Barnes, assisted by W. I. Doty, had charge of arrangements.

The coming of Santa Claus was the main feature of the celebration. His appearance was the finale and climax of a playlet. The last scene showed a chimney. Suddenly several bricks came tumbling down the chimney, immediately followed by Santa Claus, who distributed the gifts. Wilbur R. Mattoon took the leading part in the playlet. Others were Henry Greeley, Lucy Hastings, Charles Collingwood, and Mildred Wright, who appeared as the Fairy, all children of service workers. Mrs. Theodore Norcross directed the presentation.

Foxhall Village to Light Community Tree Tonight

Foxhall Village will light its first community Christmas tree tonight at Fourty-fourth street and Reservoir road. Children of the village, costumed and swinging lamps like carolers of olden days will serenade the community.

The children, trained under a committee headed by Miss Marguerite M. Dunbar, will assemble at Reservoir road and Foxhall road at 7 o'clock. As they approach the tree Commissioner Taliaferro will turn on the 300 lights on the tree. Charles C. Boswell is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Minister Takes Role In Christmas Play

The Rev. G. M. Diffenderfer, pastor of the Luther Place Memorial Church, will assume the leading role in the third annual production of the Christmas play of Henry Van Dyke, "The Other Wise Man," on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 o'clock in the Luther Memorial Church.

The cast numbers more than threescore persons, comprising the Chapel Players of the church, and the direction is in the hands of three competent local artists, Bess Davis Schriener, Dennis E. Connell and Walter Beck.

Rome Cars Will Run 4 Hours on Holiday

Rome, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Christmas will be a home day in Rome, since few people, unless willing to walk or rich enough to own a private motor car, will be able to get around the Eternal City before 9 in the morning or later than 1 in the afternoon.

Announcement was made today that auto buses and street cars will make their first runs at 9 in the morning and their last four hours later. Taxi drivers also believe that Christmas is not a day of labor and the taxis consequently will be few and far between.

War Gas Held Ineffective In Eliminating Starlings

Battle gas is not believed effective in abating the Pennsylvania avenue starling annoyance, according to War Department reports made public yesterday questioning effectiveness of chemical warfare agents for eradication of certain bird life.

Answering inquiries, the department called attention to rather extensive tests made by the Chemical Warfare Service with the Bureau of Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture.

As a result, it was concluded unfeasible to attempt eradication of birds with poisonous gases, it being found that they showed marked resistance to toxic gases used and that it was difficult to build up outdoors sufficiently high concentrations of gases to be effective over extended areas.

During the World War it was noted pigeons generally returned safely when liberated in gas clouds. This was a mystery until it was realized the pigeon escaped by rising quickly above the concentration. Tests against crows showed they attempted to fly out of the gas cloud as soon as they felt its irritating effects. The Pennsylvania avenue starling probably would do the same thing in a concentration which also might be irritating to human life.

MAIL, WORTH $25,000, UNGUARDED, IS STOLEN

FOUND EMPTY AT RIVER

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec. 23.—Theft of $25,000 in money from a registered mail pouch in the Southern Railway Station tonight brought here Postoffice Inspectors R. W. Hodgins of Greensboro, N. C., and N. E. Murray of Lynchburg, to investigate one of the boldest robberies reported here in many years. Reports that $500,000 had been stolen were denied by Postmaster S. W. Collie.

The information that the pouch contained $25,000 in twenty dollar bills shipped from the Federal Reserve Bank to a bank in High Point, N. C., came to Danville first in private intelligence from Greensboro.

The theft was discovered this morning when a trainman, peering from a car, saw a mail sack on the river bank. He notified police who found the sack which had been ripped open The postmaster then summoned the postoffice inspectors.

Danville has no transfer clerk, and valuable mail here has not been guarded recently, Collie said. Two transfer clerks held responsible for mail removed from one train to another, were dropped from the service several months ago. Marines guarded important money shipments during the wave of train hold ups, but they also are no longer used. In this case, police believe the pouch, with other Christmas mail, stood on a station truck on the platform and was stolen before daylight, carried to the river bank and there rifled. The thieves missed two other pouches containing $50,000.

SOUTHERN TO KEEP HEAD OFFICES HERE

Southern Railway Co., said yesterday that the company had not yet decided where its future headquarters building would be located. He said that the company's position was the same now as it was outlined by President Fairfax Harrison on December 13 last.

The statement of President Harrison was issued at a time when the possibility of the District government taking over the building was being discussed Since then, it has been agreed that the various buildings of the District Government will be centered near the courthouse.

The statement of President Harrison was as follows:

"No decision has been reached as to where our operating headquarters are to be in the future. Such a decision can not be made until we know certainly that we must move from the location where we have been for 40 years.

"If and when Congress shall authorize the expropriation of our Washington office building, our decision as to the future will be made promptly, and that decision will be solely on the merits of the company's own problem of efficient administration."

Trade Bodies Alarmed.

Washington trade bodies were considerably alarmed last year over the possibility of the headquarters going away from Washington, and in December they appointed a committee to call on President Harrison. This committee was composed of Martin A. Leese, of the Chamber of Commerce; Edward C Graham, of the Board of Trade, and Ross P. Andrews, of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

The trio told Harrison that Washington was much perturbed by the suggestion that the company might move away, and they offered to do anything within reason to keep the headquarters here.

Harrison told them that the company would not come to any decision until Congress had taken action.

In considering new sites for its headquarters building, he said, Washington would be kept in mind as well as the other cities.

The Senate committee on public buildings and grounds already has decided to make a favorable report on the Elliott bill, and Chairman Keyes expects to ask for action as soon as the Senate reconvenes.

Chief Seaboard Office Removed to Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Dec., 23—(A.P.).—Announcement of the transfer of the official headquarters of L. R. Powell, recently elected president of the Seaboard Air Line Railway to succeed the late S. Davies Warfield, from Baltimore to Norfolk, was made today by W. H King, jr., assistant to Mr. Powell. Other changes announced include the following:

The real estate and right-of-way department in the future will report to the treasurer. The freight claim department will report to the comptroller.

Mr. Powell will continue to maintain an office in Baltimore.

Edward Birkhead Dies From Porch Tumble

Edward Birkhead, 50 years old, died late last night in Emergency Hospital from injuries suffered December 10 when he fell off the front porch of his home 515 Twelfth street northwest.

Deputy Coroner Joseph Rogers was notified and said he would pass upon the case today.

Sightseeing Company Sued

The Capital Sightseeing Company, 1423 F street northwest was sued yesterday in circuit court by Richard K Geraghty, of Auburn, N. Y., for $10,000 damages for alleged personal injuries Through Attorneys Doyle & Thuee the plaintiff says that on August 15, 1925 while employed by the defendant as a lecturer on a bus he was injured by a defective windshield appliance.

Town of Santaclaus, Ind., Gets Many Pleas

Special to The Washington Post.

Santaclaus, Ind., Dec. 23.—The Christmas mail rush was in full swing here today, but as usual Postmaster J. R. Martin sadly admits he isn't going to be able to satisfy many of their senders. There's a letter from Tampico, Mexico, and another from Ontario. All of them are from expectant children, addressed "Postmaster, Santa Claus."

"The queerest request I ever got was for a baby elephant," said Martin. "Somebody must heed the childish pleas, though, for frequently I get letters after Christmas thanking Santa Claus for his wonderful presents."

Martin and his wife run the one general store here. The village derived its name from the old designation, "Santaclaustown," given it by children in pioneer days because a community of German wood toy carvers lived in the vicinity.

CHINESE ROUTS ROBBERS HOLDING UP LAUNDRY

Seizes Pistol and Wounds One as They Flee, Resulting in Capture.

TWO OTHERS ARE ROBBED

The expression on the Oriental face of Lee Dock Wing, Chinese laundryman, did not change when two armed colored bandits entered his laundry at Georgia avenue and Harvard street northwest last night and ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead, Wing's hand closed on a pistol under the counter and soon the laundry was charged with flying bullets.

Both robbers fled from the store and one of them dropped unconscious on the sidewalk outside. His leg had been shattered by a bullet from Wing's gun. He is receiving treatment at Emergency Hospital. Police say that he is Matthew Johnson, 2328 Georgia avenue northwest.

Within the past two weeks a dozen small grocery stores and three Chinese laundries have been held up by bandits answering the description of the men who entered Wing's laundry last night. Wing had read of the robberies of his fellow countrymen and was prepared for the robbers when they visited him.

Johnson was placed under arrest by Detective Dennis Murphy of the Tenth Precinct. A search was started for the wounded man's comrade last night.

The arrest of the man, however, did not abash other holdup men. James Wilson, colored, 22 years old, 212 Morgan street northwest, told police that while he was driving his taxicab in R street between Fifth street and New Jersey avenue northwest last night he was held up and robbed of $8 by a colored man.

Wilbur Burns, 7 Sixth street northeast, reported that he was held up at the point of a pistol by a colored man in L street between Twentieth and Twenty-first street northwest and was robbed of $160.

BORDER REGULATIONS ARE UPHELD IN TEST

Foreign-Born Canadians Are Barred From Crossing for Employment.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Judge John R. Hazel, in Federal court here, today sustained virtually every phase of the new border-crossing regulation put into effect December 1. The regulations, prohibiting foreign-born residents of Canada from crossing the border for employment unless they are in possession of a quota immigration visa, Judge Hazel ruled is not inconsistent with the immigrant act, nor with article 3 of the Jay treaty. It is understood an appeal will be taken.

Virtually every aspect of the problem was covered in the decision, which included the dismissal of the writ of habeas corpus obtained when Mary Cook, a native of Scotland, and Antonio Danelon, a native of Italy, were barred by the board of special inquiry when they sought to enter this country for work at Buffalo in violation of the new border rule after it became effective, December 14.

The injection of the Jay treaty rights into the issue added interest to the question.

SHERIFF FIELDS VICTOR IN ELECTION FRAUD CASE

HAD FAILED TO PAY TAXES

Charges of election fraud brought against Sheriff Howard B. Fields by 17 voters of Arlington County, contesting his reelection there November 8, were dismissed by Judge Samuel G. Brent in the Arlington County Circuit Court yesterday, on a motion contending the voters' petition was not legally docketed.

In presenting the motion, John S. Barbour, counsel for Fields, told the court the plaintiffs had failed to pay the writ tax required by law in filing the petition. Although the tax was subsequently paid on December 10, and the case docketed, Judge Brent ruled the procedure illegal.

The dismissal came as a surprise to the 400 spectators who packed the courthouse in anticipation of a sensational trial. The plaintiffs had assembled 65 witnesses. It was in vain that Bernard Miller and Thomas F. Dolan, jr., attorneys for the petitioners, argued against Barbour's motion. The case was disposed of in 30 minutes.

One of the petitioners, Z. O. Kines, told the court he was ready to pay the tax when the petition was filed. He said Assistant Clerk of Court R. E. Pennington did not know the costs, and, as the hour was late, said he would notify him later as to the amount of the fees.

Pennington testified that no extension of credit had been granted. He said the petition was presented too late to look up the costs, adding that Kines had told him he would "stand for" the fees.

Clerk of Court William C. Duncan also testified that Kines had received no extension of time. Miller contended there was an understanding that amounted to an extension of credit.

The charges brought against Fields, all of which he denied, alleged that Government employes had served as election judges, contrary to law; that money and liquor had been used in the election, and that ballots had been irregularly cast.

Woman Gas Victim Saved After Struggle

Members of the Fire Department rescue squad, police of the Ninth Precinct and Dr. A. M. McDonald, yesterday probably saved the life of Miss Mary Farrar, 52 years old, 1632 North Gilmore street, Baltimore, Md., after she had been overcome by gas at the home of Jacob Farber, 1124 I street northeast.

Miss Farrar had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Farber for several days. She recently suffered a nervous breakdown, police were told. Yesterday Mrs. Farber found her lying unconscious on a bed in a gas-filled bedroom. Artificial respiration was resorted to and firemen, policemen and Dr. McDonald worked for more than half an hour before Miss Farrar returned to consciousness. Last night she was reported out of danger.

Deacon Is Accused Of Church Fund Theft

Charles Robert Johnson, colored, 40 years old, 1426 Montello avenue northeast, former deacon of the Matthew Memorial Church, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Brodie and Varney on a warrant charging larceny after trust. Johnson, the detectives said, is alleged to have disappeared October 11 with church funds totaling $500.

Another warrant charging larceny after trust sworn to by Eleanor Epps, 207 Seventeenth street southeast, was served on Johnson. A charge of false pretenses, with Carl O. Allison, 1203 Montello avenue northeast, as the complainant was placed against Johnson.

Woman Reports Pocketbook Theft.

The theft of a pocketbook containing $20 and a signet ring was reported to police yesterday by Miss Alma Pudsell, 1607 Connecticut avenue northwest. The pocketbook was stolen from her home, Miss Pudsell told police.

KIDNAPER "DOUBTS" HE STAGED HOLDUPS ON VISIT TO CAPITAL

Went From Here to Baltimore and Thence to New York, He Tells Officers.

ROBBERIES IN 4 CITIES ON HIS TOUR ADMITTED

Set a Record at Columbus, Ohio, He Boasts, With 3 in 30 Minutes.

Pendleton, Oreg., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—William E. Hickman, 19, in his jail cell today revealed a startling story of a career of crime that carried him through many cities before he came to the Pacific Coast and became involved in the kidnaping of little Marian Parker, daughter of a Los Angeles banker, who was murdered and her body mutilated.

Hickman boasted of his deeds of outlawry as he told of skipping from city to city. In some of the cities, he said, he got "fine write ups." As he calmly discussed his travels, he remarked:

"My brain must be warped, or I could not have thought I could go through with this."

Stole Car at Kansas City.

Following his return to his mother's home in Kansas City last July, after being paroled from his conviction for forgery in the bank at Los Angeles, where he had been employed, Hickman said he stole an automobile. It was a Chrysler coupe, but not the one that figured in the recent kidnaping.

He took it from an Independence (Mo.) man in Kansas City.

"I drove directly to Chicago, where I paid $11 as a week's rent for an apartment at the Paradise Arms, on Washington boulevard," he said. He left Chicago and headed toward Toledo, Cincinnati and other cities in that district, but did not stop.

"I did not know just what I wanted to do. After going through Pittsburgh I picked up a member of the Pennsylvania State police. You can check on this, for he rode with me more than 20 miles.

Ate With State Policeman.

"We arrived at the town where the barracks for the State troops are located. Queensburg, I believe the name was, a town of 10,000 or ,000 inhabitants. He invited me to eat with him His name was O'Connell or O'Donnell. He bought me a good steak and before I left he took a road map and spent 15 minutes telling me how to get to Philadelphia. He told me that if I returned that way he would like to show me through the barracks..

"I went to Philadelphia, but I did not like the apartments or the one-way streets, so I went on to Gettysburg. I paid a guide $2 or $3 to take me over the battlefield."

He then related how he had visited Washington, D. C., Baltimore, and Jersey City, where he ferried to Manhattan. He did not like New York and left on the third day.

He said he had committed robberies in Kansas City, Chicago, Columbus, Ohio, and St. Louis, but did not think that he had committed any in the other towns he had passed through. He doubled back, going through Gettysburg again and into West Virginia. He dodged Pittsburgh and headed for Columbus, where he rented an apartment on Broad street.

Set a Record for Holdups.

"On October 31, I held up three places in less than 30 minutes, and I think I set a record for the town," he said.

He passed through Indianapolis and went to St. Louis, where he said he held up several persons. He returned to Kansas City, where he abandoned the car, leaving the gears locked and throwing the key away.

The car which figured in the Los Angeles kidnaping case was stolen in Kansas City. Hickman then drove out across Kansas, toward California, but had a premonition that things would not go well for him there and turned back to St. Louis, he said. From that city he went southwest, through, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. He then went north and west through New Mexico, passing through Phoenix, Ariz., at night.

Hickman went on through to San Diego, having passed through Yuma, Ariz., and the Imperial Valley, Calif. While in the Imperial Valley he was stopped by Federal officers looking for mail thieves or smugglers. He went directly from Los Angeles to San Diego, thence to San Francisco, and then returned to Los Angeles. He spent an entire day looking at apartments before choosing one in the Bellevue Arms apartments, where he paid a month's rent. He is positive this was on November 23. On Thanksgiving Day he went to San Diego, and on the return trip, he said, he picked up Andrew Cramer and June Dunning, and when he let them out he understood they were going to a hotel. Before leaving Cramer made arrangements to meet him two days later at his apartments, where plans were made for a series of robberies that preceded the kidnaping of Marian Parker.

CRAMER, ACCUSED AS KIDNAP ACCOMPLICE, IS ELIMINATED

got acquitted, didn't he?" the kidnaper argued.

Hickman was quoted by officers as saying that he considered that the "death notes" he wrote to the father of the slain girl were masterpieces.

Hickman readily admitted he abducted the 12-year-old girl, conducted negotiations for ransom and collected $1,500 in delivering the child's torso to her father, Perry M. Parker, bank official, but resolutely denied he was the slayer.

Perfectly Calm, He Says.

"I know that I am not guilty of murder and I am perfectly calm," Hickman declared in his cell.

Cramer, said Hickman, had deep-set eyes, heavy eyebrows and was an inveterate smoker. He had a peculiar habit of walking with a slight limp every third or fourth step. He wore a blue shirt with attached collar, same color, and wore a black four-in-hand tie. He used cloth gloves.

Hickman volunteered the information that he had planned to return Marian alive and uninjured to her parents on Sunday if Parker, the girl's father, had not "come through" with the ransom. The slaying of the girl by Cramer was entirely unexpected by Hickman, he said.

"The only reason he had to kill her and dismember the body was in order to get her into a suitcase which he could carry without arousing suspicion," he said.

Hickman described the appearance of the body when Cramer was alleged to have brought it to his apartment.

Shocked at Sight, He Says.

"I was shocked," he said. "He had cut the body so that it fitted in the suit case. The head was bent slightly to one side. The nose had been pressed down and 'frozen' flat, so it was necessary to lift it up."

He gave a grewsome description of the contrivance by which the girl's eyelids had been fastened so as to be kept open.

"There is something ghastly about a dead eye," said Hickman. "It is even more penetrating than a live eye."

Asked to explain why he used the expression, "I am doing a solo," in some of his letters to Parker if he was acting with a confederate, Hickman indicated that he did not have a definite idea of the meaning of the word. He said he had overheard the word when he was in jail.

"There was no need of me using that word. I just thought it was clever, like the words 'Fox' and 'Fate.'" These names he signed to ransom letters.

"I know Parker doesn't feel as terrible about this as I do," Hickman muttered.

Marian "Sure a Nice Girl."

"Marian was sure a nice little girl," he kept repeating. "She didn't even cry when I told her I was kidnaping her, she just said she didn't think her father had the money, but she hoped he would get it. She was a pretty little thing."

Told that his mother had collapsed and that his father had disowned him when informed of his confession, the self-styled "Fox" stolidly repeated, "I know that I am not guilty of murder and I am perfectly calm. I didn't kill her. It was Cramer."

"I sent a message to my mother by that minister who was in here," he said.

Cramer Shatters Story.

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Andrew Oliver Cramer, convicted bootlegger, from his cell in the Lincoln Heights jail here today, threw a bomb which officers said shattered the confession of William Edward Hickman at Pendleton, Oreg., that he was aided in the kidnapping of Marian Parker and that Andrew Cramer was her slayer.

"I don't know why he picks on me," said Cramer, admitting only having an acquaintanceship with Hickman.

Herman Cline, chief of Los Angeles detectives, who is now on his way to Pendleton, has declared his belief that Hickman was both the kidnapper and slayer of the little school girl.

Cramer, who has been a prisoner here since last August, told detectives that he was acquainted with a June Dunning, the alleged woman accomplice named by Hickman when he told Pendleton officers that Andrew Cramer had aided him in the crime. Hickman said he had picked up Cramer and June Dunning in San Diego Thanksgiving Day and gave them an automobile ride to Los Angeles.

Cramer's Brother in Prison.

Frank Cramer, known to police as the brother of the Andrew in jail here, also is a prisoner. He is serving a term for robbery.

Frank was jailed in August, the same month as his brother Andrew. The records show the former was incarcerated August 12 and the latter August 18.

Conflicting stories were told police and newspaper men by the brothers concerning their acquaintances.

Andrew told officers that his brother had "kept company" with Rose Hurst, alias Rose Cramer, whose true name, he said, was Rose Dunning. June Dunning, Andrew said, was a sister of Rose. Both women, he said, ran rooming houses in Los Angeles. Police tonight were seeking them.

Frank, from his cell in the county jail, told police that he had never heard of June Dunning and that the only sister Rose had was Mable Dunning, who died nine months ago. Rose, Frank said, is his wife.

In Jail at Time of Killing.

"It is impossible for me to have been in on that killing as I was right here all the time," said Andrew Cramer. "It's almost too ridiculous to talk about."

Another contradiction of Hickman's implication of a man and a woman accomplices, was seen by officers in the story of Edward Stelzreid, fellow tenant of Hickman's at the Bellevue Arms Apartment. Stelzreid described in detail the movements of two men who aided a third, declared to have been recognized by him as similar in appearance to the kidnaper, in carrying a suitcase and several bundles from the side door of the apartment house at 11 o'clock Saturday night. The police pointed out that this was several hours after Hickman had delivered the slain girl's torso to her father.

The prosecuting and judicial officials of Los Angeles County laid plans today speedily to bring Hickman before the bar of justice when he is returned here from Oregon.

Officers Fly to Capital.

Officers went today by airplane to Sacramento and obtained extradition papers based on an indictment returned by the County Grand Jury convened last night in special session. They planned to continue on to Pendleton, Oreg., where the boy kidnaper is held Hickman probably could be returned here by air in a little more than eight hours, if it were decided to make the trip in that way.

Judge Carlos Hardy, presiding in the Superior Court, said the youth would be arraigned immediately, the indictment having done away with the necessity for a preliminary hearing.

At his arraignment, Hickman will be given from three to five days before he must enter a plea of "guilty" or "not guilty."

Judge Hardy said his case then would be set ahead of all others and trial be started at once.

If he is convicted or if he pleads guilty, he may be sentenced within five days and removed immediately to the penitentiary.

Indians and Cowboys Parade to See "Fox"

Pendleton, Oreg., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—As strange a parade as has filed through the picturesque streets of this Western town shuffled down an alleyway beside the city jail today to get a glimpse of William Edward Hickman.

Responding to insistent requests for a sight of the prisoner, Police Chief Tom Gurdane granted permission for the procession to file past a door in which Hickman stood, closely guarded by the sheriff.

Gaudily blanketed Indians stared impassively at the youth; pretty women stopped to peer into the grated room; grim cowmen, with their own ideas of justice, stalked past with audible comment, and business men of the city made hurried trips to the scene and took their places in the line.

Captor to Ignore Reward Given by Women and 'Kids'

Pendleton, Oreg., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Tom Gurdane, grizzled chief of Pendleton's police force, who aided in the capture of William Edward Hickman, does not want any reward money except that offered by the city of Los Angeles, banks and other organizations. The rewards tota close to $100,000.

"I don't want the money of individuals," he mumbled, "not the money of kids or women. But I see no reason why I should not take that which was offered by the Lo Angeles banks and some of the organizations. That is legitimate reward money, legitimately earned."

And Buck Lieuallen, State traffic officer, who with Gurdane captured the notorious fugitive, nodded vigorous assent.

Both officers will leave in a day or two for Los Angeles, invited there by the California city police. They probably will spend a week there, and present indications are that they will have two dozen or more offers of theatrical engagements.

"Be Truthful," Mother Advises Abductor of Girl

Kansas City, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Eva Hickman remained unshaken tonight in her belief that her son, William Edward Hickman, had no part in the killing of Marian Parker, Los Angeles schoolgirl.

Learning that Andrew Cramer, named by Hickman as an accomplice in the crime, had denied any part in the killing, Mrs. Hickman said:

"I still believe my son when he says somebody else did the killing. I know he couldn't be guilty of that."

Four offers to pay Mrs. Hickman's expenses to California if she desired to go to the aid of her son were made anonymously today to the family adviser, Lieut. Col. Charles Edwards.

Mrs. Hickman today sent a message to her son telling him that "your mother, brothers and sister still believe in you" and urging him to be truthful and "trust in God."

Hickman Tortured Dogs As a Boy, Friends Recall

Hartford, Ark., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Characteristics described first as "mischievousness" by the hill folk of this little town, where William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnaper and alleged slayer of Marian Parker in Los Angeles, spent the first twelve years of his life today led his first teacher, Miss Mabel Bright, to the assertion that Hickman was abnormal mentally as a child.

Hickman was a bright pupil in his classes, Miss Bright said, and a "nice but peculiar boy." Admonition for oft-played pranks at school would cause the boy to cry out in bitterness for the rebuke, or to sob outright, the teacher explained. At such times an abnormal nervousness was apparent, she declared.

The rank and file of the villagers believe Hickman insane, pointing out that his mother spent two months in an insane hospital at Little Rock Young men to whom Hickman is "Ed" or "Bill" gave accounts, the authenticity of which could not be determined by the Associated Press, of his cruelty to animals. A mania for capturing and torturing stray dogs and cats possessed the boy, they said.

EXPERTS DECEIVED ON GLOZEL 'RELICS,' COMMITTEE ADMITS

PURPORTED TO REVEAL PREHISTORY ALPHABET

Done With Iron Implements, Instead of Stone Ones, It Is Concluded.

Paris, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The famous Glozel collection of "Stone Age" bones, utensils and knicknacks unearthed three years ago on a French farm in the Allier department has been found by an international committee of scientists to be a practical joke perpetrated in the mid-Victorian era.

This judgment was rendered today by a committee of scientists from a half dozen countries who have been scrutinizing the discovery for weeks. It had been supposed the finding would show that prehistoric people of what now is France, used an alphabet 10,000 years ago, long before Phoenicians generally are credited with inventing the original A B C's and that these same ancients knew how to carve love letters on blocks and sermons in stone.

Now, however, the dissillusioned committee of scientists, who were appointed by the international scientists congress at Amsterdam several months ago, have concluded that the carvings were done with iron implements of which there was none in the Stone Age but of which there were many in the post-Napoleonic period of the nineteenth century.

Some Relics May be Ancient.

The report, however, concedes that there might be some real ancient things mixed in the collection, but rejects the authenticity of the ensemble because many of the discoveries were "nonancient" articles, such as an oven and obviously new bones.

The committee decided that the oven which was found was not a day over 75 years old, that the "tomb" over which much enthusiastic comment had been made probably had not even been manufactured when Clemenceau was a boy and teeth and bones had a modern color. While some of the bones were fossilized, there were many more that were not.

Furthermore certain objects in polished stone, including what came to be known as the Glozel Alphabet, gave the appearance of having been cut with chisels sharpened with whetstone.

And among all the carvings of animals there was not one prehistoric monster such as is found in museums They were all cows, cats, old gray mares and other modern appurtenances to life on a French farm.

The original finding of this Glozel collection by a French farmer three years ago started a long train of controversy among archeologists, some of whom insisted that the discoveries were authentic, while others insisted as vehemently that the objects were "planted" by some practical joker.

Feather in His Wound May Mean Police Case

Newport, Ky., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The finding of chicken feathers in a gunshot wound may mean a police charge of stealing chickens against Edward Fitzer, 56, if he recovers from a severe bullet wound in his abdomen.

Fitzer staggered into a commission house this morning and said he had been held up and shot by a negro While physicians were removing several chicken feathers that had been driven into the flesh by the bullet, the police received a report from Carl J Radley, jr., a grocer, that he had fired six shots at a man who was leaving his chicken coops with a sack of chickens.

Reprimands Voted For Anti-Semite Riot

Bucharest, Dec. 23 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The trial of the first group of seventeen students arrested on the charge of leading in the anti-Jewish riots in Transylvania was concluded today by the court-martial. One student was sentenced to one month's imprisonment. The other sixteen were reprimanded.

The group was defended by Alexander Cuze and two other professors. The accused students contended that they did not take the objects from the synagogues, but that they were handed over to them by others. Communist workers provoked them to the excesses, they asserted.

Trio Take Joy Ride In Hospital's Hearse

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Bellevue Hospital's hearse was borrowed today by two young men and a girl who used it for an early morning drive to the suburbs.

The driver left it in front of the institution to get a body and it was gone when he returned. Several hours later the hearse was found abandoned in Queens. The woman and men were seen leaving it.

Quadruplets Are Born To Mother in Silesia

Beuthen, Silesia, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Frau Derner, wife of a bookkeeper employed by the municipal street railway, has just presented her husband with an unusual Christmas present, giving birth to four hearty baby girls, each weighing three pounds.

Silesia apparently favors quadruplets for last year about the same time a couple at Oppeln had quadruplets.

Sydney Blackmer Will Wed Lenore Ulric

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Lenore Ulric and Sydney Blackmer, stage stars, will be married next June. The announcement was made today by the actor's manager.

Miss Ulric's most recent success was in "Lulu Belle." She has been playing on the road for several months. Blackmer has been starring in "The Springboard."

Albanian Leader to Rome.

Tirana, Albania, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—M. Vrioni, Albanian foreign minister, left for Rome today where he will represent Albania in the ratification of a military convention. It is believed that he also will visit Paris on a political mission.

Undertaker Dies at Funeral.

Drammen, Wis., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Just as funeral services for Mrs. A. F. Johnson were being concluded yesterday in the Norwegian Lutheran Church, Freda Anderson, undertaker in charge, dropped dead in the church aisle.

Will Rogers Has Several Mexican Papers for Sale

Special to The Washington Post.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 23—I got some Mexican documents I want to sell if I can. They are mostly pictures, so you won't have to be able to read to understand 'em. On that account, I wanted to sell to some tabloid newspaper. One shows a bull fight, and one bull's name is "Sam." Another bull was named "Uncle." Now that looked like they were trying to kill "Uncle Sam," and I think it calls for intervention.

Another picture is of two men talking to each other. One has money in his hand and the other has a wrinkled brow and his shoulders are stooped from much responsibility, which leads me to believe he is at least a United States Congressman.

In addition to price of documents, I want railroad fare and expenses to any and all investigations.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Australia to Study Representation Here

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 23 (A.P.). The Australian government will shortly consider the entire question of Australian representation in the United States. In making this announcement today, Premer Bruce added that the Australian government was not dissatisfied with the results achieved by the Australian representatives in the United States.

Australia is represented at present by a high commissioner in the United States, with headquarters in New York, but there have been suggestions that Australia might seek representation by a minister, following the example of the Irish Free State and Canada. Premier Bruce, however, in 1926, on his way home from the imperial conference in London, said that Australia would not raise her representative to the rank of minister. Sir Hugh Dennison, present Australian commissioner, resigned his post several weeks ago.

Railroads Challenge Higher Wage Award

Chicago, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Western railroads today challenged the authority of four members of a board of arbitration to award wage increases to 55,000 firemen and enginemen by petitioning the United States district court to set aside a recent decision.

Counsel for the 55 lines, comprising virtually all the leading trunk systems west of Chicago, contend the board had been dissolved on December 5 when it reported to the court here it could not reach an agreement.

Hazlett P. Burke, chief justice of the Colorado Supreme Court, summoned the board again to meet in Denver.

On December 17 the two employes' representatives and the two designated as neutral members agreed on an award of 30 cets a day more for passenger firemen and 35 cents more for all other members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Bravery of Dying Man Nets 2 After Holdup

New York, Dec. 23.—(A.P.)—The clear-headed bravery of a dying policeman today brought two holdup men into the police lineup charged with homicide and robbery.

Shot four times when he tried to foil the robbery of a Glendale, Long Island, saloon yesterday, Police Lieutenant John Kemmer abandoned his efforts to draw his own gun, ripped a scrap of wrapping paper from a roll on the bar and scribbled the license number of an automobile he had seen outside the place.

A few minutes later he was describing the robbers as he lay dying. Shortly afterward the automobile was spotted and the robbers arrested. They were Edward Byrne, who said he had turned holdup man to buy his sweetheart a Christmas gift, and George Appel, former Chicago gunman.

into the car and later abandoned in it, with orders to lie down so they would not see which way the robbers went.

All of the money taken from the bank was recovered, Cashier Alex Spears, who received a bullet in the jaw, reported tonight. Its recovery was due to the fact that the Comer child, ordered to hand out the money, passed over a sack, but not the one containing $12,200 in currency and $150,000 in nonnegotiable paper.

Shortly after noon a man in a Santa Claus garb entered the bank and spoke to Spear in a mumbling tone of voice. When Spear asked him to repeat his question, the man suddenly pulled revolver and commanded the banker to "reach for some sky." Following closely behind were four other men, all brandishing revolvers. They lined up officials of the bank and customers.

While the men scooped up all of the money in sight, a woman customer, unnoticed by the robbers, fled from a side door and notified police.

Seeing officers coming, the bandits grabbed two of the bankers by the arm and led them from the bank. Just outside the door they released the men and seized the two little girls, placing the children between them and the officers. They backed slowly toward two waiting automobiles, four into one car with the girls, while the fifth, with part of the money, entered the other A second later the lone robber fell to the floor of the car, shot four times. The others fled, firing volley after volley into the crowd.

Kindling Fire With Oil Fatal to Man and Son

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec 23.—An attempt to light a fire with kerosene has cost two lives and may claim a third, two victims having succumbed in a Martinsville hospital. George Sides died last night from burns, two days after George Sides, jr., aged 2, who was blistered from head to foot, succumbed.

Lillian Sides, 12, has small chance of recovery, doctors say. The two children were standing on either side of their father watching him pour oil when the can exploded and drenched all of them with liquid fire.

Plane Down in Deep Snow.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—An eastbound air mail plane, flying from Cleveland to Buffalo and piloted by Ray Henries, was forced down in a snowstorm this afternoon on the farm of Ray Ebel, 2 miles from Lakeview, N. Y. The pilot was not injured. The plane, which landed in deep snow, was not damaged.

Jones, Steel Magnate, Ill.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The condition of B. F. Jones, jr., chairman of the board of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, seriously ill at his home here, was reported practically unchanged today with indications of a slight improvement. Mr. Jones suffered a heart attack early this week.

LINDBERGH, GUARDED FROM BANDIT RAIDS, VISITS CUERNAVACA

Mexicans Take Elaborate Precautions for Safety of American.

FLIER IS TO RETURN TO CAPITAL ON SUNDAY

Flight to Guatemala City to Be Made Wednesday, After Day of Rest.

Mexico City, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Her first full day in Mexico City was, for Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mostly a quiet home affair, the only departure being a luncheon at the American Embassy, attended by all the cabinet ministers and foreign ambassadors at which she and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh were the honor guests.

Col. Lindbergh left the city this afternoon by automobile on a sightseeing trip to Cuernavaca as guest of about forty officers of the Mexican air service. He expects to return Sunday night in time for dinner at the embassy at which only Ambassador Morrow and his family and Mrs. Lindbergh and the "Lone Eagle" will be present. It is expected that Christmas Day will afford Col. Lindbergh the first full day of rest since his arrival more than a week ago. He and his mother expect to devote the day in relaxation, since no formal program has been arranged.

Accompanied by Attaches.

Col. Lindbergh was accompanied on his trip to Cuernavaca by Col. McNab and Lieut. Comdr. Hamilton, the Military and Naval Attaches of the American Embassy, and was escorted by a caravan of automobiles containing his hosts.

A motorcycle police guard was stationed at vantage points along the route from Mexico City to Cuernavaca in order to insure that Col. Lindbergh and his party would experience no holdups from bandits. The road leads through some rough country that afford bandits a splendid opportunity to ply their trade. A police detachment preceded the party by a few minutes and another one also followed it.

Cuernavaca is a beautiful, semitropical historic town, capital of the State of Morelos, where Cortez and Maximilian both had their favorite palaces. The altitude is lower and more restful than Mexico City and Col. Lindbergh is expected to enjoy a day devoid of official formalities and return to Mexico City recuperated from his recent strenuous schedule.

Charms Her Hosts.

Mrs. Lindbergh, who did not leave the Embassy this afternoon, has charmed all those who have so far had an opportunity to meet her.

"It is easy to see where Lindbergh gets his delightfully modest and yet utterly efficient manner," reports in substance the majority of remarks made to members of the Embassy staff by Mexican women and officials who have met the lone eagle's mother.

At the luncheon today Mrs. Lindbergh met all the members of the Mexican cabinet and ambassadors and ministers of foreign countries stationed in Mexico City. President Calles has not yet met Mrs. Lindbergh, but the chief of the presidential staff, Gen Alvarez, has paid her the highest compliment that can be shown any one visiting the country as private guest—sending his compliments and a message of welcome.

An orchestra dressed in native costume, with big hats, skintight trousers and short jackets, played on the lawn, while the tables were placed in the open air on a long veranda at the luncheon today. In this scene of flowers, sunshine and green grass, contrasting with the Christmas-time snow and ice at her homeland, Mrs. Lindbergh participated in her first formal function in Mexico City.

Goes on Shopping Trip.

Mrs. Morrow took her guest on an unannounced shopping tour this morning and no sooner had the autmobile bearing the American coat of arms stopped in front of a curio shop than a vast crowd of cheering workers and shoppers collected which gave the police a good morning workout in keeping them a safe distance from the automobile. One woman pushed her way through the police lines despite all efforts to stop her when Mrs. Lindbergh emerged from the shop, and on reaching her side, exclaimed: "May God bless you and your son."

Col. Lindbergh's entertainment as Mexico's guest will officially end Monday afternoon with the first, last and only purely American function he has known here—a reception at the American Embassy to permit members of the American colony to meet the flier and his mother.

All Tuesday Lindbergh will be left absolutely free to prepare his plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, for his Central-American flight and to study maps. He will hop off for Guatemala Wednesday morning.

The aviator informed the correspondents this afternoon that he might fly to Porto Rico, but emphasized that for the present no definite plans had been made for such a visit—whether it would be before his flight to Havana, or after Wednesday morning will see him on his way to Guatemala City, which he expects to reach in nine hours or less. From there he will fly to the capitals of the following countries in the order named: British Honduras, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama. The Panama-Havana flight, he added, might not be a nonstop affair, as he sees no reason for it. If he makes a stop on this flight he has not yet picked his landing place.

Mother May Fly Back.

Mrs. Lindbergh will probably fly back to the United States in the trimotored Ford plane in which she winged her way from Detroit to Mexico City. But there is still a possibility she may return by railroad.

Added to his other dignities, Col. Lindbergh today was made an honorary member of the Mexico City Rotary. A delegation of leaders of that organization called at the embassy and formally expressed in behalf of Mexican Rotarians throughout the republic admiration for the flier's achievements, not only in making aerial history but in bringing about increased friendliness between the United States and Mexico.

A delegation of postoffice employes also called at the embassy and presented him with an album containing a complete collection of all issues of Mexican stamps.

Suicide in Firebox By Railroad Employe

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Paul White, an employe of the Boston & Albany Railroad roundhouse in Rensselaer, committed suicide today by crawling into the firebox of a locomotive.

Fellow employes said his act must have been deliberate. He opened the door of the fire box and made his way across a bed of glowing coals. His body was discovered a few minutes later.

F STREET CORNER OF 13TH

GARY'S POST IS FILLED; COMMON STOCK GOES UP

New Chairman, Identity Still Secret, Is Said to Favor More Dividends.

OTHER ISSUES BOOSTED

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A successor to the late Elbert H. Gary as chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation has been selected, it was learned in banking circles here today, but his identity remains a mystery. Confirmation of his appointment probably will be given by directors at their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday.

Wall street was the scene of much speculation as to the name of the new head of the corporation. Rumors were rife that he is a man with strong leanings toward a policy of more liberal dividend disbursements, and reports of a possible stock distribution early next year were heard in this connection.

These reports formed the basis for an extraordinary movement in steel common on the New York Stock Exchange On transactions totaling more than 150,000 shares, a large portion of which was turned over in the final hour of trading, quotations climbed $4.75 a share, to $154.75, the highest price since late in September. This buying was in the face of a refusal by Secretary Mellon to issue an antidumping order against importations of steel from Germany.

The rapid advance of the steel stock imparted late strength to many other sections of the market, although the customary week-end profit-taking, combined with some preholiday liquidation created much irregularity at the close. The average of twenty leading industrial issues, compiled by the Associated Press, reached the highest level of all time, marking the sixth consecutive day in which this record has been raised.

The growing belief that a more liberal dividend policy is in prospect in the steel corporaiton, and that the new chairman inclines in that direction, is founded, in part, on the entry of the Dupont interests into the steel picture. Although the Dupont holdings amount to only 114,000 of the 7,116,235 shares of steel common outstanding, it is believed sufficient to secure representation on the board of directors.

CHRISTMAS COMET MAY BE BETHLEHEM STAR

Astronomers See Possibility It Was Same That Shed Rays on Shepherds.

NO WAY OF ASCERTAINING

Chicago, Dec. 23.—The Christmas week comet, which now glows faintly in the eastern sky just before sunrise, like a yuletide candle seen afar off, may have been the original Star of Bethlehem, which shone on shepherds as they watched their flock by night and on the birth of the Christ Child in the manger, it was said by scientists today.

The theory, one of many already advanced to explain the Biblical story, comes from the observatory of Harvard University at Cambridge, and Prof. Edwin B. Frost, of the University of Chicago. Whether or not the guiding light that led the three wise men to the stable in Bethlehem, was an earlier occurrence of the comet, however, the Harvard authorities admit they don't know for certain, and aver there probably will be no way of telling.

Prof. Frost, who is director of the Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., takes the same attitude as his fellow scientists in the East. The identity of the Biblical star will probably never be known, he said, but the idea that it may have been the comet now visible is interesting to contemplate for astronomers and laymen alike.

"A great deal has been written of the Star of Bethlehem for hundreds of years," Prof Frost says. Skjellerup's Comet, as the new comet is known (it was named for its discoverer), may have been that star. It may have been any particularly bright star, such as Venus. Again it might have been a comet that has never reappeared. And, still again, it might have been a comet that we on this side of the world never have and never will see.

Williams Bay, Wis., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The Christmas, or Skjellerup, comet has been photographed and sketched by Dr. Edwin B. Frost's staff of astronomers at Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago here. The photographs are regarded as triumphs of photography with the infrared rays, and they have encouraged astronomers to believe that they may overcome climatic obstacles in making pictures of celestial bodies.

"All evidence we have obtained indicates that the comet has never been photographed from the earth," said Dr. Frost, "and our observations indicate that the next visit of the comet will be long after our time, perhaps hundreds of years."

FASCIST FOES FREED IN NEW YORK KILLING

"Framed" Because of Their Political Views, Accused Men Asserted.

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Donato Carillo and Caligaro Greco, antifascists, were acquitted tonight of the murder of Joseph Carisi, a Fascist, last Memorial Day.

Assistant District Attorney Henderson then moved dismissal of another indictment charging the defendants with the murder of Nicholas Amoroso, another Fascist who was slain at the time Carisi met his death. The motion was granted.

Carisi and Nicholas Amorso were shot and stabbed to death on May 30 last as they were on their way with a group of friends to take part in the city's official Memorial Day parade.

The two men declared they were in their Brooklyn homes at the time of the killings in the Bronx and that the Fascisti League "framed" them because of their political views. Clarence Darrow and Arthur Garfield Hays headed their counsel.

Robbers Take $685 And a Holly Wreath

Chicago, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Three robbers cowed a score or more Christmas shoppers and girl clerks in a 5-and-10-cent store today and took $685 from a safe which the manager was forced to open.

As the trio hurried from the store, one grabbed a wreath of holly, calling back to the terrified group of onlookers, "For Santa Claus."

FIGHT TO CURTAIL HOUSE TAX SLASH MAY FORCE DELAY

HALT UNTIL MARCH 15 PAYMENT SUGGESTED

Chairman Says Program Will Be Taken Up January 7 by Committee.

(Associated Press.)

A paring down of the $290,000,000 tax reduction bill passed by the House to well under $250,000,000 was demanded yesterday by Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, which will work over the measure after the holidays.

Under pressure from the White House that the original limitation of $225,000,000 set by the administration be adhered to, Senate Republican leaders are admittedly puzzled as to how it is to be accomplished, and some delay in action on the bill seems probable.

Restoration to the measure of some of the corporation levy which was cut from 13½ to 11¼ per cent by the House, and also a restoration of part of the automobile sales tax of 3 per cent which was wiped out by the House, are seen by Chairman Smoot as two possible means of trimming down the total reduction to somewhere near the administration limit.

May Repeal Estate Tax.

However, Senator Smoot has no definite program, and he says the Senate is in a mood to repeal the inheritance tax, which would add to the total reduction by about $7,000,000 the first year. The House, after a fight, refused to eliminate the tax.

Strong hints have been dropped that the administration is willing to wait until March 15 when first tax payments of 1928 are due to prove its contentions on the prospective surplus for this year. While he says there are some in favor of the Senate taking up the alien property bill already passed by the House before considering the revenue measure, Senator Smoot denied yesterday that the tax bill would be shelved until after March 15.

Hearings Begin January 7.

He did say, however, that he preferred to see how far Congress would go in making appropriations before acting finally on the tax bill and if this program is followed it would be several months before the revenue measure could be put into law.

"There is one thing certain," Senator Smoot said, "if Congress is going to authorize all the appropriations for special work such as flood control, farm relief, Boulder Canyon Dam, the Columbia River Basin reclamation project and others, it can not have much, if any, tax reduction."

The chairman does not plan to have a meeting of the committee before January 7 and not until then, he said, will a decision be reached on the program for the tax bill.

Swing Asks Curfew Along Mexican Border

Representative Philip D. Swing, of California, yesterday presented to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman petitions demanding that the Mexican border towns be closed at 6 o'clock at night, in order to combat the "baneful influence of Mexican vice resorts."

The petitions, as submitted by Mr. Swing were taken under consideration by Mr. Lowman, but the Treasury official refused to state last night what action might be taken on the appeal. Mr. Swing sought the closing hour primarily for towns bordering on San Diego and Imperial Counties, California, but, after his conference with Mr. Lowman, he declared that the proposed "curfew" should be extended to all towns along the border.

Tern, on Flight to France, Sets New Ocean Record

(Associated Press.)

Another transatlantic flight record has been made, this time by an extreme youth—an Arctic tern less than three months old, which was found at Port-Dauphine, La Rochelle, France, where it had flown from Labrador, a distance of about 4,200 miles.

It was one of a number banded by Oliver L. Austin, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., during an expedition to Baffin Land, at the Red Islands, Turnevick, Labrador, on July 22, 1927, when the bird was between one and five days old.

The flight probably was a nonstop one, Biological Survey officials, to whom it was reported yesterday, believe. It was found by Robert Pradier on October 1, 71 days after having been marked with the Biological Survey aluminum ring on its right foot.

The tern is related to the sea gull, but is usually somewhat smaller.

WILSON CHARGES FALSE, VARE INFORMS SENATORS

RECOUNT TO BE STUDIED

(Associated Press.)

William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, who has been denied the oath of office as senator because of expenditures in his primary campaign, yesterday filed with the Senate privileges and elections committee a formal denial of charges brought by his Democratic opponent, William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor in the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

Declaring there were no irregularities in the general election of 1926 as asserted by Wilson in his petition of contest for the Senate seat, the Pennsylvania senator-elect said Gifford Pinchot, as Governor of Pennsylvania, "arbitrarily, maliciously and illegally" withheld from him a certificate of election in the usual form.

Vare declared that instead of issuing a regular certificate, Pinchot, who was a candidate for nomination to the Senate in the 1926 Pennsylvania primaries, "in order to satisfy his own personal venom and showing the discomfiture of a defeated candidate," used the phraseology that Vare "appears to have been elected."

Calling attention that Gov. Fisher had given him a certificate in the usual form, Vare said that he received no less than 173,507 votes more than Wilson.

"The allegations of the complaint are so general, vague, uncertain and lacking in particularity that no answer is required," continued the Vare brief, which then made particular and individual denial to each of the twelve allegations or irregularities contained in the Wilson petition.

At another point in his reply Vare said the Wilson petition "is made up of a number of fantastic, imaginary and false charges."

After receiving the Vare reply, Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, chairman of the committee, said he would appoint a subcommittee to consider the Wilson contest. The members of this subcommittee will decide whether there is to be a recount of all the ballots cast in the 1926 Pennsylvania senatorial election or of only those cast in the counties in which Wilson has alleged fraud—Philadelphia, Lackawanna, Delaware, Luzerne and Schuylkill.

Gold Basis for Lira Is Approved by U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Action of the Italian government in stabilizing the lira and of the measures taken by American banks to afford financial support for the operation was given approval at the State Department yesterday after official notification of the entering of the Italian decree had been given.

The Washington Government is confident, it was said, that the stabilization on a gold basis would prove valuable and helpful in the United States as well as in Italy and in the world generally.

WILBUR AND HUGHES DEPART FOR SCENE OF S-4 SEA TRAGEDY

REPLIES TO MESSAGES OF LIEUT. FITCH'S KIN

Points Out That Everything Possible Was Done to Save Crew.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur left last night for Provincetown, Mass., accompanied by Admiral C. F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, to obtain information on the scene of the S-4 submarine disaster and confer with Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, in charge of salvage operations, regarding work of raising the sunken vessel. Their trip will be with special reference to ascertaining whether there is any further possible assistance can be rendered by the Navy Department.

No changes in instructions to proceed with raising the sunken submarine have been made, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said yesterday, declaring instructions to proceed with the work still stood and that he had no been informed that operations would be abandoned.

Repeating former statements that the department would continue the work, Secretary Wilbur explained when it became manifest there is no hope of rescue, or the procedure would be perilous to the lives of divers, the department naturally would consider what was best to be done under these conditions. "The orders now are to proceed with the work, and this is being done," he asserted.

In answer to messages from Mrs. Abigail H. Fitch, and Mrs. Laura Fitch McQuiston, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., aunts of Lieut. Graham Newell Fitch, a Washington victim of the disaster, asking why the rescue ship Falcon left the scene Sunday, and why the drill shield used Wednesday was not used before, Secretary Wilbur yesterday, in a reply expressing confidence in Rear Admiral Brumby, stated that air was pumped into the vessel continuously Sunday until discovery the ship's salvage line was cut, and the Falcon, speeding to Boston to save a diver's life, could have done to no good remaining on the scene because of weather conditions.

Text of Message.

Mrs. Abigail Fitch sent the following query

"Please explain why the Falcon left the scene of rescue Sunday. Also why the drill shield successfully used too late on Wednesday was not used Sunday when the six men were alive and Lieut. Fitch tapped out his plea for air As the aunt of Lieut. Fitch I ask a reply to these two questions."

Mr Laura Fitch McQuiston's was:

"As the aunt of Lieut. Graham Fitch I request an answer to these questions: Why was the drill shield by means of which air was forced into the S-4 too late Wednesday, not used Sunday; why did Admiral Brumby steam away Sunday, when even he could not then offer the weather as an excuse for stopping the rescue operations?"

Secretary Wilbur's reply in full follows:

"In reply to your telegram, air lines were connected to regularly designed salvage line on Sunday, and air was pumped into this line continuously until it was discovered during Sunday night that this salvage line had been cut or damaged inside the S-4 by the collision with the Paulding.

Subsequent to the discovery of the ruptured air line, it was literally impossible for divers to descend to S-4 on account of high seas. Diving was resumed as soon as weather permitted

"The Falcon, which could do nothing during bad weather, proceeded to Boston on Monday forenoon to land a diver who was in such serious condition after heroic attempts to aid trapped men that he could not be transferred to another ship save at the further risk of his life.

"The Falcon could not have remained in position during this time in any event because of weather. No diving time was lost on account of her visit to Boston.

"The department has every confidence in Admiral Brumby and the officers and men assisting him, and believes they have done everything humanly possible in the face of extremely adverse conditions. The worry and distress which you feel at this time is also shared by me and by all personnel of the Navy."

Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez sent the following message of sympathy to Secretary of State Kellogg yesterday:

"At a time when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's stay in Mexico and the announced visit of his mother to our capital are filling the hearts of Mexicans with joy and are promoting in the most effective way the sentiments of great and sincere cordiality between the people of Mexico and the people of the United States, we Mexicans can not help feeling deep sorrow for the grievous accident which befell the United States submarine S-4, in which a number of American sailors, in the discharge of the duties they owe to their country, have lost or seriously endangered their lives.

"As profoundly as Mexico felt joy for the extraordinary success of Col. Lindbergh's flight and with the same love with which we are looking forward to the safe arrival of his mother to our capital, we Mexicans feel the grief which that accident has brought into the sorrowful heart of that mother country, the United States.

"I, therefore, come in the name of my government to express to your excellency earnest condolence on account of that deplorable accident and the hope that the brave sailors who it seems are still alive in the submarine which was overtaken by the disaster, may come out safe and sound of their predicament.

"Will your excellency be pleased to accept on this occasion the assurances of my highest and most distinguished consideration."

Kellogg Makes Reply.

Secretary Kellogg replied as follows:

"I am deeply touched by your excellency's communication of December 19, expressing the sincere sympathy of the government of Mexico on the occasion of the deplorable accident which has befallen officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy engaged in the performance of their duties in the United States Navy submarine S-4.

"In informing your excellency that I have forwarded a copy of your note to the Secretary of the Navy, I have the honor to express my Government's thanks to your excellency's government for its much appreciated message of sympathy on the occasion of a disaster which is keenly felt by the whole American Nation and to express the confident hope that the recent manifestations of friendship toward the United States on the part of the people of Mexico will not fail to promote more cordial relations between our two nations."

Longworth Is in Doubt About Congress Inquiry

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Longworth believes that developments between now and the end of the Christmas recess will determine whether a congressional investigation of the sinking of submarine S-4 will be necessary.

He said yesterday that there should be a thorough inquiry into the disaster by the Navy Department and that all facts relating to the sinking of the submarine should be obtained.

"It may be necessary to have a congressional investigation," he said. "That will be determined by developments during the next two weeks. There must be a thorough investigation."

The Speaker added that the resolutions which have been introduced in the House showed that members of Congress were deeply concerned over the accident.

Search for 22 Men, Lost With Ship, Ends

Port Arthur, Ontario, Dec. 23 (A.P.). Search for the missing freighter Kamloops, lost with 22 men since December 7 last, ended today with the close of navigation on this section of Lake Superior for the winter. The tug Whalen returned to port without the slightest trace of the Kamloops, after making a search along the north shore of the lake.

through the hose showed that it contained less than one-half of 1 per cent of carbon dioxide.

Since 9 o'clock in the morning divers worked on the tunnel under the submarine, although weather conditions were none too favorable for such work. The sky was overcast, and a stiff northeast wind made the sea choppy. The divers worked under submarine floodlights which gave them a range of vision of 12 feet at the bottom. Capt. King said late today that he did not believe weather conditions would permit diving during the night.

In a formal statement today, Admiral Brumby said that every suggestion made in connection with the rescue work had been given careful consideration, and expressed his thanks to those who had offered advice.

"The Navy personnel on duty at the wreck of the S-4 desires to thank all those who have offered advice or suggestions in regard to the rescue work," he said, "for their interest in this work. All may rest assured that every bit of advice and every suggestion has been carefully considered and any ideas that could be used have been gladly accepted.

"All those at the wreck have used and are using every effort and all of the available facilities for accomplishing their task. Much of this work is done under conditions that are very different from anything seen in work on shore, where the weather had little or no effect. Some of the work at the wreck is necessarily tedious, difficult and sometimes dangerous, but the work has progressed without interruption when it was possible for it to do so."

20 Vessels at Scene.

Twenty vessels and 1,090 officers and men comprised the S-4 salvage fleet today. The naval force numbered 80 officers and 711 men and the Coast Guard force 26 officers and 253 men. In addition were 20 officers and men of the Merritt Chapman & Scott Wrecking Co., of New London, Conn.

The vessels included the U. S. S. Bushnell, the Falcon and Wright, mine sweepers; the submarines S-3 and S-8, the naval tugs Wandank, Iuka, Sagamore and Mohave, the destroyers Sturtevant and Mahen, the Coast Guard cutsupply carriers, the Coast Guard cutters Tampa and Burrows and five small boats, and the tugs Resolute and Relief of the wrecking company.

Destroyer Passed Over S-4.

New London, Conn., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The major damage to the sunken submarine S-4 apparently was done when the destroyer Paulding rode over the submersible which was listing to port after the first impact of the crash, Commander Edward Ellsberg, in charge of diving operations at Provincetown, Mass., has reported to the Navy Department.

The report was filed today from the flagship of the salvage fleet, the Falcon, by Ellsberg, who narrowly escaped death when he went below to make a first-hand survey of the craft.

He found the superstructure, decks and frames from frame 52 to 62 wholly carried away. Frames are lateral ribs, about 1½ feet apart. On the starboard side ballast tank No. 1 was much torn from the top of the dome about four feet "in the way" of frames 58 to 62.

The outer hull plating forming the top of the upper tank was uninjured on the port side, but damaged to starboard. The entire outboard ventilation main which runs over the superstructure was missing between the damaged frames.

There was a well defined and sharp but not deep print of the stem of the destroyer near frame 55 but no damage to the hull abaft of frame 60 except for the port side of the conning tower which showed marks, possibly of the destroyer's propellers.

Structural damage to the submarine was slight but, the report said, damage to the starboard side would be subject to correction on a later examination. Commander Ellsberg's information there was based on what he saw while sliding down the hull after being thrown off balance by a pull on his communication lines.

He fell into a jagged V-shaped hole where the submarine's side had been torn badly.

In attempting to put his foot on jagged pieces of hull he slipped and fell into the soft mud at the bottom. A diver was sent to aid him but in the meantime, by letting air from the helmet into his suit, he obtained buoyancy and finally succeeded in getting his head out of the mud.

He was then hoisted aloft and taken to the compression room where he regained his normal condition after two hours.

J. W. DAVIS TO PRESIDE AT JACKSON DAY FEAST

Democratic Party Leaders to Hold Preconvention Rally on January 12.

1,000 HAVE BEEN INVITED

(Associated Press.)

John W. Davis, the Democratic standard bearer in 1924, will preside over the Jackson day dinner here January 12, the first national get-together of Democratic leaders since 1920.

As toastmaster at this revival of the party's preconvention rallies, Mr. Davis will call on all of those whose names have been put forward for the nomination at the 1928 convention. All other leaders of the party hav been invited to gather at the banquet table to hear the call to arms of the presidential campaign and the views of the party's potential nominees.

Invitations have been sent to nearly 1,000 men and women prominent in affairs of the party, including all the Democrats of the Senate and House, the Democratic governors, members of the national committee and chairmen of State central committees. Clem L. Shaver, of West Virginia, chairman of the national committee, who arranged for this first party gathering in the National Capital in eight years, will call the meeting together and present Mr. Davis as the toastmaster.

While the program still is incomplete, present expectations are that those gathered at the speaker's table with the national chairman and Mr. Davis will be Gov. Smith of New York, Senator Reed, of Missouri; Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, Gov. Donahey of Ohio; Senator Walsh, of Montana; Representative Hull, of Tennessee, a former chairman of the national committee; Senator Swanson, of Virginia, and Representative Oldfield, of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic senatorial and congressional committees.

Gov. McLean Refuses Christmas Clemency

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 23 (A.P.)—North Carolina will be one State where Christmas pardons or paroles will be missing, Gov. McLean and Edwin Bridges, State pardon commisioner, said today. Such serious matters as the weighing of clemency for crime, they said, has no sentimental place in orderly government.

Shortly before Thanksgiving Mr. Bridges asked if pardons and paroles, such as are customary in many States, were to be issued on Thanksgiving and Christmas, said it would not be his policy to recommend holiday clemencies, but that individual merit, at individual times, would be his policy. The governor approved this course.

BORAH ASKS BRIAND TO URGE WAR PACT ON OTHER POWERS

NEW ARBITRATION TREATY IS RECEIVED

(Associated Press.)

Foreign Minister Briand of France was called upon yesterday by Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to extend his proposal to outlaw war between America and France to other world powers.

Senator Borah also proposed that Briand indicate a willingness to join the United States in making overtures for such treaties with Great Britain, Japan and Italy.

"I should like to see the United States take the initiative," Borah declared.

A world conference of the leading nations on the outlawry of war has been frowned upon by President Coolidge, who, however, has indicated a willingness to discuss means of outlawing war, although he feels the powers of Congress to declare war can not be circumscribed by a treaty.

Mr. Borah's committee has just received the proposed new treaty between France and America to replace the expiring arbitration pact between these countries. He asserted he had made these suggestions to M. Briand as a means of obviating objections now put forth, "particularly in France," to the proposal to outlaw war.

The new treaty is understood to pronounce upon the necessity for outlawing war in its preamble, but otherwise to be a combination of the Root and Bryan arbitration treaties.

U. S. Held As Ready.

"The United States," Senator Borah said in his statement, "would not likely make a treaty with France which she would not be reday to make with all other governments. If France and the United States therefore would broaden the proposal the objections which now appear would be to a marked extent removed. If the other governments refuse to make such a treaty, France and the United States might well consider the advisability of making such a treaty.

"M. Briand can render a great service to peace by proposing a similar treaty with the other governments, and if he does so, the United States should cooperate sincerely and fully."

While objections have been made, Senator Borah said, that the treaty might weaken the League of Nations, he expressed the view that it would strengthen the league.

AIRWAY ILLUMINATION ON PROGRAM OF 1928

Lighting of Lakes-to-Gulf Mail Line One of First Commerce Tasks.

(Associated Press.)

Among the first tasks the aeronautics section of the Commerce Department intends to complete in 1928 is the lighting of the Great Lakes-Gulf airway.

The lighted section of the route now runs from Kansas City to Chicago, and next year under the plans the Government is completing beacons will be placed along that portion of the route in Texas between Dallas and Galveston When that is done the air mail can proceed from Chicago to the Gulf without stopping. Funds for the work are expected from the present Congress.

Another improvement the aeronautics service intends to complete during 1928 will be the furnishing of weather reports by radio to planes in the air The program calls for the erection of a transmitting station at Blue Canyon, Calif., which will give the weather data to fliers on the transcontinental route. Two other stations will be established at Burley and Strevell, both in Idaho, to furnish the information for the planes flying northward from Salt Lake to Pasco, in Washington.

COUNTESS IS FREED IN A COMEDY TRIAL; SHOT SWEETHEART

SENTENCE SUSPENDED BY JUDGE AMID JOKES

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Paris, Dec. 23.—Lying like a gentleman, Raymond de Trafford, of a prominent British family, probably saved Countess de Janze, the former Alice Silverthorne, of Chicago, from a prison sentence on an assault charge when he testified in the gaping courtroom this afternoon that he caused her to fire the shot that almost killed him when she drew a revolver with the apparent intention of ending her own life.

"Will you repeat what you told the police after the drama on the boat train in the Gare du Nord—that you wrestled with her to seize the revolver when she produced it because she wanted to kill herself and during the struggle it went off, injuring you— will you take all the responsibility upon yourself here to save her?" asked Maitre Rene Matteetal, defending the Chicago heiress on the assault charge, which carries a maximum penalty of a year in prison, to which the original attempted murder indictment was reduced.

Testimony Unexpected.

"Yes," answered Mr. de Trafford coolly, while Alice, standing a couple of yards away between the ferocious gendarmes with enormous service pistols protruding from their holsters, gasped with amazement at his unexpected testimony.

"Hum," murmured Judge Fredin, nodding significantly at his two associates. They retired to deliberate and brought back a sentence condemning Mrs. Ogden Armour's niece to six months in prison, with a suspended sentence and 100 franc fine (about $4).

The tragedy of Alice Silverthorne and Raymond de Trafford ended with today's astonishing trial in the musty police court room in something resembling French farce. A chic assemblage of society women of two continents elbowed a motley gang of midinettes and charwomen.

She Wanted to Take Him, Too.

Countess de Janes spoke good French with a strong American accent, answering the questions of the wise-cracking judge, anxious to wring the last drop of drama out of the snappy "crime passionel" for the hungry parisian journalists.

"I felt like a drowning person," Alice said, with tears glistening in her eyes. "And as I clasped him to kiss him good-by I suddenly was possessed by an inexplicable desire to take him with me——"

Here Mr. de Trafford started down the aisle. His appearance created a sensation, because no one believed he would come from London to testify, and told the lie that saved Alice from prison.

Unflinchingly he took the combined abuse of the prosecutor, the judge, and Alice's lawyer.

"Oui," said Mr. de Trafford.

Rebuked by the Judge.

"You should have consulted your Catholic family and found out if they objected to your marrying a divorcee before you broke up with Countess de Janze," snapped the judge.

"Oui," said Mr. de Trafford.

He cast not a single glance in the direction of the girl he once loved, but as he approached within three feet of the frail figure in gray, her eyes melted and seemed to cry out that she still loved him.

The lawyer pleaded extenuating circumstances, chronic melancholia and tuberculosis, deadening her will and intelligence. He created another sensation by reading a letter from a childhood chum of Alice, Miss Baker, telling that the countess was extremely sensitive and melancholy and that she had tried to end her life four times before.

"Send this poor woman back to her husband and her children without the smirch of a prison sentence. He has acted like a gentleman and, although divorced, is ready to take her back," cried M. Metteetal, while the fashionable crowd gabbled excitedly.

A suspended sentence in France is wiped from the books in three years of good behavior.

Her Aunts Kiss Her.

The first to kiss Alice before she paid the fine and fled by a back door to escape the crowd, were Mrs. William Shoefelt and Miss Alice Chapin, her aunts.

The French press is giving columns of space to the trial and cackling wisecracks about the judge who transformed the proceedings into a regular boulevard show.

When Maitre Matteetal earnestly argued that the countess, being an American, never thought of killing the man merely because he deserted her, while French midinettes just naturally are expected to resort to murder in such cases, the judge objected, saying "why confine this singular attitude to midinettes? It is the same with every woman in France. She kills when she is deserted and the courts acquit her inevitably."

The judge set the courtroom into hysterics when he told de Trafford "You apparently willingly go with a woman to buy a gun, but I wouldn't even if she did say it was for her husband. We are more careful about these things in France."

Charges of Opening Butler Mail Dropped

Boston, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A grand jury indictment charging Ralph W. Neal, a postoffice employe, with tampering with the mail of former United States Senator William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, was nolle prossed today by Frederick H. Tarr, United States district attorney. Two other postal employes, Peter J. Mockler, of Milton, and Daniel E. Tangney, of Quincy, who were suspended last July 20 on the same charge, were reinstated.

Boston postal officials said this action had been taken on the advice of John H. Bartlett, First Assistant Postmaster General, who believed the three men had been punished sufficiently.

Senator Butler complained to the Postoffice Department last summer that his mail was being opened. A decoy letter sent resulted in the apprehension of the three postal employes.

SANE CHRISTMAS RULES.

One may well shudder when he thinks of the Christmas, not so many years ago, when principal interest was centered in an evergreen tree decorated with cotton and tinsel and tallow candles. Christmas morning came along, and the candles were lighted. Few things are more highly inflammable than an evergreen tree, particularly after it has dried out a bit. Consequently fire departments had a merry time of it during the Christmas season. This custom has largely changed. Electric bulbs have taken the place of the tallow candle. Tinsel and cotton no longer are considered necessary on a Christmas tree. Nevertheless, the Christmas season is no holiday for the fire department, and to make things as easy as possible for firemen, Chief Watson has issued a set of Christmas "Don'ts." The rules follow:

Christmas trees should not be decorated with paper, cotton or any other inflammable material.

Have the tree set up securely so that it will not be tipped over. Do not erect it too close to the fireplace or any other open flame.

Do not permit the use of candles on Christmas tree or in any part of the home as Christmas decoration or illuminations.

See that the wrappings of Christmas gifts are kept far removed from your heating plant or other fires and have them removed from your home as promptly as possible.

Be sure that wiring for electric toys and decorations is properly installed and in good condition.

Christmas is too happy an event to be spoiled by carelessness, which sometimes results in tragedy. Fires can be avoided if Chief Watson's rules are observed.

FARM PROFITS AND LOSSES.

The Department of Agriculture announced last Monday an increase of $635,146,000 in the total value of this year's important farm crops over 1926, according to revised estimates. Calculations for about 50 crops showed a total value of $8,428,626,000 as compared with $7,793,480,000 for last year. So, apparently, the embattled farmer hasn't done so badly after all.

On the other hand, the cotton crop was somewhat smaller than last year's. The department, however, quickly offsets this reduction by stating that, in the price record, this year's crop was actually worth $830,714,000 more than that of 1926.

Corn production, only slightly larger than that of last year, increased $285,268,000 in value; barley, $73,890,000, and oats, $40,694,000.

Wheat showed a decline of $21,000,000 over last year, but the largest decrease was in the potato crop, which declined $113,147,000. Hay, apples and peaches also showed decreases in varying degrees.

The actual area planted to the important crops this year was placed at 355,826,645 acres, an increase of 160,420 acres over last year. Revised estimates of the yields of all crops combined show the acre yields this year to have been 2.5 per cent above the average of the last ten years but 2.1 per cent below last year.

Finally, the per capita production of the principal crops is 3.4 per cent less than that of 1926, and 4.8 per cent less than the average of the last decade.

Thus the situation, while by no means as satisfactory as it might and should be, is certainly not discouraging. Over and above the admitted losses, the fact remains that the country is richer this year than last from agricultural profits by more than $600,000,000 and that is a great deal.

THE TRANSATLANTIC PHONE.

The House of Commons is quite upset over the transatlantic telephone. During January, when the service was inaugurated, there were slightly more than four calls a day on an average. That was the high point. From June to November the average was but 2.39 calls a day, and each averaged but slightly more than four minutes. The station at Rugby, erected by the postoffice to handle transatlantic traffic, cost in the neighborhood of $2,500,000, and expenses of operation since then have been $600,000. Receipts have come to only $250,000, and since the British end of the transatlantic phone service is government owned and operated, the deficit, after the American Telephone Co. assumes its share of the burden, will have to be met by the taxpayer. Thus it happens that embarrassing questions are being asked in the House of Commons.

American reaction to England's tale of woe is a bit confused. The New York Herald Tribune reports that the transatlantic telephone is doing very nicely, and that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is earning therefrom between $100 and $300 a day. The New York Times, however, says that the American losses are relatively greater than the British, but that the service will be continued nevertheless and notwithstanding, even if the service never becomes self-supporting. New York, according to the Herald Tribune, puts through eight or ten calls to London daily, for which the average toll is about $100. Some $400,000,000 worth of equipment, according to the Times, is used exclusively for these calls.

There is little doubt that the transatlantic phone thus far has had heavy losses; but this was to have been expected. The transcontinental telephone lines lost money when they were installed. Today they are humming busily, earning handsome returns for the stockholders of the A. T. & T. The transatlantic telephone is new. It has not yet been perfected. Eventually, however, it, too, will hum with activity, and will earn sufficient income not only to eat up the losses but also to show profit. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. intends to sit tight, improving the system all the time, advertising it, working toward the day when it can be made profitable. Great Britain should follow suit. The House of Commons' concern is premature.

FOR SAFER SUBMARINES.

The loss of the S-4 ought to bring about improvements in the equipment and maneuvering of submarines. The public is bitter in its criticism of the Navy Department for the failure to get air to the men imprisoned in the S-4. It is evident to laymen that practicable methods can be applied which would render it more feasible to rescue men from sunken submarines, and also to reduce the likelihood of ramming submarines.

In the first place, no submarine should operate in frequented waters. There is no necessity for making tests in the path of surface vessels. These tests should be made in vacant waters, and even then patrol boats should be stationed along the course to warn away surface vessels. By taking these precautions, the danger of collision would be reduced to a minimum. Even during the war, the allied submarines were confined to certain lanes, and were guarded by patrols.

Before rising to the surface, a submarine should be required to release a buoyant flare, which would float on the water and show a red light. Another flare, released a few moments later, would combine with the first to outline the submarine's course. The submarine should then delay its rising until neighboring vessels could change their course if necessary.

German and British submarines have devices which enable the crew, in case of enforced submersion, to send up a line attached to a buoy, carrying a telephone wire. Telephones are placed in every compartment. American submarines are not so equipped.

Submarines should be provided with a ringbolt at the bow, with which to raise that end of the vessel. The bow of the S-4 would have protruded from the water with the stern resting on the bottom. Every submarine station should be provided with a rescue boat equipped with hoisting apparatus and supplied with divers. A strong crane, hauling up a chain attached to a ringbolt in the bow of the submarine, would have made the rescue of the S-4 survivors possible, as they were all in the torpedo chamber, in the bow. The lifting of a submarine entire, by means of chains and pontoons, is a task requiring weeks of effort, and it is unnecessary. The raising of one end of the vessel is sufficient to reach imprisoned men.

It appears that there is no representative of the submarine service on the general board of the Navy. The service is directed by the Bureau of Operations, without the benefit of technical and special counsel of qualified staff officers.

It appears, also, that no extra pay is given to officers and men operating submarines, although the personnel of the naval air service are allowed 50 per cent extra pay. The only extra allowed to men in submarine crews is $1 for each of the first fifteen dives. After having earned $15 extra in payment for the terrible risk involved, men in submarines are expected to risk their lives for regular pay.

RADIO PICTURES.

Radio transmission of pictures apparently is no longer a process requiring skilled attention, for early in the coming year station WQR, located at Kearney, N. J., will make available to such amateurs as install the necessary equipment an experimental picture-broadcasting service. The pictures will be radiated during morning hours up to 11 o'clock on a wave of 423 meters or 710 kilocycles.

It will be no trick whatsoever to connect the picture device with the regular transmitter, according to John Poppele, chief engineer of the station. The rayfoto system will be used in transmission, an additional announcement said, and radio set owners who are interested in making their own radio picture recording apparatus may easily obtain the necessary parts for home construction at a cost of less than $100.

A great deal of interest will attend these experiments. If they prove successful, a new era in radio will follow. Picture transmission has been practicable for some time, but heretofore it has required elaborate preparation and delicate, high-priced equipment. If photographs can be transmitted into the home, the next step probably will be moving pictures. Then the dream of being able to watch and hear simultaneously important events without leaving the comfort of one's fireside will have materialized.

THE SANTA CLAUS ASSOCIATION.

The dead-letter business is never so alive as at this time of year. Letters of cheer and greeting go steadily agley, and were it not for a most charitable medium, they would never reach their appointed ends.

A benevolent group known as the Santa Claus Association intervenes at the critical moment to return the erring missives to their proper course. Through an understanding with the Government, the organization is intrusted with a vast number of letters which have been improperly addressed. In the New York City postoffice, for example, they go into the hands of some 600 clerks, who see that they are duly allotted among the members of a volunteer force of workers who, in turn, are assigned to district captains. These volunteers do a "follow-up" on each letter; reach, whenever possible, the writer, and investigate the cause of the mistaken address. Then the volunteers undertake to see that the letter reaches its proper recipient.

Last year the association handled 14,000 misdirected letters in this fashion, and, as a consequence, Christmas presents of a total value of $846,000 were delivered. Thus the volunteers of the association prove themselves worthy minions of an overburdened saint.

"GALILEO'S TOY."

It is interesting to note that "starry Galileo" did not employ all his time gazing skyward. On the contrary, according to Popular Mechanics, he could descend to earth in the most practical fashion. The great astronomer is now credited with having invented the humble forerunner of the instrument which Fahrenheit brought to perfection. Galileo's device consisted simply of a glass bulb containing air, to which was attached a glass tube that ran into a vessel filled with colored liquid. The liquid rose or fell according to the temperature; there was, however, no scale of measurement. The instrument was one of the scientific curiosities of the day, but no one apparently foresaw any future for it, and so it came to be known as "Galileo's toy."

One of the astronomer's pupils, Francisco Sagredo, eventually substituted wine for the colored fluid in the original device, and shortly thereafter a member of the faculty of the University of Padua, realizing that the "toy" had great possibilities, adapted it to the measurement of the heat of the human body. In this way, fevers could readily be detected. Henceforth the learned doctors of the day were not so inclined to mutter about "Galileo's toy."

Between 1630-40 the Grand Duke of Tuscany made still further improvements, hermetically sealing the vessel containing the liquid and partially filling the tube with alcohol. This directly paved the way for Fahrenheit's calculations which, in 1714, gave to man one of his most priceless tools—the thermometer, or measure of heat.

THE BURNETT MEMORIAL.

The proposal to erect a memorial to Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett in Central Park, New York, is meeting with unexpected opposition. What the committee in charge of the project has in mind would seem to be ideal. The plans formulated call for making in a secluded nook a bird sanctuary and children's garden to be placed around a fountain group dedicated to the woman author, to whom quiet gardens made an especial appeal. The idea is highly esthetic, almost poetic, and it has the added merit of being in accord with the underlying policy of preserving the peacefulness and reposefulness of Central Park. It has another important point greatly in its favor, inasmuch as no part of the expense will fall on the city, the committee making itself liable for the total cost.

Despite all these encouraging circumstances, some objectors to the proposed memorial have raised their voices in protest. One of them, with bitter memories of an enforced sissified boyhood, enters his protest on the ground that his mother, after reading Mrs. Burnett's most famous book, made him wear the long curls and velvet suits always associated with the real little Lord Fauntleroy. To him Park Commissioner Herrick replied, with sweet reasonableness, thus:

> I can not agree to the particular objection you make to the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." I remember reading the book as a youngster with great interest and enjoyment. It was a beautiful, wholesome piece of fiction, and if hysterical parents chose to inflict the fictional costume of Fauntleroy on their sons, I think you should blame the parents and not Mrs. Burnett.

Then comes a stickler for the high things of literature, who objects to the proposed honor to the memory of Mrs. Burnett, not because of her invention of the little lord, with his curls and velvets, but because, in his judgment, she was "never anything but a third-rate author, with about the evaluation of life of a high school sophomore." Regarding that categorical and dogmatic condemnation, it is possible that opinions may vary widely. It might be urged, also, that it is not always feasible to measure literary merit in terms of pure mathematics. Macaulay tried that method sometimes, and, when he did, invariably failed. Furthermore, if it is only to litterateurs of the first magnitude that memorials are to be erected, then the memorials will be, like the proverbial angels' visits, few and far between.

THE BROOKINGS INSTITUTION.

Robert S. Brookings, founder of the Institute of Economics, the Institute for Government Research and the Robert Brookings Graduate School of Economics and Government, has announced the creation of the Brookings Institution, with which the above institutions will be amalgamated, as a research and training center in the humanistic sciences. An endowment of several million dollars has been secured, and plans are afoot for the construction in Washington of a group of buildings in which to house the new institution.

The Brookings Institution will be unique. It will function as a post-postgraduate school, taking students who already have earned their Ph. D.'s in recognized graduate colleges and giving them the opportunity of two or three years' additional research activity. In addition, the institution will be equipped to carry out comprehensive and interrelated research programs and it is expected that such researches will promote a greater realism in economic, social and political thought as well as react favorably in connection with public affairs. A third function the Brookings Institution will fulfill is the provision of quarters for visiting students who come to Washington to take advantage of the vast store of important data obtainable only at the seat of Government.

The social sciences still are in infancy as compared with others. Rapid strides in their research have been made since they first were considered to lie in the scientific classification, but the field is as yet largely unexplored. The Brookings Institution probably will sweep swiftly to the front in leadership in this branch of intellectual activity. An ample income already is assured the new institution. Adequate quarters, attractive and utilitarian, with individual offices, conference, statistical and seminar rooms, an assembly hall and an ample library will be provided. The Brookings Institution should soon occupy an important place in the Nation's intellectual life.

Richmond Times Dispatch: In China they are shooting girls with bobbed hair. In this country that would ruin the sweetheart crop.

Graphic Sermon.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: While an Arkansas minister was preaching on hell the building caught fire and was burned to the ground. The insurance companies may now insist on a clause in the policy regulating the heat of the sermons.

Beware Its Effect.

Buffalo Courier Express: As a balance of power in the Senate, the Progressive bloc seems about to prove that the tail can wag the dog.

The Mischievous House.

Louisville Courier Journal: So far the House has taken a delight in crossing the wishes of the President and Secretary Mellon. The representatives vote to repeal the excise taxes on automobiles, which the Administration opposed, and against eliminating the Federal inheritance tax, which the Administration favored. The House has earned the thanks of the automobile manufacturers, dealers and buyers, but not of persons who object to confiscation of property under the guise of taxation.

Competitive Building.

Brooklyn Citizen: The London Times in an editorial on the Coolidge naval proposals asserts that the Government of the United States "is now definitely embarked on an armament program that is in fact competitive, is by implication provocative and is at least designed partly with the object of making a strong impression on British public opinion." The United States should have a navy equal to the most powerful navy in the world, as she is entitled to under the terms of the Washington Limitation Treaty. This she must have in self-protection. This she wants and nothing more. And this she will have, objections of our friends in Europe to the contrary notwithstanding.

Convictions

By ROBERT QUILLEN

Some time ago I talked with a clergyman who was ambitious to become an author. "If you desire an easy success," I said, "write a book about your job. Express your honest opinion of it and of the people you serve. Just cut loose and spill the beans, regardless of what happens."

The clergyman laughed and said: "If I should do that, I wouldn't have any job when the book appeared."

Before condemning him, study your own case. If you are an average man, your convictions are the kind best suited to your immediate welfare. They enable you to keep the friends you have and the job you have and the social position you have, and you couldn't change them without losing something of importance. Is it just a coincidence that your convictions happen to be so nicely suited to your interests, or were they formed in some measure by expediency?

The truth of the matter is that almost every man's opinions are influenced in some measure by his need of bread and butter.

This does not mean that men are cravens or hypocrites. It means simply that it is man's nature to favor the things that benefit him and oppose the things that injure him.

It is not unmanly to live in Rome as the Romans do. To go about offending people and shattering popular idols in an effort to convince yourself that you are captain of your soul is a business both childish and unprofitable. It doesn't demonstrate your courage, but only your bad manners. The idol-smasher is no more dignified and no more worthy of respect than a gust of wind or a boy with a slingshot.

To a large extent we are products of childhood environment, but the convictions we have formed since reaching maturity are products of our need. We believe the things we wish to believe, and we wish to believe the thing that will do us the most good.

If I am a rich man of unusual intelligence, I believe the few should rule by right of their superiority. If I am a poor man with no prospects, I believe in a new distribution of wealth.

Convictions are not products of reason, but of selfishness. All of us favor the system under which we prosper, and I have yet to find a man whose "principles," if placed in practice, would benefit others at his expense.

Convictions, however sincere, must be taken with a grain of salt. They are a fence to protect one's vine and fig tree, or a scaling ladder to enter another man's garden.

If that Jesse James statue establishes a precedent, it might be well for Chicago to buy her bronze before the price goes up.

One way to be contented in matrimony is to reflect that other women also look a fright before making up.

FLOOD CONTROL.

In a way it's a pity that the Mississippi is no longer the boundary between us and the French or the Spaniards, for if the old frontier still held, the work needed along the river would become a matter of national defense, to be undertaken at any cost with general public approval, comments the Survey Graphic. As it is today, the Mississippi and its floods must be thrown into the boiling pot of river and harbor appropriations and compete with the plans of those who would further reduce taxes while we get on with paying for the war.

It would be a relatively cheap thing to meet only the pressing needs of the lower Mississippi through building more and better levees and opening some emergency spillways, a costly thing to do what ought to be done—save our waterpower, our dwindling forests and our top-soil while holding back the floods. Yet in the long run the expensive plan will be the cheaper. Gifford Pinchot urged in Survey Graphic for July that "Government storage reservoirs, developing electricity to be sold by the Government for distribution by others, will pay the bill." In this issue, Prof. J. Russell Smith put forward a plan for controlled flooding of the bottom lands which would deposit a fertilizing silt worth, he estimates, a quarter of a billion dollars a year through increased yield of food and cotton. This is not the dream of a college professor sitting pretty among his books. It has been done successfully on a small scale in Louisiana, nature did it on a great scale along the Nile from before the time of the Pharaohs, and in Mesopotamia it is older than Nebuchadnezzar. River and harbor work was paid in America.

Gen. Jadwin, chief of the Army Engineer Corps, recently told the Ohio Valley Improvement Association that $160,000,000 invested in harbors and connecting channels of the Great Lakes had paid 100 per cent dividends, chiefly in reduced freight rates. The Ohio River improvement returned a net saving of $25,000,000 in transportation costs in one year, the Monongahela has paid its improvement bill and earned a surplus of $100,000,000 in 27 years. That is good business for the Nation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Why Not Two Markets?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why not have two markets? Satisfy both parties. Our city is large enough, or it will be large enough in a few years.

J. N. BRADLEY.

Don't Forget the Birds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am glad to note off and on during the winter the pleas made for feeding the birds. A few crumbs saved from the table, slipped into a lunch bag, provide a good meal for the pigeons, sparrows and other feathered friends. On bleak winter days the birds have a hard time rustling for food on the frozen sod amid empty benches. Should we desert them now? Pick out some street or park corner where they seem especially to gather for foraging and spread a little daily treat.

Especially during Christmas week, remember not only the birds, but take the opportunity to feed or help some homeless cat or dog or neglected horse or farm animal; and, of course, it is hoped there is not one who has not already provided for the happiness of some wistful child of the poor or forlorn old person.

VIRGINIA W. SARGENT.

The Insanity Plea.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While making laws would it not be well if Congress and the legislatures of the several States would enact one regulating pleas of insanity in criminal cases? The recent Los Angeles crime has startled the world, yet the chances are insanity will be set up as a defense, the foundation being already laid by a statement that his mother was at one time a patient in an asylum. The Remus case in Cincinnati is an excellent precedent. If confinement in a penitentiary for life were made the punishment in cases where insanity is proved in a murder trial we would hear less of the insanity dodge.

The crime wave will not be stamped out until we remodel our judicial system. Juries composed of persons mentally qualified to judge of testimony can not be obtained when cases are permitted to drag through weary weeks. Men of the proper qualifications for jury duty can not afford to be away from their business for such lengthy trials, hence they shun jury duty. The courts are to blame for permitting cases thus to drag. ARTHUR G. WALKER.

How to Banish Starlings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thursday evening, toward dusk, I noticed a man on the lawn of the District Building playing a strong light upon the upper ledge for the purpose of scaring away the starlings that come there to roost every evening. The brilliant lights were left shining on the building at 6:30 and the starlings simply would not move, but went to sleep in the light. Throwing a light on them at that distance is like throwing water on a duck.

The starlings are getting worse than the English sparrow in Washington. There is one way to get them off of the District Building. It should not be very difficult to place about ten rat traps on the ledge at certain intervals. When the birds come to roost one or two will probably get caught in the traps, which will cause the free birds to leave. If the starlings that are caught are left there for a day or two it will certainly scare the others away.

The starling does not seem to be of any particular value to the world, except that he can be tamed and can mock many of the songs of other birds.

Jasperson-Wrenn Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Katherine Thomson Wrenn, daughter of Mrs. Harry Lee Wrenn, to Lieut. Robert Edward Jasperson, U. S. N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Jasperson, of Milwaukee, took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Scott Smith officiating. The church was decorated with evergreens and lilies, and the altar was lighted with tall cathedral candles.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Capt. Theodore Wrenn, U. S. A. and she wore a gown of heavy white satin fashioned along semiperiod lines, the bodice tight fitting with long sleeves, and the skirt shorter in front than in back, falling into two long points on either side. A court train of satin and tulle hung from the shoulders and the tulle veil was held in place by a cap of rose point lace. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. S. Hallock du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., was matron of honor for her sister and wore a gown of banana color chiffon, designed with a low waist line and a full skirt longer in back than in front. She wore a hat of golden brown velvet faced with a lighter shade and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and sweet peas. Miss Mary Selden was the maid of honor and wore a costume like that of Mrs. du Pont. The bridesmaids were Miss Adelaide Douglass, Miss Norvell Munford and Miss Welhelmina du Pont, who wore frocks fashioned like those of the other attendants in a champagne rose chiffon. They wore brown velvet hats faced with lighter satin, and carried roses and sweet peas.

Lieut. Joseph W. Mullally was the best man and the ushers were Lieut. Dew W. Eberle, Lieut. Rutledge Tompkins, Lieut. Geoffrey Sage, Lieut. Nicholas Van Bergen, Lieut. Carl Sanders, Lieut. Maurice Browder, Lieut. Hillyer Gearing, Lieut. Alex M. Loker, and Lieut. Thomas Darden, jr.

A small reception followed at the home of the bride's mother, after which Lieut. and Mrs. Jasperson departed for their wedding trip, the latter wearing a black broadcloth ensemble, trimmed with astrakhan fur, and a small black hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bradley, of San Francisco, who have been here for several days, will go to New York today, and from there will return to California.

Miss Mary Paxton Macatee and Miss Gertude Macatee have returned from college and are passing the holidays with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry C. Macatee.

Yesterday they entertained at lunch-

Formal Attire for Christmas Social Events

Even in the midst of scenes of gayeties, a man's formal attire must be as tastefully correct. There is no compromise with correctness; social events after six demand tuxedos or tail coats. Accessories, too, must be in complete accord.

Tuxedos, $45 to $65.
Full Dress Suits, $70.
Vests, $8 to $15.

A Note to "Last Minute" Christmas Shoppers

A man truly appreciates anything that adds to the perfection of his evening attire. And you don't have to worry about getting "right" accessories if you shop in the New Men's Store.

Hose, $1.50 to $3.
Ties, $1 to $2.

At the 9 o'clock mass the "Missa Regina Pacis (Fabrizi) will be repeated with the offertorium "Tui Sunt Coeli," Gregorian, and "Adeste Fiddeles." At the benediction following the office of compline at 3:30 p. m., "O Salutaris Hostia" (Montani); "Tantum Ergo" (Verdussen), and Christmas carols will be sung.

Saint Rose's Technical School.

Mass will be celebrated at midnight by Mgr. George Leech. The choir composed of the students of the school, which has been trained by Jennie Glennan, will, for the first time, sing the Gregorian "Missa di Angelis," the Proper of the First Mass of Christmas, by Tozer, with "Adeste Fideles" at offertory and Christmas carols before and after mass. They will be accompanied on the organ by Miss Martin, one of the students of the school.

St. Peter's.

At midnight mass the music will be furnished by two choirs. The mixed choir of 40 voices, under the direction of the organist, Christopher S. WRC WILL BROADCAST CHRISTMAS SERVICES

St. Paul Boy's Choir Will Sing in Program by Radio at Noon Today.

MIDNIGHT MASS TONIGHT

Christmas Eve wil be ushered in on the radio long before twilight. There will be a midday Christmas service from St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The service will be participated in by the St. Paul's Chapel Boys Choir, under the direction of Edmund Jacques, organist and choirmaster of the church. During the service a brief address will be delivered by the vicar, the Rev. J. P McComas. Preceding this program the annual carol service of the employes of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will be broadcast at noon from the rotunda of the building at 195 Broadway, through WRC and a large hookup of red network stations.

The weekly Bible talk will be given at 6:30 o'clock by Dr. Charles B. Campbell, of Calvary Methodist Men's Class, under the auspices of the Organized Bible Class Association.

The Women's University Glee Club of New York, under the direction of Gerald Reynolds, will be heard with the New York Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Walter Damrosch, in an RCA Christmas program, which will be broadcast through WRC at 8 o'clock tonight.

In this eighth program in the new series of RCA Hours, the opening number played by the New York Symphony Orchestra will be "There Were Shepherds in the Fields Abiding," taken from Georg Friedrich Handel's great oratorio, "The Messiah."

The Women's Glee Club will be heard in three old carols. "Stille Nacht," a German carol, ill be the first of these; another will be "The Holy Well," a traditional English carol whose origin is lost in antiquity; the third carol, "The Child Jesus and the Infant St. John," is an old Flemish song which will be sung in an English version.

Victor Herbert's musical extravaganza, "Babes in Toyland," will be presented as the feature of the Philco Hour at 9 o'clock.

Through WRC and the red network tonight at 10:30 o'clock, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches, will lead what is described as "a nation-wide carol song service uniting millions in their homes and churches." The broadcast will continue until 12:05 o'clock Christmas morning.

Dr. Cadman, one of the best known religious speakers on the air, will not only give a short address during the service but will make explanation of the music and themes used in many of the carols to be sung. The musical service itself will be under the direction of Channing Lefebvre, organist of the historic old Trinity Church, New York, assisted by well-known soloists and an impressive choir.

The solemn high mass to be celebrated at midnight tonight in the Shrine of the Sacred Heart in this city will be broadcast by Station WRC, Washington, and WJZ, New York. A choir of 35 voices, assisted by a mixed quartet, will provide the singing during the mass. The Right Rev. P. C. Gavan, rector of the Sacred Heart Church, will officiate at the mass, assisted by other priests. This service will last for about two hours.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau. Washington, Friday, Dec. 23—8 p. m.

A disturbance of slight intensity is central off the Maine coast, Eastport, 29.74 inches, and pressure is relatively low on the middle and north Pacific coast. Pressure has fallen during the last 12 hours over the Plains States and the eastern Rocky Mountain region. High pressure prevails over the Ohio, and middle and upper Mississippi Valleys, and the upper Lake region, Charles City, Iowa, 30.44 inches, with extensions southeastward to West Virginia and southwestward to Texas. Pressure is also high over the Plateau. During the last 24 hours light snows have occurred in the lower Lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley, and at scattered points in the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region, while rains have occurred on the north Pacific coast. Temperatures have fallen in northern New York and the interior of New England, and in southern Utah. Elsewhere changes have been unimportant.

The outlook is for fair weather on Saturday, and increasing cloudiness on Sunday, followed by rain in the western lower Lake region and the Ohio Valley. Temperature changes will be unimportant.

Frenchmen Will Fly From Bolivia to U. S.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department was advised yesterday by Legation at La Paz, Bolivia, that the French aviators, Costes and Lebrix, who arrived there Wednesday in the biplane Nungesser-Coli would hop off December 28 for Lima, Peru, and after visiting Quito, Bogota, and Panama, would fly to Washington via New Orleans.

They hope to reach Washington January 30, spend a week here and fly on to New York.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH RITES AT MIDNIGHT TO BE ELABORATE

CANDLES ARE TO LIGHT MEDIEVAL FESTIVAL

Solemn Mass at St. Agnes' to Start on the Stroke of 12; Bishop to Speak.

Midnight Christmas services will be held in Episcopal churches throughout the city tonight, marked by celebration of the Holy Communion, and preceded by carol singing in many of the churches.

At 10:30 o'clock tonight carols will be played by Thomas G. Spence on the memorial chimes of the Epiphany Episcopal Church. The Epiphany Choir will sing Hawley's Christmas cantata, "The Christ Child," at 11 p. m., and at 12 communion service will be held.

The Rev. Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector of the church, will again administer communion at 8 and 11 o'clock Christmas morning, delivering a sermon at the later service. The Young People's Society will meet at 6 o'clock, and the choir will sing Christmas carols at 8.

Old English candle light services will be held at the Church of the Ascension at 1 o'clock tonight, when carols will be sung. The church will be lighted with hundreds of candles, and each choir member will carry a candle in the procession.

Immediately following will be the midnight communion service, with an address by the rector on "The Christmas Spirit." The festival is patterned after the Medieval Christmas Eve services of the Church of England.

At midnight there will be communion at the Church of the Transfiguration, Gallatin street northwest. Services will be held at 7:30 and 11 o'clock Christmas morning. The usual church school will be held at 9:30. A special program of Christmas music will be presented at midnight and 11 o'clock.

St. Agnes' Church will celebrate its usual Solemn Festival Mass tonight, beginning on the stroke of midnight. The Rev. V. O. Anderson will conduct the services.

Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St Margaret's Church, will be the celebrant of the Holy Eucharist at 12 tonight at St. Margaret's. He will be assisted by the Rev. Robert Shores, the Rev. H. Allan Griffith and the Rev. W. K. Wright.

Evensong and Carols.

Christmas morning there will be celebration of the Holy Communion at 9:30, and morning prayer, communion and sermon at 11 o'clock.

Evensong will be held at the church at 4 o'clock this afternoon, followed by singing of Christmas carols around the Christmas tree in the Sunday school room.

There will be celebrations of the Holy Communion in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral at 7:30, 9 and 11 o'clock tomorrow. There will be morning prayer and litany at 10 o'clock, and evensong and carol singing at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Bishop James E. Freeman will give a short address at the evensong services.

Christmas services at St. Mark's Church will begin at 11:30 o'clock tonight, with the celebration of communion and a special musical program by the church choir. At the 11 o'clock morning service Christmas, the Rev. William H. Pettus will officiate.

Yuletide carols, sung by the children, will usher Christmas into the Pinkney Memorial Church, of Hyattsville, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be a midnight service, at which the Rev. Clyde Brown, rector, will preside.

Midnight Mass to Usher in Christmas for Catholics

Franciscan Monastery, St. Patrick's, St. Matthew's, Shrine of the Sacred Heart, St. Dominic's and St. Mary's to Have Eleborate Services.

The birth of the Saviour will be commemorated in the Catholic churches of the Capital tonight with the celebration of midnight mass.

At the Franciscan Monastery, the most popular rendezvous of local Catholics for the midnight service, the Rev Father Bernard will celebrate the mass with the Rev. Father Paschal as deacon and the Rev. Father Frederic as subdeacon.

In the downtown section of the Capital, St. Patrick's and St. Mary's churches draw the crowds. At the former church, midnight mass will be celebrated by the Rev. J. K. Cartwright, with the Rev. J. J. Shehan as deacon and the Rev. F. J. Shea, as subdeacon.

At the latter church, the Rev. C. J. Trinkaus will be celebrant, the Rev. C. T. Jordan, deacon, and the Rev. Claud Vogel subdeacon.

At St. Dominic's Church, the Rev. Walter Scanlon, prior, will celebrate midnight mass with the Rev. John A. Cowan, O. P., as deacon, and the Rev J. J. Sullivan as subdeacon. The sermon will be by the Very Rev. G. J. Kennedy, and the services will be supervised by the Rev. William O'Connell, O P.

At the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Mgr. P. C Gavan will celebrate midnight mass and preach. The Rev J. M. Morab will assist as deacon and the Rev. Thomas Cunningham will be subdeacon.

BISHOP W. J. WELLS TO PREACH SERMON

Charlotte, N. C., Minister to Speak at John Wesley A. M. E. Church Tomorrow.

Bishop W. J. Wells, of Charlotte, N C. will preach the sermon at the John Wesley A. M. E. church tomorrow at 11 o'clock At the annual Christmas services in the morning the pastor, the Rev. H. T. Medford, will preach the sermon.

The pastors of the following churches will preach Christmas services: Second and Third Baptist, Lincoln Congregational Temple, Peoples Congregational Temple and the Seventh Church of Christ.

The Union Interdenominational Church service for colored persons will be held in the Metropolitan Baptist Church at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning Pastors and leaders of colored churches will be present.

The Christmas morning early service will be held at 5 o'clock at the Shiloh Baptist Church, Ninth and P streets northwest, and will consist of a sermon by the Rev. J. Milton Waldron, and the singing of carols by choir and congregation. Dr. Waldron will preach on "Lessons From the Birth of Christ" at 11 o'clock, and both the junior and senior choirs will sing. At the 6 o'clock evening service the Christian Endeavor Society will hold special exercises in memory of the birth of the Saviour, and at 8 o'clock the junior and senior choirs and male quartet will render a musical program.

TAMMANY OPPOSES MEETING IN DETROIT

Chicago Also Vetoed as the Convention City; Cleveland Seen in the Lead.

New York, Dec. 23.—On the ground that the city is too wet and too near the Canadian border, Tammany is opposing the choice of Detroit as the home of the Democratic national convention in 1928. Chicago also has been vetoed on similar grounds, the local organization letting it be understood that any other city in the United States having adequate accommodations will be satisfactory.

The objections to Detroit and Chicago are sponsored by those promoting the campaign on behalf of Gov. Smith.

If Tammany succeeds in blocking Detroit, three principal cities will be left in the race—Cleveland, Miami and San Francisco. While the $250,000 offer of San Francisco is attractive, Cleveland seems to have the edge just at present.

One of the factors said to be operating in favor of Miami is that many Democrats of national prominence have followed the lead of James M. Cox and William Jennings Bryan, in investing there, and are therefore interested in doing whatever will tend to promote Miami prosperity.

Theosophy School to Meet.

The theosophy school of the United Lodge of Theosophists will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in room 709, the Hill Building, and a study class will convene at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening. On Thursday at 8:15 o'clock, "Divine Incarnations" will be the subject of a public lecture.

Senator to Speak at Church Dinner.

Senator Guy D. Goff, of West Virginia, will be the speaker at the dinner given by the men of the local Episcopal churches in honor of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, in the City Club, January 23 at 6:30 o'clock.

Missioner to Speak at Arcadia Hall.

"Our Future Amid Giant Suns," is the subject of the Christmas sermon to be given by the Rev. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of the Washington Missionary College, at the Arcadia auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

OLD GEORGETOWN HOLDS SERVICE AT LIVING TREE

CHILDREN JOIN IN SONGS

Massed about a living Christmas tree in Montrose Park—a tree that fairly glittered with lights and crystals of many hues—500 residents of old Georgetown last night forgot the intense cold for more than an hour, while they raised their voices in songs and carols of the Yule season.

Strains of "Good King Wenceslas" and "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," carried through the park, as a chorus of children's voices mingled with those of their elders. Words of the songs were projected on a silver screen, while William T. Pierson led in the singing.

Georgetown has preserved its individual identity through the years, despite the acts of Congress merging it politically with the city of Washington, Richard V. Oulahan, dean of Washington newspaper correspondents, told the celebrants, in the only address of the evening.

Oulahan recalled that Georgetown was incorporated on a Christmas Day, away back in 1789. In the Yule seasons which followed planters from nearby Maryland and Virginia brought their families to the little settlement for holiday merriment, he said.

"The community," he said, "is a segment of a great and growing metropolis, but able to retain the habiliments and traditions of the past, for which overcrowded cities sigh and never regain. While we tell the world we live in Washington, we tell Washington we live in Georgetown."

Prior to the exercises a program of Christmas music was given by a double brass quartet from the Army Band, and later Mrs. William T. Pierson sang "Cantique de Noel." The Georgetown Citizens Association, sponsor of the celebration, was represented by Dean Acheson, who introduced Mr. Oulahan, and J. B. Wyckoff, chairman of arrangements. The Jackson School supplied a chorus of children' voices.

General Death Rate Lowest on Record

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The general death rate in the industrial population of the United States and Canada for 1927 will be the lowest ever recorded, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. announced today.

Although the year will show increases in drownings, auto fatalities, suicides and homicides, the company said, marked progress has been made in reducing deaths from influenza, pneumonia and tuberculosis.

The predictions are based on the company's statistics of its more than 18,000,000 industrial policy holders, who constitute a large cross-section of the population of the two countries.

AIR BOMBS FINALLY DESTROY BRIDGE

an invaluable lesson to aviation officials who witnessed the bombings. High ranking air corps officers said the army today learned more about the effectiveness of modern aerial bombing than at any time since the World War.

A final aerial bombardment is expected to be staged tomorrow morning when the few remaining bombs will be dropped. Most of the planes are expected to return to their base at Langley Field for the Christmas holidays.

Tomorrow a battery of artillery guns from Fort Bragg will be turned toward the bridge ruins and their bombardment is expected to continue through next week.

Accuracy Was Good, Says Davison.

(By Associated Press.)

The bombing of the Feedee River bridge by Army aviators has, in the opinion of Assistan Secretary F. Trubee Davison, demonstrated the effectiveness of the Army's bombardment planes, and furnished the Air Corps with much valuable information.

"It was shown," he said on returning to Washington from Albermarle by plane yesterday, "that it is possible for bombardment planes, flying a mile and a half above their target to destroy a reinforced concrete bridge with 1,100-pound bombs, and the limitations of smaller types of missiles were proved.

"The accuracy was good. In fact, it was much better than I had anticipated. A field artillery officer, who is a member of the board observing the effects of this bombing, told me that an examination of the pattern made by the whole of the bombs dropped for the day showed that the probable error was very similar to that for large caliber guns. * * *

"This is the first time we have used a target of this typ in bombing practice. I saw a 600-pound bomb hit it which left a crater in the concrete 5 or 6 feet wide and 30 feet long, but did not destroy the structure. This is a very valuable lesson for the Air Corps. We now know that it will take bombs 1,100 pounds in weight or larger for use against reinforced concrete bridges."

Fauntleroy Memorial Protested by Victim

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—In the opinion of John Nicholas Beffel, author of headlines for a newspaper, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," caused the lives of thousands of little American boys to be blighted. Beffel has written a letter of protest to the city authorities against a proposed memorial in Central Park to Frances Hodgson Burnett. For five and one-half years of his life Beffel had to wear curls. Such luckless youngsters as he was, he writes, have been assailed with such epithets as "girl-boy," and often have been targets for mud and vegetables.

CHRISTMAS, TOPIC IN EVERY CAPITAL PULPIT TOMORROW

Dr. Pierce Will Be Heard Once More in First Congregational Edifice.

DR. SIZOO WILL PREACH ON DAYS IN BETHLEHEM

Yule Feast to Be Commemorated at Midnight in Grace Lutheran Church.

Christmas and the great spiritual feast which it represents will be the chief topic of the sermons tomorrow by the pastors of the Protestant churches in Washington. Special Christmas programs and entertainments have been arranged in many of the churches.

The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, will occupy the pulpit tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, when for the first time in eighteen months the First Church will hold services in the edifice at Tenth and G streets northwest, from which it was forced by the need of repairs.

Special Christmas services at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will be celebrated at 11 and 8 o'clock. The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor, at 11 o'clock will preach on "God's Christmas Message," and in the evening at 8 o'clock he will speak on "Days in Bethlehem, the Birthplace of Christ the King."

At Unitarian Church.

Concluding his series of special lecture sermons, the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church, will preach on "The Supreme Witness of the Light" at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow morning. The celebration will be augmented by choral singing of Christmas carols.

A special Christmas service will be held at the Metropolitan Baptist Church at 10 o'clock at which the Rev. W. H. Jernagin, pastor, will preach.

The Gospel and the Manger will be the topic of the sermon by the Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, at the services tomorrow morning and evening.

At 6 o'clock tomorrow morning, the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor of the Georgetown Lutheran Church, will conduct the customary services.

A Christmas musicale service will be presented by the Church of the Covenant, the Rev. Charles Wood, pastor, at the annual Yuletide service. Dr. Wood will preside at the other principal ceremonies throughout the day.

Will Resume Pulpit.

Resuming the pulpit, the Rev. Harry L. Collier, pastor of the Full Gospel Assembly, will preside at the services tomorrow morning. In the evening the Christmas carol program will be repeated.

Christmas will also be commemorated at the Grace Lutheran Church, Ninth and Upshur streets northwest, the Grace Reform Church, the Centennial Baptist Church, the Terminal Y. M. C. A., by the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor of Georgetown Lutheran Church.

Yuletide services will be held at the chapel of the First Congregational Church, the celebration of which will begin at midnight and conclude late Sunday morning.

"Why Christmas," will be the question answered in the sermon of the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, pastor of the First Universalist Church at the services in the Ambassador Theater at 11 o'clock.

MELLON FINDS STEEL IS NOT BEING DUMPED

Imports From Germany Come In Legally, Under Tariff Act, Secretary Says.

Present importations of steel products from Germany are not in violation of the antidumping provisions of the tariff act, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon ruled yesterday. The Secretary has just completed extended investigation and consideration of the evidence.

The Secretary said, however, that the question was a very close one, and that the entire situation would continue to be carefully watched by the Treasury Department so that should conditions change, the necessary steps might be taken at once to prevent American industry from being subjected to unfair competition, within the meaning of the antidumping section of the emergency tariff act.

Under that section, the Secretary of the Treasury has authority to impose prohibitive customs duties on foreign-made products which are imported into the United States at less than their fair home market value. Secretary Mellon started the investigation into the importation of German steel products some time ago, when it was reported to him by New York customs appraisers that such importations were being made under declarations of smaller values than those generally prevailing in Germany.

Boom for Kellogg Started in St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A movement to boom Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State and former Ambassador to England, for the Presidency, has been started in St. Paul, his home city.

An open meeting to boost Secretary Kellogg for the nomination at the Republican convention next year is to be called, according to Leavitt Corning, I E. Gottlieb and Ed Slater, sponsors of the movement. They said their plans have not been broached to Secretary Kellogg.

Judge Orders Sermon; Forbids Any to Depart

Savannah, Tenn., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Surveying his courtroom crowded to capacity for a liquor trial, Justice of the Peace Mitchell ordered the doors of the room closed and announced:

"I see a great many people here today who have not attended church in the past five years. We will now hold church services and anyone attempting to leave the courtroom will be cited for contempt."

A search by the sheriff for a minister to conduct the services was unavailing until the Rev. Henry Blount, "Raiding Parson," who had made the arrests in the case on trial, showed up. He was pressed into service, and discarding his badge and side arms, delivered a sermon on the evils of dealing in and consuming bootleg liquor, after which the doors were opened and the hearing proceeded.

Mummies in Gold Coffin At a Guatemalan Mine

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A solid gold coffin, inlaid with copper, containing two mummies in a wonderful state of preservation, has been found at the Zaculen mines, near Huahuetenango. News received here concerning the find says that the coffin represents a marvelous specimen of the Mayaouiche art.

The find, showing a new aspect of the art and science which flourished in Central America centuries ago has prompted the Geographical and Historical Society to begin preparations for a trip to the mine, so that their members may see what is described as an archeological jewel.

The mummies themselves are causing speculation and it is believed that studies will be made to find what embalming fluid was used to perm!* the bodies to resist the deteriorating action of the centuries which have elapsed since they were laid to rest in the days which preceded Columbus' trip to discovery.

ALEXANDRIA POST OF LEGION ERECTS COMMUNITY TREE

Decorated With Hundreds of Bulbs, It Lights Up Street for a Block.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
124 N. Patrick St., Alexandria, Va.

Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, erected its community Christmas tree yesterday afternoon in the center of Washington street, between Prince and Duke streets. The tree is decorated with tiny incandescent lights, and exercises will be held at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon at which Christmas carols will be sung by several hundred school children under the direction of Miss Christine Munoz, director of music in the public schools.

The exercises will be under the direction of the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Mount Vernon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Members of the American Legion Auxiliary will attend and give assistance in carrying out the program.

The huge tree was donated by the Alexandria Water Co., and was cut from their property at Barcroft. It will be illuminated every night during the holiday season.

The public schools closed yesterday afternoon for the Christmas holidays, special Christmas programs having been put on by four of the schools, at which the singing of Christmas carols featured the exercises. The pupils of Jefferson School held their celebration at 1 o'clock; West End School at 1:30; the High School at 2 o'clock, and the Parker-Gray School at 2:30 o'clock. The singing was under the direction of Miss Christine Munoz, director of music in the public schools. The celebrations at Washington and Lee Schools were held on Wednesday.

The Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, the Episcopal High School, St. Agnes Episcopal School for Girls, St. Mary's Academy, Xaverian Brothers School, and St. Mary's Parochial School closed for the holidays during the past week. The public schools will reopen for study on January 3.

The body of Mrs. Bettie Bernard Hansborough, who died on Thursday at the home of her son, Clarence E Hansborough, in Del Ray, will be sent this morning from Wheatley's chapel to Brandy, Culpeper County, where funeral services will be held in the Episcopal Church, and burial will be in the family lot at Stevensburg, Va.

The funeral of George W. Soule, who died on Wednesday, took place yesterday from St. Mary's Catholic Church Services were conducted by the Rev. L. P. Kelly, assistant pastor. Burial was in Bethel Cemetery, and pallbearers were W. L. Reed, W. R. Matthews, J. A. Schuerger, R. L. Willoughby, C. E. Watkins and C. N. Hildebrand, all employes of the Capital Traction Co., where the deceased was employed.

Sands & Co., whose store is located at 1320 Prince street, notified the police yesterday that a garage located in the rear of their store, in the 200 block South West street, was broken into the night before and 20 chickens stolen.

Representatives of the various charitable organizations in the city held a meeting last night at the George Mason Hotel to have a final check-up on the names of those in the city to be sent Christmas baskets, and thus prevent duplication.

LUNG PUMPING KEEPS GIRL ALIVE 33 DAYS

Oconto, Nebr., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A stubborn fight against death has been waged here for the past 33 days by the relatives and friends of Miss Alma Overgard, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Overgard. They have kept life in the girl's body by the continual use of artificial respiration. About five weeks ago the girl was stricken with paralysis. Her lungs apparently suffered under the strain and she breathed only with difficulty.

Under direction of their physician the parents started artificial respiration. Forcing air in and out of the weakened lungs, the relatives and friends have worked day and night since.

The girl is able to talk to those assisting her and she has eaten her meals regularly. An attempt to substitute a pulmotor was unsuccessful.

Widow of Maurice Delays Remarriage

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The shadow of Maurice Mouvet, dancer who died seven months ago, glided today between his young widow and the man she had chosen as her new partner in both dancing and marriage.

Mrs. Eleanor Ambrose Maurice Mouvet, wife of Maurice, and Charles Sabin, her present dancing mate, announced that they will not use, for the present at least, the marriage license that they obtained here Wednesday. Cabled protests from the Mouvet family in France asking that the wedding be deferred at least six months and the feelings of Sabin's parents were responsible for the postponement.

RUSSIA TO PUNISH VIOLENCE IN CHINA; BRITAIN IS BLAMED

Tchitcherin Declares Executions in Canton Will Not Be Condoned.

4 CHINESE PUT TO DEATH IN HANKOW AS REDS

Moscow, Russia, Dec., 23 (A.P.).—Executions of Soviet representatives and citizens in Canton can not be left unpunished, George Tchitcherin, Soviet foreign commissar, asserts in a statement issued today. He holds the British Government responsible for acts of violence.

Tchitcherin declares that while the Soviet is unalterably determined to pursue its policy of peace as proclaimed in its disarmament pronouncement at Geneva, the Soviet is nevertheless prepared for the worst and will not be caught unawares.

He states unequivocally that events in South China can not be left unpunished and the Soviet government therefore reserves the right to take all the measures it considers imperative in connection with the "sanguinary outrages" there.

England "Moving Power."

Of the British government, the statement says: "English imperialist reaction must be recognized as the chief moving power responsible for Cantonese bloodshed and murder perpetrated on Soviet citizens. Not alone the Chinese generals operating in Canton appear responsible for these crimes but also the other powers of the world which are hostile to Soviet Russia."

The Russian Far Eastern Shipping Agency announced cancellation of its steamship services to all Chinese ports.

Protest meetings against the execution of Soviet citizens in Canton when the Communist movement was crushed there by a veritable reign of terror, have been held in Moscow, Leningrad and a number of Siberian cities.

Four Chinese Executed.

Hankow, China, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Four Chinese Communists were executed here last night. One was said to have been the leader of the recent red uprising in Tungshan, 30 miles from Hankow, a fortnight ago. In the uprising he captured the city and established a peasants' government, killing numerous Tungshan gentry and merchants.

Twelve Russian women who were arrested recently have been released, but a number of Russian men are still being held.

The agent of the Russian Dahl Bank at Hankow was brought to army headquarters and tried. The decision of the tribunal was not announced. It is generally believed that he and two other Russians who were brought in handcuffed to him will be executed.

Gen Pei Chung-Chi, former defense commissioner of Shanghai, arrived in Hankow, accompanied by a bodyguard of 500. He has taken up residence here and this has resulted in a noticeable uneasiness among the Chinese population, who fear that he is planning a movement against the Nanking Nationalists. This would result in renewed disorders in the Wuhan cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang.

Gen. Hu Tsung-Tu, Hankow garrison commander, has taken possession of the recently raided Soviet consulate and established his residence in it.

Japan Sends Marines.

Shanghai, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The Japanese cruiser Nagara is expected at Tsingtao, former German port in the province of Shantung. The cruiser carries 200 Japanese marines to augment the Japanese forces now there.

The action of the Japanese authorities in sending reinforcemnts is the result of the recent slow advance of Nanking Nationalists northward into southern Shantung, again endangering the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu Railway, which, it is believed here, the Japanese were determined not to permit.

Tsinanfu reports state that disorders are increasing as a result of the southerners' advance coupled with acute famine conditions. As a result of the uncertainties in Shantung, the United States destroyer Truxton has sailed from Shanghai for Tsingtao to observe conditions.

INGRATITUDE

Christ, Himself, deeply felt a wound from the sharp-edged knife of ingratitude. While on one of His journeys, the Scripture tells us, He was approached by ten lepers, who sought cures from their disease. Christ healed them and ordered they show themselves to the authorities. After being pronounced cured, nine lepers went their ways, but one returned to offer thanksgiving to Christ. And Christ inquired of him, "Where are the other nine?"

All of us have felt the knife of ingratitude at some time or another. Yet most of us are ungrateful for the blessing we have received from God. No matter where we look, there is always someone in more dire straits than we. Are we grateful for good health? Are we grateful for our homes, prosperity and loved ones?

There is one outstanding way of expressing gratitude for all the gifts of God. That is by prayers of thanksgiving. The church presents the happiest road through which these prayers may reach God. We should take advantage of that opportunity.

STEEL, COPPER STOCKS AND TOBACCOS MOVE UP

MANY UTILITIES STRONG

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 23.—The call money rate was advanced to 5 per cent today, as had been anticipated, and the announcement of the development caused hardly a ripple in the stock market, which moved more or less broadly in both directions and was highly irregular at all times. The market was less active than during any session of the week, due in part to the absence of many traders for over the holidays. The turnover of the session was approximately 2,300,000 shares. Twenty-seven new highs for the year or longer were scored, but, as has been the case in previous sessions of the week, many issues in this group failed to hold their gains to the close.

Advances and losses on the day were about equally divided, although the broader movements occurred on the down side. The outstanding features on the upside were United States Steel common, the coppers, tobaccos, New Haven and some of the specialties. United States Steel was buoyant throughout the session, advancing from a low for the day of 150⅛ to 154⅜, its high for the present movement, and within about 4 points of its high for the year. It closed at its peak of the session with an advance of 4⅝ points.

Practically all of the coppers and other metals moved forward with steel, several of them into new high price territory for the year. Greene Cananea gained 3½ points net, Anaconda 1¼, Chile 2½, Kennecott ½, Utah 6 and Cerro de Pasco ⅜. Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla and Magma advanced substantially under strong buying in the early session, but lost most of their gains in the afternoon. International Nickel and National Lead preferred B were among the new high record-hitters.

The show of strength in steel and the coppers encouraged the buying in various other quarters of the market. Montgomery Ward was boosted to a new high, at 122¾, and closed with a net advance of 1⅜. Tobacco Products "A" soared to a new peak price of 121 and finished with a gain of 2⅝ on the day; American Tobacco quit a net gainer of 4⅞ and Porto Rican "A" was up 2¼. Commercial Solvent 4½; Pacific Coast common 1¼, and its first preferred 7; Pacific Telephone & Telegraph, 2¾; National Dairy Products, 2; Adams Express, 5; American Railway Express, 5¾; Corn Products preferred, 4¾; Christie Brown, 2½; Central Alloy Steel, 3¾, and Certain-teed Products, first preferred, 5 points.

Many of the utilities joined in the upward movement in the afternoon, among the leaders being Abitibi, Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas and Montana Power.

General Motors was active within a narrow range, closing with a fractional gain. Chrysler was boosted in heavy trading to a new high for the year, at 63¼, held most of its gain and closed up 1⅛ net. The other members of the automobile group were only moderately active and finished the day very near their last prices of yesterday.

Traders discriminated among the rails as they did in other classes of stocks, the most consistent strength being in New Haven, at a new high, at 62¾, a net gain of 2 points; Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, up 3 points net for the common and 1⅞ for the preferred; New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Erie, Great Northern, Lehigh and Southern Railways.

Continental Insurance dropped 18 points net on a small turnover and Fidelity Phoenix receded 10¼ points. Rossia closed with a loss of 1½ net.

No more attention was paid by traders to the increase in brokerage loans of $35,000,000 than to the advance in the call money rate.

The buying of the better class of stocks was today based largely on optimism as to the future of industry, although the developments of recent weeks have not supported this belief any too strongly. If business should improve considerably after the turn of the year, it probably would draw a sizable block of funds from the stock market, and, quite possibly, the intensified competition for money might bring about liquidation of securities. As it is, traders generally seem to be satisfied with cheap money and a promising industrial outlook and do not ask for any real increase in steel output or railroad traffic.

Brisk demand for Spanish pesetas was about the only feature of interest in foreign exchange dealings, the rate on Madrid being boosted 8 points; but subsequently the gain was halved. Sterling eased slightly and Dutch moved up half a point. The market was of preholiday character, reflecting dullness in London.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The cotton market was higher today on further covering and trade or commission house buying, inspired by the reported absence of selling pressure in the South and reiterated talk of an improving demand for cotton goods. After selling up to 19.42 at the start, March reacted to 19.34, but later advanced to 19.48 and closed at 19.44, or 25 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net advances of 17 to 27 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 11 to 23 points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables. Initial demand was supplied by rather heavy realizing, while there was considerable liquidation of January in anticipation of notices early next week. Prices eased off several points, but offerings of January were readily absorbed by trade buying against sales of later deliveries at a discount of about 33 to 34 points under May and the market steadied toward the forenoon.

Offerings seemed to taper off, while the ready absorption of the January liquidation created an impression that there would be demand for any notices issued next week, and shorts renewed their covering. The market also seemed to be attracting fresh demand from commission houses, or local traders and while the volume of trading tapered off to small proportions during midday, it picked up again toward the close.

Highest prices were reached in the afternoon when January sold at 19.32 and May at 19.59. Last prices were within a few points of the best.

Part of the buying was attributed to covering by interests who had sold during the progress of the decline earlier in the month, and much of the business appeared to be connected with the evening up of January contracts.

No very definite estimates of the number of notices likely to be issued when the market here reopens next Tuesday were heard, but the opinion was expressed in some quarters that they would represent at least half the local certificated stock and might include the greater part of it.

The week-end figures showing a decrease of 45,184 bales in the world's visible supply of American, against an increase of 91,679 last year, were considered a factor on the late advance.

Exports today 28,676 making 3,765,228 so far this season. Port receipts 37,625. U. S. port stocks 2,583,111.

What's Behind Your Stock?

Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co., incorporated in 1846, is one of the best known transportation systems in the country. It operates 11,709 miles of first main track, the total mileage of all tracks operated being 28,040. This system is a highly developed one and comprises a vast network of roads and branches from New York, Washington and the eastern seaboard westward to Chicago, Burlington and St. Louis.

During the past ten years revenue freight tonnage has practically doubled. Mine products account for over 60 per cent of the total tonnage; manufacturers and miscellaneous freight comprise about 25 per cent of the total.

Capitalization per mile is not high and only about 50 per cent of the estimated property value. In 1926 gross revenues were the largest in the company's history, except for 1923, while net income was the largest ever reported. Book value at the end of 1926 was reported as $91 per share of capital stock.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Canadian Marconi, which mounted to a record high on a turnover of nearly 200,000 shares, was the outstanding feature of the curb market today. Elsewhere considerable irregularity developed and trading fell off sharply from the heavy volume of other sessions this week.

Canadian Marconi has been advancing intermittently for several weeks, and today's peak of $4.37½ a share compared with a low earlier in the year of 79 cents. Participation by the company in the use of the "beam radio" recently developed in England, and expectations of resultant heavier earnings was the probable factor behind the rise in the shares.

Industrial Rayon also was heavily traded in, but slipped backward a trifle on profit-taking. It was the first day this week that the stock had not established a new high. Transactions were made yesterday at 24¼, against the year's low of 4⅛. Some mystification has been aroused by the rise of this stock, inasmuch as a recent earnings report showed a considerable decline. Northern Ohio Power and Electric Investors, both reaching new high territory, led the public utilities, which were not very active otherwise. Insurance issues continued to climb, a new peak being marked up by fireman's fund. Oils were rather quiet, although Venezuela Mexican mounted to a new top and Vacuum gained about 2 points. Gulf, the recent pace-setter, was off on profit taking.

Stern Brothers A reached 53¾ and was followed to new high levels by Celanese preferred, Richman Brothers and Newmont Mining. The last mentioned, however, closed with a fractional net loss.

COACHES POLISH LINEUPS FOR EAST-WEST BATTLE

G. U. May Send Five Men to Olympics

Wildermuth, Wiesner, Proctor, Adelman, Hines Prospects.

Points Made in Intercollegiates Assure Place in Finals.

By ARTHUR A. HEYWOOD.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY, represented on the 1924 United States Olympic track team with five stars, looks forward with the hope of placing that many or more on the 1928 Olympic team. Five members of Coach John D. O'Reilly's present team are given an excellent opportunity to reach the final tryouts which will be held in the Harvard Stadium, July 4, 5 and 6.

As the winning of a point in the next intercollegiates entitles one to the privilege of competing in the final Olympic tryouts, Dave Adelman, who won the shot put; Fred Wiesner, who placed fifth in the pole vault, and Creth Hines, who won the javelin last year, are accorded an excellent chance of placing fifth or better in their event in the 1928 intercollegiates.

Providing these men come through, they will be eligible for the finals without the alternative of competing in the preliminary tryout, to be held for this section of the country at Yankee Stadium the middle of June.

Karl Wildermuth, who as a freshman last year won the national indoor 60-yard championship, and Eddie Hoctor, a promising quarter-miler, are the other two whose prospets are bright. Wildermuth will run the dashes this year, from distances ranging from 40 to 100 yards and in collegiate ranks at the present time there does not loom any one who has a better chance than Wildermuth. Hoctor, a veteran of O'Reilly's team, performed brilliantly last year.

In addition to New York, preliminary tryouts will be held at Chicago, New Orleans, Atlanta, Los Angeles and New York.

Georgetown, facing a busy indoor season will enter its first meet namely, the Knights of Columbus games, at New York, on January 7. Wildermuth will be entered in the dashes, Hoctor in the 500-yard race, while the others who will compete will be chosen after the holidays.

The Fordham meet a week later, on January 14, will be next to claim the Hilltopper's attention. Georgetown plans to send six or eight men to this meet which will be held in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, New York. Following on January 21, will be the Brooklyn College meet at Brooklyn.

The high light of the indoor track season, the Inter-Collegiates, will be held in New York on March 3. The National A. A. U. meet in New York will come about a week previous to the Inter-Collegiates.

Georgetown also plans to compete in the New York A. C. meet on February 20, the Milrose A. A. games on February 2, and the Boston A. A. meet on February 4.

Chicago May Abandon High Title Court Event

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The National High School Invitational Basketball Tournament, held annually at the University of Chicago by Athletic Director A. A. Stagg, may be abandoned in 1928, H. R. Townsend, secretary of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, said today.

Army's Defense of Athletic Code Unchanged in 25 Years

Identical Situation Was Identically Defended by Noted Writer in 1903; Deplored Influence of Professional Spirit.

STRAINED athletic relations between the Naval Academy and West Point and West Point's defense of its position in the wrangle which has arrested the attention of the entire country and found its way into the halls of Congress is parallel to a situation which existed 25 years ago between the two service academies as described by Caspar Whitney, noted sports authority, in the magazine Outing, on June 21, 1903.

Obviously writing as a defender of West Point, Whitney at that time deplored the jockeying over eligibility rules which now threaten to disrupt relations between the two academies and characterized Navy's demands as the influence of a professional spirit beyond the influence of service tradition.

Then, as now, those aligned in the support of West Point's code remonstrated at the efforts of Navy to force the adoption by the two academies of the same eligibility code that governed Havard and Yale.

Army's position as outlined by Whitney in 1903 is identical with the stand taken by Gen. Winans, West Point superintendent, last week when he returned Navy's football contract unsigned, declaring that any change in the eligibility code would be a discrimination against certain cadets at West Point and that it was in violation of the spirit which has always ruled the cadets and their officers.

Caspar Whitney, who contributed to Outing in his column "The Sportsman's Viewpoint," was an intimate friend of Walter Camp, called the "Father of Football," and with Camp was recognized as a leading football authority.

In the issue of June 2, 1903, Whitney said, under the heading, "A Microbe at Annapolis":

"A politician appears to have come into the athletic field at Annapolis; which is a pity, for hitherto he has been an alien. The happiest occasions of the sporting year are the contests in which the teams of these two academies, so interesting to the Nation, meet, without preliminary jockeying, without discussion as to individual ability, without argument over rules. In a word—the teams from the Naval and Military Academies have met as gentleman should, confident in the honor and sportsmanship of each other.

"And now comes a rank outsider, reared beyond the influence of Army and Navy tradition, to poison the under-classman mind with the detestable microbe that makes for the professional spirit! Under this baneful tutelage, Annapolis demands of West Point that the eligibility rule of Harvard and Yale be adopted for the teams of the National academies.

"There is no objection to the Harvard-Yale rule per se; it is an excellent one for the existing conditions of university sport—but at either West Point or Annapolis it is presumptuous and an intolerable violation of the spirit which has always ruled the cadets and their officers; the esprit de corps; the spirit of the Army and the Navy of the United States of America; the spirit of fair play and a fight to the finish—which holds in contempt rule-making born of the professional mind looking for a short cut to victory.

"Any man who is eligible to cadetship at either academy is eligible for its teams; that is the only rule; it stands for honor and sportsmanship of the Army and Navy equally."

TERRIS BEATS M'GRAW ON POINTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Sid Terris, the East Side dancing master, whipped Phil McGraw, sturdy Detroit Greek, tonight in a slashing 10-round battle that featured an all-lightweight card in Madison Square Garden. Terris gained the judges' decision in spite of McGraw's strong finish.

Terris boxed rings around McGraw in the first six rounds, stunning Phil with well-directed shots to the jaw, but the New Yorker tired in the last four sessions.

McGraw, one of the most rugged and persistent lightweights in the ring, absorbed all the wallops Terris had to offer and kept boring in. He was the aggressor, even when a trifle groggy, and was considerably stronger at the end than the shifty New Yorker.

Terris won five of the 10 rounds, in the opinion of most ringside critics who gave McGraw two—the fifth and tenth—and classed three as even. Terris did his best work in the second, fourth and sixth, rocking McGraw in each of these rounds with sharp hooks to the chin.

It was the third clash between these rivals within four months and gave Terris the edge. They had split two previous verdicts.

A crowd of more than 13,000 paid $54,916 to witness the scrap. Terris weighed 134 and McGraw 133.

Bruce Flowers, of New Rochelle, N. Y., negro lightweight, gained the judge's decision over Lou Paluso, of Salt Lake City, in a slashing eight-round semifinal bout. Flowers packed the stiffer punch, but Paluso was the aggresser. The crowd booed the verdict for several minutes, apparently in the belief that Paluso's stronger finish had entitled him to at least a draw. Flowers weighed 133½; Paluso, 134½.

In two close and hard-fought eight-round preliminaries, Bobby Burns, 133½, of New York, won the decision over Frankie Fink, 133, of Texas, while Jack Duffy, 133½, of Toledo, carried off the verdict over Matty Mario, 135, of Staten Island.

St. Martin's Holds Foes to Three Points

Three points, a field goal and foul shot by A. Farrell represented the Bloomingdale Playground Team's total attack before the impregnable defense of the St. Martin's Five, which won as it pleased over the Playground Quintet in a 22-3 game yesterday afternoon in the St. Martin's gymnasium.

J. Roland and Plant were the "big guns" in the attack of the winners.

4 FOULS BAN N. Y. BOXERS FOREVER

Sliding Scale of Punishments From 60-Day Up Adopted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Stringent legislation imposing heavier penalties for fouling offenses by boxers was adopted by unanimous consent today by the New York State Athletic Commission whereby a fourth offender will be banned forever in contests in this State.

Instead of the customary 30 days' suspension given a boxer on his first foul, the period has been extended to 60 days. Second offense in the future will draw 90 days, third offense, six months and fourth, the revocation of a boxer's license.

Izzy Grove, Brooklyn boxer, was the first to be subjected to the new rule of the commission. He was suspended for 60 days for fouling Pal Silvers at the new Broadway Arena last Monday night.

The commission made known that its action today in no way was brought about by the Joe Glick-Tod Morgan junior lightweight championshionp bout a week ago when Glick lost on a foul in the fourteenth round.

As a matter of fact, the commissioners expressed sympathy for Glick and ordered Harold Barnes, one of the judges of the Glick fight to appear next Tuesday and explain his actions in distracting the attention of Referee Eddie Forbes.

According to the commission, Barnes gesticulated wildly, jumped up and down in his seat and shouted to Forbes during the progress of that championship tilt, trying to impress the referee that a foul had been committed.

"We don't want such things to happen!" exclaimed Commissioner William Muldoon. "It must not occur again."

Nevertheless, Glick stands suspended. This action was taken at the meeting last Tuesday and the commission could see no way whereby the decision could be changed.

Barnes had made known to the commission that he would be unable to appear next Tuesday due to a previous business engagement. However, he will appear before the commission at a later date.

Chevy Chase Beats Calvary Reds, 36-27

The Chevy Chase Five defeated the Calvary Reds last night, 36 to 27. Richardson and Asquith bore the brunt of the attack for the winners. However, McQueen, of Calvary, carried off the individual scoring honors with nine field goals. The game was played in the Calvary M. E. Gymnasium.

Celtics Defeat Cleveland, 33 to 17

Western Leaders Bow to Shooting of Holman and Banks.

New Yorkers Assume Early Lead, Outclassing Foes.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The Original Celtics are leading the American professional basketball league as a result of an easy victory over the Cleveland Rosenblooms at Arcadia Hall, tonight. The final result was 33-17. The world's champions, who have been and still are the nemisis of the Cleveland five, played rings around the champions of the western division. The game was so tense at times that it looked as if fisticuffs would add more interest to the tenseness of the contest.

With Nat Holman, one of basketball's leading luminaries, and Dave Banks, diminutive Celtic forward, in perfect form, the Celtics outplayed their opponents in every department in the game. Save a last minute rally, the Cleveland quintet looked helpless compared to the victorious Shamrocks.

Vic Hansen, of the visitors and Husta, left guard, held the spotlight for the Roseys exhibiting more skill and courage than any member on the court. Time after time, Husta would break through the Celtics' perfect defense and uselessly shoot at the basket.

Husta was the high scorer for the western leaders, with six points, made on three field goals. Nat Holman and Dave Banks shared high scoring honors, with eight points apiece, on four goals from floor.

Dave Banks started the scoring on a goal from midcourt. Husta, of Cleveland, made the first basket for the Roseys. Thereafter the Celtics tallied goal after goal and had the puzzled visitors fighting hard to gain possession of the ball, which the Rosenblooms finally succeeded in doing, the scoring being 10 to 2 then.

Hickey broke through the Shamrocks for the third point of the game for Clevelanders, on a goal from the foul line. The game tightened up thereafter and scoring was done on both sides.

Chick Passon, former Washington star, whose presence has been missed from the line-up because of a sprained foot, did all of the playing for the Roseys in that period, and, with Nat Holman guarding him, had a difficult time in getting possession of the ball, but when he did he rushed through the Shamrocks in a rough fashion to help Cleveland to tally. Pete Barry ended the scoring in the first half, the Celtics having a big lead, 20 to 10.

Fortune Made By Portland On Rookies

Club Realizes Profit of $100,000 on Sale of Cissell.

Bought Cochrane for $300; Macks Paid $75,000 Later.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Developing bush leaguers for the major league market is ringing up many a dollar for the Portland Baseball Club of the Pacific Coast League.

About as much cash is received from this source as from the gate receipts.

Thomas Turner of this city, president of the Portland Team, is one of the leading members of the "ivory" exchange. A shrewd business man and a keen observer of talent, Turner has enriched his club's treasury by more than a quarter of a million dollars recently in speculating with players.

Turner's latest coup was the $113,000 sale of Chalmer Cissell a short stop, to the Chicago White Sox, which netted a profit of approximately $100,000. Turner bought Cissell a year ago from Des Moines for about $13,000.

An offer of $65,000 from the White Sox for Pitcher Fred Ortman, was declined by Turner, who knows his market as thoroughly as a Wall street broker.

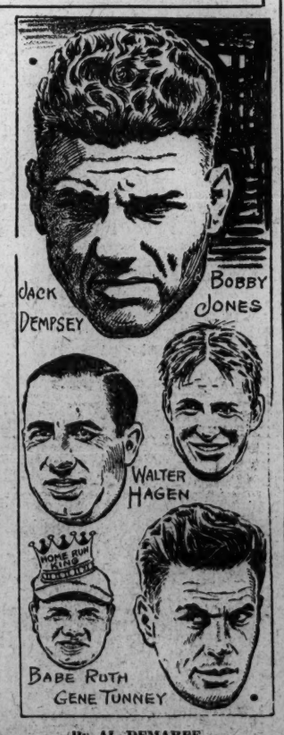

Two present members of Connie Mack's Athletics are Turner products This "David Harum" of baseball purchased Gordon Cochrane, catcher, for $300 and sold him to Mack for $75,000.

Pitcher Rube Walberg cost Turner a small railroad fare, but he was sold to the New York Giants for $25,000. Manager McGraw returned the player to Portland and from there he was rebartered to the Athletics again for $25,000.

In a player trade, Bill Hunnefield was secured by Portland and shortly afterwards he was sold to Cincinnati for $30,000. The Reds paid half that amount down and then refused to make any further payments, shipping the infielder back to the coast. According to reports the Reds lost $15,000 in the deal. Turner then sold Hunnefield to the White Sox for $30,000.

More than a decade ago, Turner was a member of the Athletics' pitching staff. Now he spends most of his time traveling about the country appraising ball players in the sequestered sandlots where they grow.

FIGHT FOR TITLE ON JANUARY 6

Loughran Proving Himself A Fighting Ring Champion

By Meeting Lomski January 6 Will Have Record of Winning Title and Twice Defending It Within Space of Three Months.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Tommy Loughran is out to gain a name as the "fightin'est" champion these modern days of few fights and big purses have produced.

When Loughran takes on Leo Lomski at Madison Square Garden, January 6, he will have set something of a record as well as a good example for his fellow pugilists in winning a title and defending it twice against logical contenders, all in the space of three months.

Loughran won his light-heavyweight crown—then somewhat synthetic—by beating Ould Michael McTigue, on whose head the New York fistic officials set it when Jack Delaney gave it up to hunt among the heavyweights.

That championship scrap took place October 7 and just a little more than two months later—December 12—Loughran was making good his claim by out-pointing Jimmy Slattery, the pretender to the throne, who was backed by the National Boxing Association.

Between those fights, Loughran found time to polish off Pat McCarthy, of Boston, in ten rounds, but didn't even bother to count that.

Next on the list is Lomski, one of the hardest-hitting boys the Pacific Coast has sent back East in recent years. With youthful confidence, Loughran booked the Aberdeen (Wash.) scrapper several weeks before he met Slattery.

It was understood the Lomski bout should go to the winner, but Loughran looked upon it as his fight from the start.

"I'll fight Lomki fifteen rounds as champion," he told Jess McMahon, matchmaker for Tex Rickard. After the Slattery fight he repeated the remark.

If he can get past Lomski, who, with Slattery, was looked upon as the pick of the contenders, Loughran hopes for a bout with Gene Tunney. They met when Loughran, now 25 years old, was a rising youngster, and Tunney was comparatively litte known. Gene won on points after scoring a knockdown.

Toledo sold English to Cubs in August, 1926, when Giants failed to close deal for him. An option to purchase the shortstop at end of season had been granted New York by Toledo early in 1926.

Toledo signed English in January, 1925. He had played previous year with Zanesville in Independent Eastern Ohio League. Before joining Zanesville Woody was given trial by Hamilton (Michigan-Ontario League), but was released as 1924 season opened.

English accepted more chances than any other American Association shortstop in 1926. He became Cub regular when Jimmy Cooney was traded to Phillies in Carlson deal in June, 1927.

English's second-base partner at Toledo was Fred Maguire, briefly a Giant, and in 1928 they will again work together, Maguire having been purchased by Cubs from Toledo to replace Sparky Adams, recently traded to Pirates in Cuyler deal.

Ban Johnson Warns Baseball of Gamblers

St. Louis, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Byron Bancroft Johnson, for 27 years president of the American League and now in retirement, left for Chicago today with his eyesight greatly improved after nearly a month's treatment in a St. Louis hospital. He will return next week for further treatment.

Johnson's general health appeared good and he said his eyes were rapidly regaining strength.

Declaring he is "just an observer," Johnson refused to discuss baseball for publication except to say:

"I see no reason to believe that baseball will not continue to be as prosperous in the future as in the past if the shepherds of the game will watch the fold vigilantly. The gambling wolves may be silenced for the time, but they are a constant and secret threat."

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—While their Eastern rivals visited Stanford University today, the football team carrying the hopes of the West went through a stiff round of practice for the East-West charity game here Monday afternoon.

Coach Orin E. Hollingbery, of the West's aggregation, turned his immediate attention to fitting three new stars into places. They are Pat Wilson, full back; Wright, guard, and Schuh, end, all of Washington, who arrived yesterday to complete the 21-man squad.

Coach Andy Kerr took his Eastern players to Stanford where the big red team is preparing for its contest with Pittsburgh, January 2, at Pasadena. The East eleven's practice has been confined mostly to running through signals and passing and kicking.

Throughout the week Coach Kerr has featured a back field, consisting of Amos, Washington and Jefferson, quarter backs; Caldwell, Yale, and Presnell, Nebraska, half backs, and Joesting, Minnesota, full back.

SEA ROCKET EQUALS NEW ORLEANS TRACK RECORD

Fastest Race Of Meeting Is Run

Blue Mask, at 31 to 1, Rewards Backers In Third.

JEFFERSON PARK, NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—In the fastest race of the meeting, C. A. Coyle's Sea Rocket led home a high-class field of horses in winning the Mississippi Purse, the best offering on the card today. He ran the 8 furlongs in 1:38 2-5, which equals the track record for the distance. He paid $16.60 for a $2 ticket.

Crystal Domino was second and Waffles third. Black Gold, the 1924 Kentucky Derby winner, failed to show his usual speed and finished a poor fourth.

Waffles cashed right to the front and led the field a fast clip to the stretch, where Sea Rocket and Crystal Domino both closed on him. Sea Rocket took the lead and won by three lengths. Crystal Domino took the place by a nose over Waffles.

Maiden 2-year-olds competed in the first race, and Procne was an easy winner, leading home a big field. Cassie was second and Isaac L. third. Procne made all the pace and won by a length. Cassie took the place by a length and a half from Isaac L., the favorite.

H. Segar's Grange finally won a race, but his margin of victory was very small. It was by a head that he defeated the favorite, Special, in the last stride. Sargasso was third.

Special cut out a fast pace, leading by several lengths to the stretch, where he tired and Grange, closing gamely, won by a head.

F. M. Grabner's Blue Mask won the third race and paid $64.20 for a $2 ticket. Cliff was second and Cup o' Tea third.

Cliff jumped away to a long lead, had a wide margin on the field at the turn into the stretch, but tired suddenly in last sixteenth, and Blue Mask, closing gamely, won by a head, with Cliff second, a head in front of Cup o' Tea.

The Royal Stable's Blessefield, with E. Pool up, had no difficulty in annexing the purse in the fourth event, a six-furlong sprint. He was favorite in the betting, and won by three lengths after following the pace to the stretch. Blind Cast earned second money, with Petruchio third. Her Ladyship was left at the post.

Emphatic cut a fast early pace, but in the stretch Blessefield took the lead and won by three lengths. Blind Cast defeated Petruchio a head for the place.

The sixth event, a mile and sixteenth gallop, was won by Croissantanis, who led the field home by five lengths. Post Horn was second, with Really third, three lengths back.

The last race was won by Blockhead with Frightful second and Guest of Honor third.

K. C. Quintet Seeks Contest for Sunday

St. Mary's Celtics Win Seventh in Row

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 23.—The St. Mary's Celtics won their seventh straight game tonight, defeating the Palace A. C., of Washington, 45 to 18. Kersey, at center, led the winners' attack with eight field goals and a foul. Spahn and Sklar did the best work for Palace.

In preliminaries, the St. Mary's Midgets defeated the Palace Preps, 22 to 18, and the Lee-Jackson High girls won over the St. Mary's Sextet, 9 to 8.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT E. COLLYER

MERRY XMAS. Best wishes for the holiday season to all our friends and followers with the hope that Kris Kringle will fill your socks and stockings to overflowing.

In the hope of playing Santa Clause for the day, Bertie will endeavor to enlighten you relative to the many "good things" that have been wafted his way on the wings of the wind direct from the track. The real hot tamale is GALAHAD, 2-year-old, which will strut his onions in the fourth race down at Jefferson Park. "Little Johnny" says that it is strictly a two-horse affair and favors BESOM, but I happen to be in a position to know something—where the right money is planted.

Eighteen are carded in the opener and much will depend upon racing luck. Looks as though SIR BARLEY is the sweet patootie in this event.

For the second, THE BADGER is due to come through with one of his good performances, which means that he will be on the head-end at the pay-off station.

ROYCROFTER was backed off the boards last time, but got what the little boy shot at. Just remember that there are days and days and days. This is the right day. Get down early before all the barber shops, cigar stands and "news" stores close.

MARCONI is going to give Gibbons an argument in the fifth spasm. I fancy this one very much—knowing that he is tuned to concert pitch.

BILLY WITT may beat SCOTLAND FOREVER in the sixth, especially if the latter jars his bad knee.

SIR LEONID will be hard to beat in the closing heat. The route is made to order for him.

I have a real good thing going in the second, by the name of FORT WAYNE. This trick is burning oil and this is just the spot for him.

Sir Barley, Theo Fay, Cliff.
The Badger, Bottom Dollar, The Huguenot.
Roycrofter, Polygamia, David L.

GRID LINE-UP NAMED FOR GAMES

Scott, have seen most service in those positions, with Douds, Washington and Jefferson, and Randells, Nebraska, tackles; Baer, Michigan, and Hanson, Minnesota, guards, and Reitsch, Illinois, center. This combination is expected to start. Because of the late arrival of some of his players, Coach Hollingbery's team has not taken such definite form as the Eastern eleven.

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The pride of Dixie, All-South Football Team, will face a forward wall averaging 200 pounds to the man, from tackle to tackle, when gridiron hostilities are opened against the Pacific Coast All-West Squad at the Coliseum here Monday afternoon.

The starring line-up for the Westerners announced today by Coaches Howard Jones of Southern California, and Enoch Bagshaw of Washington, indicated that five of the first line coasters would scale around a tenth of a ton on the hoof, each.

Coaches McGugin, Wade and Alexander likewise posted their selection today for the opening line-up. Bill Spears of Vanderbilt, who is still high in the air on his spring to football fame, has been picked to start at quarter for the invading Southerners.

Estes of Georgia and Brown of Alabama, half backs, will flank Spears to port and starboard. Dodson of Tennessee will work the full back post. The Southern line named to block the beef of the Western wall is: Crowley of Georgia Tech, and Creson of Vanderbilt, ends; Pickard of Alabama, and Hood of Georgia Tech, tackles; Bowdoin of Alabama, and Barnhill of Tennessee, guards, and Sharpe of Vanderbilt, center.

Clear weather, not too cold and not too hot, has been indicated for Monday.

Ben Franklin Five Bows to Woodside

The Benjamin Franklin University Basketball Team, making its second appearance on local courts, dropped an exciting encounter to the hustling Woodside Five last night in a practice game in the Silver Spring Armory that gave the Maryland team its eighth straight win. The college team played good basketball, but were victims to the more experienced Woodside Team. Kreh, for Woodside, and Hoddinott, for Franklin, starred for their respective teams.

STAR TEAMS TO BATTLE MONDAY

Picked Eleven From Sandlots to Meet Prep Combine.

FOOTBALL fans will get one of the last few glimpses of their favorite sport Monday when two all-star combinations clash at Union League Park at 2 o'clock.

A team composed of the pick of the sandlots will oppose a collection of stars of the prep schools, and the game should afford much color as well as excellent play. The sandlot team has been rounded by Bill Goldberg, energetic manager of the Winton Athletic Club, and from all indications Bill has whipped into line a team of class and one that should cause the prep team plenty of trouble.

Among the stars on Goldberg's team are Shipman and Galotta, of Tech; Kelliher and Speakman, of the Southern Preps; Workman, Minnick and the Gass brothers, of the Northerns; Augustine, of the Seat Pleasants, and Barry, of the Renrocs.

The prep school combination also boasts of an array of stars in Nolan, Dugan, Tobin and Byrne and three of the Farrell brothers, of Gonzaga, and Trilling, Hopper, Tangora and Knott, of Devitt, not to mention others of note.

In order to get ready for the fray the two teams will drill tomorrow on their respective fields and both Managers Goldberg, of the sandlot team, and Fitzgerald, of the prep team, request their players to report.

LYON VILLAGERS SEEK FOES.

The Lyon Village, 105-pound Basketball Team, is seeking games with teams in its class. For games, call Clarendon 1334-J-2, after 7 o'clock.

Peck Five Winner In Two Contests

Peck Memorial Quintet scored two impressive wins last night, defeating the Woodlothians, 51 to 33, and swamping the Comets in the same manner, 54 to 30. Schafer starred in both engagements, ringing the baskets for seven and eight double-deckers, respectively. Corcoran, Tucker and Saul also figured in the heavy scoring of the Pecks.

Minor Draft Meeting Is Called for Jan. 9

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The minor league club owners were summoned today by President Mike Sexton, of Rock Island, to an extra session at French Lick Springs, Ind., on January 9, to take up again the major-minor draft problem, since the major leagues refused to accept the minors' Dallas pronunciamento.

At their regular winter meeting at Dallas, the minors voted to forbid the five big minors from continuing under the modified draft, a system which permitted the majors to draft only those players from the five big minors that had originally come from the major leageu teams. This left the five big minors free to sell the players they had developed themselves, at fancy prices.

The smaller minors contended, however, that the majors sought to evade this restriction by first signing up all the college and sandlot players in sight, leaving no recruits for the bush leaguers.

The five big minors at Dallas took this order in silence, but when the major leaguers assembled in New York they told the minors that the action did not suit them at all, and if the minors persisted, the whole major-minor agreement was off.

The wording of the summons to his league presidents and club owners, President Mike Sexton, of the minors, said, in issuing the call, is broad enough to bring up the whole major-minor question again.

FRENCH BOW TO U. S. NET STARS

Tilden Beats Borotra in Indoor Tennis Matches.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The French tennis trio composed of Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, met the first defeat of their world tour when they were beaten in three matches by Philadepihia players on the indoor court of the Penn Athletic Club here today.

Borotra, renewing his rivalry with William T. Tilden 2d, former national champion, was beaten in straight sets, 7—5, 6—4. Brugnon was more valiant, but no more successful against Manuel Alonso, losing 12—10, 3—6, 6—1.

Borotra teamed with Boussus, the 17-year-old left-handed Gallic star, in a doubles match, and they were breaten by Tilden and R. N. Williams in straight sets, 7—5, 6—4.

The appearance being the first of the French stars on an indoor court since they began the tour which has already taken them through South America and which will later take them to Australia and South Africa, they were obviously troubled by the limited space and the brilliant overhead lights.

Borotra, in his singles match with Tilden, played his usual colorful game, bounding about the court to make what seemed to be impossible nets at times, but Tilden's service, tearing across the net with its old-time speed, kept him constantly on the defensive.

In the late stages of the match Tilden cut the side lines with many remarkable placements and aced the Basque frequently.

Burgnon, after the first prolonged set against Alonso and the difficult second, played lazily in the third set, winning only one game, and that on his own service.

In the doubles, interest centered on Boussus, who played for the first time before an American crowd. The youth was somewhat wild and double-faulted a number of times on his service, but the several placements he shot across the net to catch Tilden and Williams flat-footed impressed the crowd favorably.

Immediately after the macthes here, the Frenchmen boarded a train for Chicago.

JOSEPH MARR WILL HEAD "C" CLUB

Is Chosen by Central Lettermen; "Biff" Jones Speaks.

JOSEPH MARR was unanimously elected president of the "C" Club for 1928 at the annual meeting of that body at the Racquet Club last night. Sylvan King, retiring president, under whom the club has enjoyed one of the best years of its history, requested that his name be not considered. Dr. Lewis M. Cuvillier was named vice president, Eugene Casey was reelected treasurer, and Robert Newby was renamed recording secretary. These men, together with Edward Rheem, permanent secretary, complete the list of officers.

Coach Lawrence E. "Biff" Jones, of West Point, who is a "C" Club member, was one of the principal speakers of the evening and, touching briefly on the recent Army-Navy break, declared that, in his belief, the heads of the two institutions would be the ones to effect any final settlement, if there was any. He doubted if the proposed action by Congress would accomplish much. The West Point mentor further added that the coaching staffs of both schools were amicable and that they desired to see the game played next year.

Episcopal High School, a rival of 40 years' standing, and Tech High School, of Atlanta, Ga., were suggested as a possible opponent for Central High School in a game to be sponsored by the "C" Club, such as was the Central-Charlotte game this year.

The "C" Club decided in the future to present graduating senior boys of the school, who have won a letter, with a certificate of membership in the club.

Irwin Lee Porter, now a prominent architect, who starred in football some years ago, but who, because of some misunderstanding, never received his letter, was voted a member of the "C" Club, and a committee will confer with Central High School authorities in a move to present Porter with his "C."

The club also voted to lend assistance in an effort to bring about a change at Central High School whereby some distinction will be made in the letters to be awarded for major and minor sports.

105-Year-Old Trainer Has Winner at Havana

Havana, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The best number on the program today was the third race at 6 furlongs for fillies and mares. The contest proved thrilling throughout, J. J. McCafferty's consistent Belaiscon being returned the winner by a length and a half over Snake Bite. Valence was third.

The venerable Thomas Cheek, who is the oldest trainer in the country, being nearly 105 years old, saddled the winner of the second race in Basha and was warmly congratulated by the officials and his friends.

Jockey C. Graccia was suspended for 10 days for rough riding in the second race. Jockey A. Robertson was given three days' suspension for bad behavior at the post in the first race.

Connie Mack Wraps Gifts on 65th Birthday

Philadelphia, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American League baset team, celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary today. He devoted the day to wrapping Christmas packages and enjoying the fireside cheer.

Mr. Mack is the oldest baseball manager in either major league, and is the only one enrolled in the first year of the American League still at the helm. His baseball career started in the early eighties on the lots of a New England village and he has been a manager for 33 years, 28 as pilot of the Athletics. He is the only manager the Athletics ever had and has brought six American League pennants and three world's championships to Philadelphia.

The tall leader appears to be in perfect health. He says he never felt better and is already laying plans for next year's American League campaign.

"I feel great," he said. "I think I will hit about .310 next year. I want to keep in the .300 class, anyhow, because if you hit .300, it means you are good for a long while."

Hundreds of letters and telegrams of congratulations were received at the Mack home and scores called in person to offer congratulations.

RANGERS WANT GAMES.

ST. MARTIN'S ANXIOUS.

St. Martin Juniors would like to arrange games with 120-pound teams with or without the use of gymnasiums. Call Manager Francis Plant, at North 6511, between 5 and 7 o'clock.

PENNANTS SEEK FOES.

Pennant courtmen have had no response from the several challenges hurled, and are very anxious to book leading 115-pound teams having the use of gymnasiums. The Corinthians and Hamlines are especially sought. Call Adams 4496.

SENATORS WOULD PLAY.

Senator Seniors, who have won in all of their three starts this season, want games with leading 125-pound teams having the use of gymnasiums. Call Manager Cassassa at Columbia 562.

M'LEANS WIN TWO.

The McLean A. C. Basketers last night won a double-header, beating the Collegians, 29 to 16, and then taking the Langley A. C. into camp to the tune of 32-21.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

At the time of impact on a mashie shot should the weight of the body be evenly divided on the feet. If not, just where should most of the weight be?

By WILLIAM MEHLHORN.
Western Open Champion, 1924.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

YESTERDAY we gave the twenty-six cards of a Dealer and his partner, and asked how those two players should declare, supposing that the opponents passed whenever it was their turn. The score was stated to be love-all, and the hands were:

THE ANSWER.

South (Dealer) should bid one No Trump; he has three suits safely stopped and has a hand better than average by the difference between a King and a Jack. He has length in both Majors which will be helpful should North have a Major take-out, and he has some strength in his defenseless suit.

North should bid two Spades. The overcall with two of a Major usually announces a suit of five cards or longer; but this is the exceptional type of hand with which the overcall should be made with a four-card Major. The requisites for such exception are: (a) Great strength in the take-out Major, (b) one sure trick in the side hand, (c) a suit which looks dangerous for a No Trump. The North hand contains all these requisites.

South is delighted with North's Major take-out; indeed, the possibility that his No Trump would produce a Major take-out from North was one of the underlying reasons that justified it. It would be beyond the limit of folly for South to rebid the No Trump when holding such unusual assistance for North's Major suit. It will be noticed that with normal division of the adverse cards, these two hands probably will produce game—ten tricks—at Spades; they are not likely to lose more than two Diamonds and one Heart. But at No Trump it is very doubtful that South could make game—nine tricks. It probably would depend upon whether West's original opening was a Club or some other suit.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

The Parent Counselor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers' names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

Sentiment a la Carte.

WHITHER are we drifting in our mad rush for time-saving devices and methods? Now comes the official suggestion that Christmas, birthday and other messages of a personal and sentimental nature may be dispatched without so much as agitating a single brain cell for the right word or thought. Just pick up the telephone receiver, ask for the telegraph office and say: "Send No. 17 to Mrs. Blank. Charge telephone number so and so." We can then sink back in our easy chair serene in the thought of a good deed well done. Meanwhile the wires are transmitting a beautiful and appropriate sentiment to absent father, to dying mother, to sweetheart, to the successful candidate or to the man about to be electrocuted. Well, if we are going this far let's go the whole distance. I propose the following "canned" messages to save the time of college boys and girls:

You may order these dispatches by number collegians. Don't crowd—there's room for all.

1. Short of funds. Send twice the amount you did last month.

2. Must purchase flowers for botany, spend for diamonds, for minerology class, and gasoline for chemistry experiments. Make it an even hundred and be quick.

3. The president thinks I am needed at home. Send carfare.

4. My pony has been confiscated by the professor. Require auto as substitute.

5. Going to work but married the best girl in the world.

6. Prexy wants to consult you about my future.

7. Be good sport and wire money for new outfit for junior prom.

8. She and I desire companionate marriage. Will you pay the bills for next four years?

9. Laid up with lame knees. May I stay over-week-end?

There's efficiency for you. Isn't this a great commercial age? Drop your nickel and draw your coffee. Good to the last drop and no metal can touch you.

Now, if the collegians wish to put their O. K. on this commercialized sentiment I've no doubt the matter can be arranged. But I hope college training and ideals will have so impressed the college youth of the land that the flaw in commercialized sentiment will be obvious.

The Judge Suggests

I am seven and a half years old. I get a small allowance. Recently I lost one of my slippers in school because of carelessness. My mother took my allowance away until she had saved enough to buy me a new pair of slippers. Did she do right? GEORGE

Answer—Obviously, George, you wrote the letter. Your mother addressed the S. A. S. F. Evidently I am to be the judge on the bench. Well, George, the Judge decides that it is necessary for mothers to impress upon boys the necessity for taking care of things. If she didn't it would be harmful to the boy in later life. Therefore mother's idea was correct.

But, mother, there are different ways of accomplishing most things. Some ways are better than others. I believe the effect you wanted would have been better attained had you simply reduced your boy's allowance and credited the money so saved toward the cost of the new slippers until paid for. Even a youngster like George needs some money. Wouldn't that have been fairer to George. And then on Christmas Day forgive him?

Infinite Possibilities.

I am the editor in chief of our school annual and am working on material for getting out the finest edition ever issued. Will you help me?

SENIOR IN HIGH.

Answer: Nothing could give me greater pleasure. I have examined hundreds of such productions and I am at your disposal. There are unlimited possibilities in the question idea. Who is the most popular student? most admired; the most likely to succeed; the most versatile; the best all-around athlete; the most scholarly; the most brilliant; the hardest worker; the most modest; the most gentlemanly; the most womanly; the wittiest; the most original; the best natured; the best looking girl; the most entertaining?

Who is the greatest living hero; the greatest dead hero; the greatest character in fiction; the favorite novel; the best author; the most interesting movie actor and actress; the most inspiring teacher?

What student is most likely to succeed in business; in law; in medicine; as a mother; as a father; as a lover?

Shakespeare Liked Most in Chicago

Southampton, England, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Chicago is more interested in Shakespeare than any other city in the United States, in the opinion of Archibald Flower, chairman of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater committee, who returned today on the liner Berengaria from an American and Canadian tour on which he raised nearly a million dollars.

"What! Chicago?" exclaimed hearers when he expressed his opinion. "So Chicago loves Shakespeare, despite Mayor Thompson."

Cafe Monk Swallows Guest's Diamond Ring

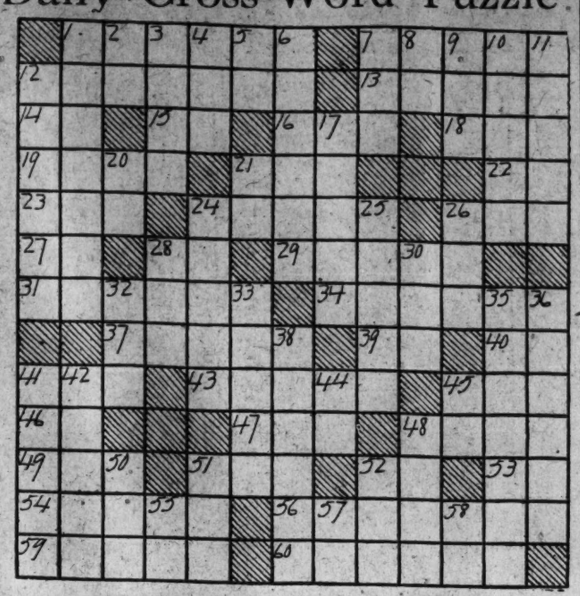

Boston, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Jocko the Monk, who cavorts about a restaurant for the entertainment of diners, is in a hospital. He swallowed a guest's diamond ring.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

FOR the enlightenment of parents in general we offer three letters from apparently average young people all in "second year High School." They seem to offer food for thought.

Dear Miss McDonald:

Please do not censure me, but help me if you can. I am a girl of 17—in second year high. I want to go away somewhere and do not want my parents to worry, yet do not want them to be able to trace me. Could they compel me to return if I were found? Is 16 the legal age or is it 18? It is because of a boy of course. He is talking about me, and all the other fellows know and stand and watch me. Miss McDonald, he is the only one who can say one word against me. I have never allowed any of the rest to do one thing—although they tried. But I loved this one and he said he never felt toward any girl like he did toward me. We were together every day all summer long. When we got back to school there was a new girl and right away he changed. Now the boys all stare at me—and one of them I am sure has told the girl that he goes with. She has done just the same as I have—but they are engaged. Now, Miss McDonald, do not say to face it out. I can not. I can find work and live somehow but not like this. Sign my name as "SEVENTEEN."

Unusual you say? Read on.

Dear Miss McDonald: If a girl pretended to be your best friend and advised you not to pet with a certain boy that she knew you loved more than life itself and then took him from you herself by doing all the things she told you not to do, what would you think?

I know I will never trust another human being. This boy just meant the world to me and took me everywhere. He was a violently affectionate boy, and although I did not object to kisses, I wanted to be good. He said I couldn't love him very much—and just begged me all the time. I told my girl friend. She said I must be crazy to listen, and I felt ashamed.

Next time I went with the boy I told him to let me alone. He acted sorry, like he always did. And in two weeks he was going with my friend. I asked him and he said she "knew how to love" and walked off and left me. She is a year older than I am, and so is he. I am 16 and in second year high. They are both seniors. There is another boy I can go with. But he just gets fresh all the time. But I feel like going with him now just to not be left. I had a date with him last night, but he was so fresh I just cried. What can I do now, Miss McDonald? I just can't think of anything but the boy I love—and how a snake took him from me.

"BLUE EYES."

Also unusual? Raymond now broadcasts for us.

Dear Miss McDonald: I'm in love with a girl who insists upon necking with anything male that she can get her hands on. Her antics are disgusting but she seems to enjoy herself hugely. Every fellow in the school has necked her but me. I have begged her to stop. Have offered to give up college and get a job and marry her if she will quit. She just laughs. I have known her all my life as she is a sort of distant cousin of mine.

Should I speak to her people about the things she does. I hate to do the low down, but her folks would die if they knew the things the gang say about her. What can I do? At home she is the sweetest kid—good to everyone, all the relatives adore her.

I am 19 and you need not think this is puppy love with me. I passed through puppy love five years ago. This is real. I would marry her tomorrow if she were eighteen but she isn't even 17 yet. I know that most all the girls who can, go about the limit, but the most of them are a little bit refined about it. She isn't. She will see a fellow coming and call to him to come and love "mamma"—and off they go.

I know I am just about cuckoo—but I can not help it. What can I do?

"RAYMOND."

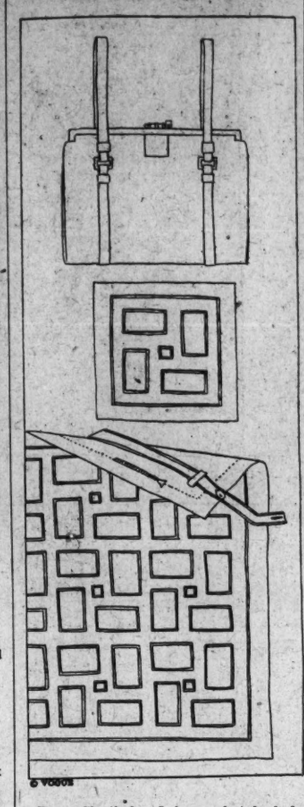

Dear Raymond: I have sketched for you three travel accessories which I have bought to carry with me on the steamer, for I am going to Africa shortly after Christmas and I am looking forward to days on the Mediterranean quite as much as to the winter in Egypt. To begin with, you must realize that all the things I have sketched are intended to harmonize with my black-and-white tweeds. The lovely Cartier bag at the top is made of antelope in two shades of gray. The bag itself is a rather light gray, the two straps and the top are in a darker tone, the clasp and the two little buckles are of tortoise-shell. I think that it is charming, and in addition it has the great virtue of being large enough to hold a passport.

Below I have sketched a fascinating new rug and pillow for the steamer that Jenny has recently made. Both the pillow and the cover are made of red velours de laine, which is so soft that it feels like a nice kitten. The lining and the edge are made of dark moss-green velours de laine. The strap that you see at the top of the rug is a belt to hold it securely around you. There are two little zip pockets to hold the small belongings that are so likely to slide off your lap when you go to sleep in a steamer chair.

The pillow is exactly the right size to fit into the small of your back at just the spot where the chair is so apt to seem a little hard. I am a lazy creature, you see, and I want to be as comfortable as possible.

Love, EVE.

Conduct and Common Sense

STOCKINGS OR SHOES?

THIS is Christmas Eve and an excellent time for answering a question that has been asked me about the custom of hanging up stockings or leaving out shoes for Santa Claus to fill. The stocking seems to be English and American, and I think the shoe is French and possibly Dutch. If I could lay my hand upon some book of Christmas customs, covering the world, I would find out what they do in other countries, but I can not. Quite lately I read about Christmas Eve in a great French chateau, and there all the shoes were left by the fireside, the little ones belonging to the children and the larger ones belonging to the father and grandfather, and the middle-sized ones to the ladies of the family; and I remember a story I read as a child where on Christmas morning a pretty girl, who had quarreled with her young man, came shuffling into the living room in the wooden shoes he had left outside his door for Saint Nicholas to fill, so there are two examples on the shoe side.

Stockings, to be quite seasonably correct, should dangle from the mantelpiece; of that I am sure, and I don't know how one could deal with an apartment only boasting a radiator. (Here I throw in the information that radiator is pronounced with a long "a" and not as if spelled with two "dds.") Perhaps it would be all right to pin the stockings on the window ledge and hope Santa would come down the fire escape.

But, wherever they are pinned, let stockings be well filled. All sorts of small articles are appropriate. The 5-and-10-cent shop has lots of nice presents for stockings. I can think of many things I'd like in mine. Sweet-smelling soap. Some of my favorite perfume. A tea ball. A package of gum-drops (which I love). A flower for my coat. A pin for my hat. And I can think of things for a man's stocking. A pair of fine black silk socks; a new pipe, tobacco, in the latest thing in tobacco pouches; new waistcoat buttons, and a pair of the best gloves. In children's stockings you pack away every small article that comes, leaving the big presents for display. I wish a Merry Christmas to all my readers.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

OUR CHRISTMAS CARD.

To all our friends at Christmas time
What message shall we send?
Can love be woven in a rhyme
And mailed to every friend?
Can words transport to far-off scenes
The endless joys which friendship means?

But mother in her gentle way
Has said that I must write
A word of love for Christmas Day
And get it off tonight,
And here I am with pen and ink
Confused by all the thoughts I think.

From far and near the cards come in
From good friends old and new.
Upon them all I look and grin
As any boy would do.
"Hey, mother!" I exclaim. "See here
Is love to last for many a year!"

And so to all this Christmas time
Our gratitude we send,
We load with love this simple rhyme
For every faithful friend.
May every joy to you befall,
And may God bless you, one and all.

Hope to See Wales Causes Deportation

New York, Dec. 23.—Miss Isabella Rittenhouse is inclined to the belief that English officialdom has no sense of humor. On landing in England she told an inspector that the purpose of her trip was to see the Prince of Wales. She says she was then confined in a hospital for a month and deported.

There could scarcely be a more attractive last-day suggestion than

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

MILK AS A BEAUTY TONIC.

I SUPPOSE much of the prevalent aversion to drinking milk is due to the fact that we have always been urged to "drink milk—it's good for you." The reason that something or other is merely good for her seldom influences a woman. But, should these same people learn that milk can be employed as a means to any end in health that they desire, I think the situation would be changed.

Perhaps the most conspicuous service that milk performs is to add healthy weight to the too thin person. It contributes essential fats and proteins, and supplies, in one form, most of the needs of a well-nourished body. And certain constituents of milk are not found in any other substance. The undernourished person should drink at least two quarts of rich milk a day, in addition to her regular diet of whole-grain breads and cereals, vegetables, fruits, meats and cream soups.

A simple way of reducing that appeals to many women is to go on a milk diet—one drinks milk to the amount of three quarts a day for ten days, and excludes other foods. This diet does not starve the body and does raise the quality of one's general health. To complete the treatment, exercise is done regularly, but not too strenuously, concentrating on the most enlarged parts. If an exclusive milk diet seems to encourage constipation, a moderate quantity of orange-juice may be taken during the day.

Stomach derangements caused by nervousness or dietary imprudences can frequently be halted by this same milk diet. If the person is of normal weight, the procedure is to drink four to five quarts of milk a day, taking a glass about every two hours, and to get as much rest as possible. If so much sweet milk sounds uninviting, one could alternate a glass of sweet milk with a glass of fermented milk or buttermilk.

As a matter of fact I would suggest that every one drink at least one pint of buttermilk each day—it is marvelous for keeping the stomach functioning properly.

Beside affecting one's silhouette, a milk diet reflects very satisfactory results in the skin—naturally, inward cleanliness brings its reward of outward beauty.

Furthermore, milk has been used for many years as an external beauty measure. The following is one of the most delightful treatments I know for making the skin smooth and velvety. After the skin has been scrupulously cleansed and has been washed rid of all fatty substance, a cup of milk is poured into a bowl and a tiny bit of the salt is added. A clean washcloth is soaked in the milk and then held against the face and neck. A very thin film of milk will remain on the skin. This should not be removed until the next morning when, with plain cold water, it is rinsed off. Truly, you will be so pleased with the effect that you will repeat the treatment at least once a week.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertinent to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

ON Thanksgiving Day a city health commissioner advised the people of his city to take a walk after dinner and then to go to bed early. He had no hope of persuading them to eat in moderation. He assumed they would eat to excess, and acting upon that assumption, he told them how to lessen the ill effects thereof.

Like all general advice, the garment does not fit everybody who tries to wear it. If a man has gorged himself with food a quiet round in the open air will help him. Most people know the advantage of a quiet, short walk after eating a heavy meal. The advice to go to bed early is good for the general run of people, especially in our jazz-mad cities. But it is not quite up to the level of general soundness when it applies to Thanksgiving Day and other gorge days.

The very heavy meal on Thanksgiving Day is the evening meal in some homes and a midafternoon function in others. Following it there are a few hours of mental and physical torpor during which the heart beats fast and hard, and breathing is a little labored. According to theory, during a succeeding period the kidneys and the liver are under considerable strain. Under these circumstances quiet is the thing, but it can be overdone.

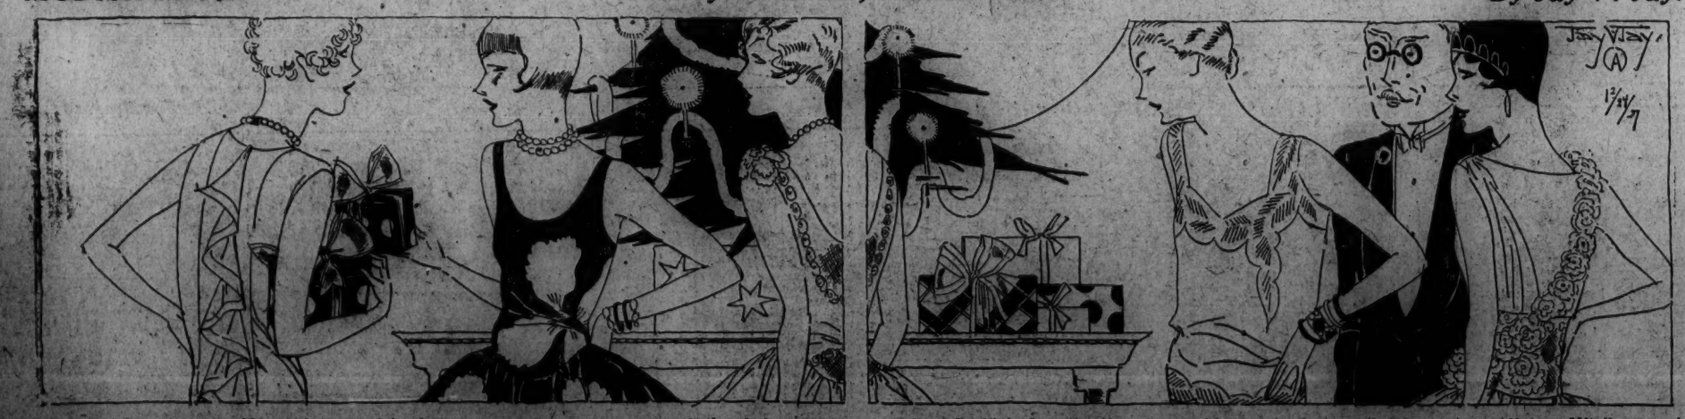

A chicken fattener feeds his chickens, turns out the light, puts down the curtains and persuades his charges to get on the roost and sleep until the next eating period. A hog feeder arranges his schedule so that his hogs go to sleep soon after eating. That policy promotes the fattening process. Therefore, underweight people who want to put on weight will do well to eat and go to bed early. That is also the proper plan for nervous, fidgety, on-edge people. But for the balance of us it is not the best plan.

After eating a heavy Thanksgiving dinner it is better for the average man to go to some kind of an out-of-doors game, and, after that, to occupy his time in some quiet way, other than sleeping, until at least six hours after the heavy meal. He should give his food time to pass through his stomach and small intestines and for his heart to quiet down before he goes to sleep.

MODISH MITZI

Merry Christmas, and All That.

By Jay V. Jay.

The ladies of the ensemble are interested in their presents, but after we remark that it is a particularly nice Christmas tree and that everybody seems to be pleased with Santa Claus we hasten on to describe these evening dresses because Christmases come and go, but these gowns are this year's and no other's. Poly's evening dress has a jabot frill of the white chiffon of which the dress is made from the neck to the hem—in back! Adelaide's frock is bouffant, sheer velvet in lipstick red with splashy poppies of silver for trimming. Eleanor's robe de style is flesh pink tulle trimmed with pink rosebuds and silver lace. The skirt droops in back to her heels.

Aunt Sophia's dress is silver lame with gold lame trimming of leaves, applique. Mitzi's gown is of white velvet with an extremely wide girdle of silver lace. A row of silver lace flowers slides from her shoulder to her waist and drops from there to the hem of her dress—and that hem is close to her high heeled slippers. And now, if Adelaide will finish handing out the presents, and if someone will collect the Goofer and the other young men from the other room (someone gave the Goofer a toy train, and that's keeping them busy), the party will put on its evening wraps and make things very cheerful and very busy for a really good dance orchestra—and so, far into the night!

PRICES OF BONDS SHOW TENDENCY TO EASE OFF

DOMESTIC GROUP IS DULL

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Easing tendencies were present in today's bond market, as many traders went about lowering their commitments until after the holiday. Although there have been some expectations that a hardening of time money rates might follow the new year, there was no widespread move to liquidate bonds, and recessions were limited to small fractions in most instances. The week's new offerings were expected to run well over $200,000,000, sufficient to afford considerable competition to the listed market.

Italian bonds, which started upward sharply following the stabilization of the lira, continued firm today, but buying was in smaller volume, and there was some realizing toward the close of the session. Governmental 7s were the most active, advancing to their previous year's high before reacting to around yesterday's close.

Reports that representatives of the Mexican government were on their way to New York to confer with the international bankers committee on Mexican economic affairs resulted in heaviness in some of the bonds of that republic. Losses of 1 to nearly 2 points were recorded by some of the issues which had spurted ahead after the appointment of Dwight W. Morrow as American Ambassador.

Domestic liens were dull and easy with the exception of few semispeculative issues with convertible features. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s reached 250 for the first time, a jump of 8 points, and Liquid Carbonic 6s were up nearly 3 points to a new peak. Anaconda copper 6s and 7s were accumulated in moderately large amounts, but other copper mortgages inclined to heaviness.

United States Government obligations were in supply and changed hands in comparatively small volume.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—The New York Cotton Exchange and all other commodity markets will be closed tomorrow until Tuesday for a three-day Christmas holiday. Governors of the New York Stock Exchange refused a petition of members to close tomorrow, so the usual two-hour Saturday session will be held. The New York Curb Market will do likewise. Both will be closed on Monday.

Kennnecott Copper Corporation, which now owns about 97½ per cent of the outstanding stock of Utah Copper Co., has renewed its offer of 1¾ shares of Kennecott for one share of Utah Copper on the same terms originally made. This offer is open to January 20.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange are circulating a petition requesting the president and board of managers of the exchange to authorize a vote on changes in the by-laws permitting delivery of cotton on contract in Southern ports.

Stockholders of F. & W. Grand 5-10-25 Cent Stores voted to authorize $6,000,000 cumulative preferred stock, $100 par, of which $2,500,000 at 6½ per cent soon will be issued. The balance will be 6 per cent common. Common stock also was increased from 130,000 shares to 400,000 shares, no par, and 260,000 shares of the new common will be issued on the basis of two shares for each old share. Directors were increased from seven to nine with the addition of B. A. Kindberg, vice president, and Norton Stone, assistant treasurer.

Auburn Automobile Co. is shipping 100 cars daily and December shipments will reach 1,400 cars, says E. L. Cord, president. December shipments, he asserted, would exceed the total for the entire fourth quarter of 1926.

The structural steel market is quieter, awards in the last week being $18,000 tons, against 36,000 tons the week before and 15,000 tons a year ago. Inquiries were out for 39,000 tons, against 61,000 tons the week preceding.

Otis Elevator Co. will have about $50,000,000 business on its books at the close of the year. Sales are running at a record rate here and abroad. Plants are close to capacity. Earnings for 1927 are expected to be another record, with net available for the common stock around $12 a share. A 25 per cent stock dividend was paid last February.

Sales of copper abroad have increased, amounting last Thursday to more than 5,500,000 pounds. Good foreign buying is expected to continue after Christmas.

Rubber authorities in New York say the reduction from 3 to 2 cents a pound in the export duty on rubber announced by the Malay States federal council, effective January 1, will have no effect on crude rubber prices. The opinion was that rubber growers would absorb the reduction in duty and benefit accordingly.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad has given orders for 90 miscellaneous freight cars to the Mount Vernon Car & Manufacturing Co. The road recently placed orders for 1,250, cars with Pressed Steel Car Co.

Ethelbert I. Low and Edgar H. Boles have been elected directors of Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Co., succeeding the late F. L. Hine and L. B. Smith, resigned.

W. M. Flock, chairman of American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation, has been elected its president.

The new tire factory of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. at Wolverhampton, England, is in operation. The company expects to be producing its full capacity of 2,000 tires and 2,000 tubes daily soon after the first of the year.

A Fink & Sons, Newark, N. J., meat packers, declared an initial dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock and the regular semiannual of $3.50 a share on the prior preference stock, both payable January 3 to holders of record December 22.

The New York Curb Market entertained an immense throng of children who depend chiefly on charity for their welfare, at a Christmas party on the floor of the exchange after the close of trading today. E. H. Whiting, one of the committee in charge of arrangements, took the role of Santa Claus which he has filled for years. Toys, candy and useful articles were distributed to the happy youngsters from two large Christmas trees set up on the trading floor.

Another sale of a seat on the Rubber Exchange of New York at $6,000 was made today. An extra membership of Lewis D. Haabin going to John L. Handy for the account of another.

The New York Ontario & Western had a deficit of $82,956 for November after charges, but surplus of $106,906 for eleven months against $870,577 a year ago.

COPYRIGHT, 1927 BY RALPH F. COUCH WASHINGTON D.C.

Approximately $47,794,000 worth of petroleum, gas and gasoline has been received by the United States Government in the form of royalties from the leasing of public lands during the last seven years, according to an announcement by George Otis Smith, of the United States Geological Survey. Whether or not the Government was able to sell the products or to utilize them in such a manner as to derive that amount of revenue is not explained in the announcement.

During the fiscal year 1927, 25,648,101 barrels of petroleum were produced on public lands and of this the Government received 3,562,125 barrels as a royalty.

In the seven-year period from 1921 to 1927, inclusive, 173,694,932 barrels of oil were produced and the Government received 29,877,906 barrels.

The lands worked under the royalty system with which the announcement deals are located in California, Colorado, Louisiana, Montana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah, and Wyoming.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED.

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Amoskeag Co., declared a dividend of $4 a share on the common stock, the first distribution authorized on that issue since August, 1924. Payment will be made January 3, to holders of record December 23. The regular semiannual dividend of $2.25 a share on the preferred also was declared.

Corn Products Refining Co. declared an extra dividend of 75 cents on the common stock and the regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents on the common and 1¾ per cent on the preferred. The common dividends are payable January 20, to stock of record December 31, and the preferred on January 14, to holders of record Dcmbr 31.

$137,236,200 IN NOTES AND BONDS TO BE PAID

January Maturities Will Swell Funds Awaiting New Investment.

LIGHT DAY ON EXCHANGE

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Bonds and notes to be paid in January will add to the large total seeking reinvestment, the total of bonds and notes of corporations and foreign governments to be paid during the month soaring to $137,236,200, according to the Dow, Jones & Co. compilation for January.

Corporate maturities will aggregate $131,337,200, compared with $51,586,560 in December and $141,818,820 in January a year ago. Added to this are foreign government issues totaling $5,899,-000, which mature in January, making the total maturities for next month $137,236,200 as against $141,913,820 in January, 1927.

Railroad issues falling due next month total $37,222,490. The largest maturity is Pennsylvania Railroad $3,894,000 equipment trust 6s, falling due on January 15. Public utility maturities amount to $57,173,820, the largest item being $30,000,000 4½s of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co.

Industrial securities maturing in January contribute only a small part of the huge total to be distributed, industrial corporations contributing only $36,940,890, while foreign government bonds maturing next month total $5,899,000.

Price Changes Negligible.

Yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange, the last until Tuesday, fell well behind the day before in volume of turnover but price changes were negligible.

Trading was about evenly divided between stocks and bonds, Washington Gas Light issues leading on the bond side, while Federal-American Co. common headed the list on the stock side.

Washington Gas Light 6s, series A, sold at 106 for the $100, the series B at 107 for the $100 and 107⅛ for $1,000. Washington Railway & Electric 4s started unchanged at 92, eased to 91¾ on sale of $2,500, and advanced to 92½ on closing sale of $500. Potomac Electric Power first 5s sold at 101⅛.

Federal-American Co. common sold to the extent of 100 shares, in two lots, at 37½. District National Bank sold in an odd lot at 245. Lanston Monotype held firm and two lots moved at $110. National Mortgage & Investment preferred, which has fluctuated fractionally throughout the year, the high being 8⅝ and the low 5, sold in a 100-share lot at 5⅛ and advanced to 1¼ on the next and only other sale of 40 shares. The statement issued by the company yesterday bearing on the passing of the dividend due in January had a favorable effect on the price tone of the issue.

There will be no session of the local exchange today, but all local board rooms with membership in the New York Stock Exchange will remain open as usual, as the New York Exchange will be open for the half day.

2 Per Cent Extra Declared.

Directors of the National Capital Bank yesterday declared the regular semiannual dividend of 5 per cent and an extra dividend of 2 per cent, payable on December 31.

Cities Service Co.'s net earnings for November amounting to $2,760,958 were larger than in any November in the history of the company. Net to common stock and reserves was $1,982,461, an increase of 37 per cent over last November and of 136 per cent over November, 1925, it was stated yesterday by R. W. Carter, Washington manager for Henry L. Doherty & Co.

Net earnings for the twelve months ended November 30, 1927, were the largest for any twelve months in the company's history. Net earnings of $31,821,-367 for this period exceeded by 35 per cent net earnings of $23,514,087 for the twelve months ended November 30, 1926.

These net earnings for the twelve months were equal to more than twelve times interest and discount on its debentures, as compared with 8.89 times for the corresponding period a year ago. Net to stock and reserves was 4.30 times preferred stock dividends, as against 3.42 last year. Net to common stock and reserves was $22,469,546, equivalent to 27.31 per cent on the average amount of common stock outstanding, or $5.46 per share of $20 par value common stock. This compares with $14,769,216 for the twelve months ended November 30, 1926, which was equivalent to 19.05 per cent, or $3.81 per share of common stock then outstanding.

8 Per Cent Wardman Dividend.

The regular dividend of 8 per cent per annum on the class A preferred stock of the Wardman Real Estate Investment Corporation will be paid on December 31 to stockholders of record December 29, directors having voted the dividend yesterday, while a dividend of $3 per share on the common stock payable at the same time was also declared.

The report of the president showed that the income for the year had been very satisfactory and that the surplus account had been increased in a substantial amount.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Harry Wardman, president; Thomas P. Bones, vice president; James D. Hobbs, treasurer; Henry J. Robb, secretary, and Daniel Thew Wright, counsel.

3 Per Cent by Columbia Bank.

Directors of the Columbia National Bank have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent payable December 31. The board also voted the regular Christmas bonus of $25 to members of the staff and in addition a bonus of 6 per cent on the annual salary.

Husbanding Its Resources.

The minds of stockholders of the National Mortgage & Investment Co., which had been somewhat disturbed by the failure of the board of directors to vote the regular semiannual dividend on the preferred stock of the company at the meeting last week, were set at rest yesterday with the receipt of a letter from Frank J. Hughes, president, explaining the reasons for the failure of the board to vote the usual distribution, and many of the stockholders approached yesterday seemed in hearty accord with the action taken.

The notice to stockholders says in part: "Owing to the present depressed condition of the market for real estate securities, the payment on January 1, 1928, of the regular semiannual dividend of 4 per cent on the preferred stock, by resolution of the board of directors, has been deferred until there is an improvement in the real estate market.

"This action is taken," says the letter, "to protect the best interests of the stockholders by conserving its assets, and to avoid the sacrifices of properties of our clients who have been unable promptly to meet their obligations to us owing to the present depression."

The statement of condition report as of October 31, 1927, forwarded the stockholders with the letter shows the company to have total resources of $5,575,327.63.

More Trade With Poland.

Direct trade from the United States to Poland increased by more than 40 per cent during the first eight months of this year as compared with the corresponding period in 1926, amounting to $25,000,000 as against $17,700,000. Imports of all sorts into Poland for the third quarter of this year were valued at $44,000,000, while exports aggregated $39,600,000, leaving an adverse balance of approximately $4,400,000.

Mortgage Bonds Called In.

Dillon, Read & Co., as fiscal agents for the Great Consolidated Electric Power Co., Ltd., of Japan (Daido), announce that $250,000 principal amount of the company's first mortgage 7 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, Series "A," have been designated by lot for redemption on February 1, 1928, for the sinking fund. The bonds are payable at par and accrued interest.

Poole Returns from Baltimore.

Gone to Westchester. Home

Frank W. Stone, vice president of the National Savings & Trust Co., departed yesterday for the family home in Westchester County, N. Y., where he will pass the holidays.

MOVIE NEWS AND VIEWS

By NELSON B. BELL

Preparation for the annual commemoration of the most hallowed event in the history of humanity has ever occasioned a lull in the theater. The festival of Christmas, signalizing the season of the year's greatest joyousness and, at least for the moment, a surrender to the spirit of "peace on earth, good will toward men," preached by Him who wore the crown of thorns and bore the Cross up Calvary, fills the mind, the heart and the hands with concerns infinitely more important than any emanations from the tinkling cap and bells.

While, as Mr. Daly has pointed out, this week before Christmas has surprised the managers by its enthusiasms and attendance at the play and the cinema, tonight will mark the lowest ebb of the twelvemonth in patronage. Trees must be hung with the gaudy baubles that on the morrow will bring ecstacy to the youngster and no less warm a glow to the heart of his elder; those cryptic packages, boxes and bundles must be spirited from basement, bedroom and attic while Junior sleeps with one peeking eye open. All must be made ready for the coming of Santa.

But this ephemeral indifference to pleasures that lie beyond the hearthstone, the chimney and the toy-stuffed stockings, always is of fleetingly short duration. Not so short that tomorrow the purveyor of screen diversion need expect clamoring hordes casting pieces of silver at his box office before that cavernous maw has been opened to receive such eager tribute, but sufficiently brief to insure by midafternoon a greater number of amusement seekers, shopping in the generous spirit of the Yuletide for entertainment they like, than the seating capacity of all the motion picture theaters will be able to accommodate in this city, normally so vastly overseated.

Today's deficit will be amply balanced by tomorrow's books, and so it is that those who wander languorously to the wicket in the later hours of Christmas Day will be greeted by that once so familiar cry: "Seats in the rear of the balcony only, standing in orchestra and loge."

It is suggested purely as an afterthought that if there is any among you who long have lived a life of suffering resignation to inhibitions, repressed desires and others of the Freudian strictures upon mind and spirit and secretly have nurtured a consuming yen to toss pianos about the orchestra floors of our leading celluloid cathedrals, tonight offers the opportunity to indulge the playful whim with least likelihood of embarrassing remonstrance or serious casualty—unless possibly, to yourself.

There will, of course, be much seasonable music in the picture houses tomorrow. The spirit of the day will be emphasized by elaborate marque decorations outside all the theaters and will be further stressed by brilliantly lighted trees and other happy devices on many of the stages. All of which will serve to inspire both conductors and men.

In addition to the other musical interludes, in which the new policy's inaugural will abound, the Earle will offer Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" as the concert overture to be played by the augmented symphony transplanted from the Metropolitan, with Daniel Breeskin still happily wielding the baton.

The regular program at the Fox will embrace, as did this week's, much to engage the interest of those who delight in the "concord of sweet sound." The sympothony concert, which will precede the intial performance of the Christmas bill during the hour from 2 to 3, will permit those whose Christmas celebrations occupy scarce more than half the day to enjoy the following program:

1. Fantasie, "Around the Christmas Tree," Kornspan
2. (a) "Music Box" .... Friml
   (b) "Valse Poupee" .... Poldini
3. Mr. Domenico Iascone, solo flute, Fox Symphony.
   (a) "Menuetto" from "Arlesienne Suite, No. 11" .... Bizet
   (b) "Two Little Bullfinches," piccolo duet .... Kling
   (Messrs. Iascone and Evans.)
4. "Ave Maria" .... Bach-Gounod
5. Muriel La France, soprano: "Ah, Fors e Lui," from "La Traviata," Verdi
6. (a) "The Ride of the Valkyries" .. Wagner
   (b) "Minuet" .... Mozart
   (c) "Adeste Fidelis" .... Christmas carol

What is one to believe, if one is either young or gullible or both?

On this morning's mail, along with a gorgeous parchment Christmas greeting about the size of a Rand McNally atlas from her, came word that Billie Dove has nearly finished "costuming" her next big stellar film, "The Heart of a Follies Girl," about to be launched. In the second full No. 5 U. S. mail pouch, received on the same delivery, was an item to the effect that for a week Miss Dove has been confined to her bed on a liquid diet by an unwise wisdom tooth that refuses to be extracted otherwise than a little at a time.

Being neither gullible nor both, we prefer the one about the costumes, which goes on to state that this time Miss Dove has broken all her personal records in number, variety, magnificence and expense of her gowns, a majority of which she designed herself—a hobby which might easily be turned into a profession, if need be.

This has nothing to do with the movies for the excessively good reason that they don't move, but this column today is a very tough assignment since it is being written just as the hour approaches for a resumption of the intermittent warfare being waged between the District Building electricians and the birds that have made a rookery of that handsome white marble edifice.

Our office windows—two, one for each eye—command a complete survey of the embattled territory, and the first skirmish was obviously an overwhelming victory for the starlings. It seemed to be the ornithological opinion that the spotlights supposed to frighten them away represented only a kindly governmental impulse to help them out with a little electric heat over the Christmas cold snap—if any.

The strategy of the officials, however, will infallibly prevail in the end. It is palpably the battle plan to accustom the birds to the warmth of the battery of "heaters," then shift them unexpectedly to the Southern Railway Building, next door, where, naturally, the little feathered darlings will follow. Extermination then will be simple. The Southern can set them to studying time tables!

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—Big arrivals of corn today, together with weather conditions likely to facilitate the movement of the crop, did much to pull down corn values today. Liquidating sales on the part of holders of corn led also to weakness of other grain.

Closing quotations on corn were heavy, 1¾ to 2⅝ cents net lower. Wheat finished ¾@⅞c to 1⅜c off, oats ½c to 1¼@1⅜c down, and provisions varying from 7 to 10 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

In addition to the corn market pressure which resulted from numerous owners of corn future delivery contracts becoming pessimistic about profits, many sales were automatically brought into operation by standing orders to stop corn losses at various fixed limits, offerings were noticeably increased after the posting of figures which showed that primary receipts of corn today totaled 1,674,000 bushels compared with 1,292,000 bushels a week ago and with 1,063,000 bushels on the corresponding day last year

Expectation of a larger run of corn to the principal markets next week and selling of 100,000 bushels into store here today tended further to pull values down. Final quotations were at about the day's lowest level, but considerable notice was being taken of the fact that some corn export business had resulted from the break in prices. Cash corn in the sample market here was easier, with the trading basis steady to 2 cents lower. The basis at the Gulf of Mexico was off ½c. Export bids were reported as fairly strong at Kansas City. The Government pig survey, indicating 11 per cent more fall pigs than last year, was virtually ignored for at least the time being.

Wheat and oats declined owing largely to the unsettled effect of corn weakness. General demand for wheat was apathetic, and export call for wheat from North America appeared to be virtually at a standstill, despite advices telling of decreasing stocks at Liverpool.

Provisions averaged lower.

Hollywood Stars

Special to The Washington Post.

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 23.—Claire Windsor added a new and successful one to Hollywood's stock of speeding excuses today, and it saved her $15, a suspended traffic court fine, by impressing Judge D. S. Valentine. Claire told His Honor she was making 38 miles an hour because "I was so impressed with lurid details of the Parker girl crime that my subconscious self stepped on the gas." Judge Valentine told Claire to keep her subconscious self from running away with her in the future.

The duplex motion picture starring contract made its bow today when Conrad Nagel signed a concurrent long term contract with two companies, Warner Brothers and M-G-M. The two firms will share his services for two years, and each covers part of Nagel's weekly pay check. He now is working in "Tenderloin," with Helen Costello, under Michael Curtis' direction at Warner's.

MRS. GRAYSON FLYING FOR HARBOR GRACE

ness was falling when the ship came down the runway, gathering speed and lifting her heavy load after about two-fifths of a mile.

Oskar Omdal, the pilot; Brice Goldsborough, who accompanied Mrs. Grayson on a futile attempt to fly across the ocean in October, and Fred Koehler, motor expert, were aboard the plane with Mrs. Grayson.

Ship Weighs 10,000 Pounds.

Just before the take-off Mrs. Grayson said that she had taken aboard 500 gallons of gasoline and that the ship weighed 10,000 pounds. She said she was convinced that the winter transatlantic flight was feasible and believed that the greatest hazard, that of ice forming on the wings, had been eliminated by having coated the wings with glycerine. This, it is thought, will prevent condensation and freezing of fog on the ship.

Once the plane gathered headway after taking the air it disappeared quickly in the thickening darkness. Omdal said he would steer a compass course to Harbor Grace and he expected to reach there by 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Once there, Mrs. Grayson said, they will take off at any time, or as soon as weather conditions are favorable. Goldsborough, at the radio, will send out a call to coastwise ships for weather conditions along the way, he said. The radio call letters of the ship are WMU, and its wireless sends on a wave length of 630 meters.

Expect Intense Cold.

The fliers knew they were heading into intense cold in Newfoundland, and were prepared to strike a temperature of 10 degrees below zero near Harbor Grace. They wore only the usual flying suits and there is no way of heating the plane. It will be only slightly warmer in the cockpit than outside.

The proposed course of the Dawn should take the ship through central Connecticut, passing near Hartford, and diagonally across Massachusetts, between Worcester and Boston. Skirting the southern tip of Maine, the plane will fly over Portland a little to the east, passing over Old Orchard, scene of the takeoff of October's unsuccessful flight.

Beacon to Guide Fliers

Harbor Grace, N. F., Dec. 23—(A.P.)—A powerful beacon has been erected on Target Hill close to the airport here to guide Mrs. Grayson in her plane, The Dawn, in the event of thick weather when she arrives here. She has sent word that she expects to reach Harbor Grace soon after sunrise tomorrow.

The landing field is in excellent condition. The ground is frozen to a depth of three inches, making a hard, even surface. There is no snow in this part of Newfoundland. The lakes are frozen, but the harbor is open and there is no ice along the coast.

A light northwest wind and fair weather prevailed today with the temperature above freezing. A shift to west winds with a little lower temperature is forecast for tomorrow.

Fred Koehler, who is coming here with Mrs. Grayson, is familiar with the region, having passed two months here last summer in the interests of the plane, Pride of Detroit.

Canoe Wins Race With Indian Kayak

New York, Dec. 23 (A.P.).—A canoe has it all over an Eskimo kayak, in the Hudson River at least. Because there was doubt about it—there isn't now—there was a race. Two Eskimos, who are working for a store, propelled two kayaks. It took the faster of them 25 minutes to cross the Hudson. Ernest Redel paddled the canoe across in 15 minutes without hurrying.

CHRISTMAS NEARS WITH ONLY $9,541 IN CHARITIES FUND

Twelve Opportunities Are Held Open and $5,530 More Is Badly Needed.

"BILLY," IN NO. 6, PICKED OUT AS LUCKY PROTEGE

The Christmas opportunity fund of the Associated Charities, which needs $15,080, to provide home care for a group of fourteen families consisting of 79 individuals, throughout the new year, now is within $5,538.80 of its goal. The total received up to last night according to reports given out at the Social Service House, 1022 Eleventh street northwest, was $9,541.20.

Many letters of commendation and interest are being received with the contributions. One annual contributor writes concerning this year's list: "They are each one so appealing I can not choose my subjects, but I do ask that the devoted father in No. 7 be given at least a part of what I am sending. How I do wish I could give to each one a substantial sum." One opportunity giver singles out Billy, in No. 6, who is about to enter a kindergarten, as her special choice for a Christmas remembrance.

A previous contribution of $30 for Opportunity 7, 11 and 13 credited to the National Alliance of Postal Employees should have been credited to the Woman's Auxiliary of the Alliance through Mrs. Madeline C. Beckwith. Among other organizations whose contributions are acknowledged herewith are, Tuesday Evening Club of Social Workers, Metropolitan B. Y. P. U., Saturday Evening Pleasure Club, Principal and Teachers Margaret Murray Washington Vocational School.

Headquarters Remain Open.

The headquarters of the Associated Charities, 1022 11th Street, N. W., will be open today until 5 o'clock. Contributions received up to the time of closing will be acknowledged in the Sunday papers. Checks may be made payable to the Associated Charities or to John B. Larner, Treasurer.

ZONE CHANGE HEARING IS ORDERED JANUARY 4

GARAGE LIMIT PROPOSED

Another revision of the zoning code will be considered at a public hearing of the zoning commission in the District building January 4. Several sections of the regulations will be posted for amendment to make more effective recent basic amendments. In addition to these the commission will consider, including churches, schools and passenger stations as permitted in addition to detached residences, in residential restricted area and specifically eliminating hospitals, sanitaria, lodging houses and public garages from the recently created semirestricted residential areas.

There also will be half a dozen proposals for reclassification of property to be canvassed. The following property, hitherto unzoned, will be considered:

Extend to Aspen street the residential district between Sixteenth street and Georgia avenue northwest; extend to Aspen street and parallel to Georgia avenue the C area district and the 60-foot height district now west of Georgia avenue; extend to Aspen street with straight boundary lines the A area district and the 40-foot height district now on both sides of Fourteenth street; extend to Aspen street the A restricted area district and the 40-foot height district now between the hereinbefore mentioned C and A area districts; extend to Aspen street the A restricted area district and the 40-foot height district now between the hereinbefore mentioned A district and Sixteenth street.

Residential restricted area is proposed for rezoning as semirestricted area to permit construction of semi-detached dwellings as follows:

Several squares in the area bounded by Tuckerman, Underwood and Fourteenth streets northwest and Georgia avenue, owned by the Wardman Construction Co., and fifteen lots in the vicinity of Jenifer street, Military road and Nevada and Connecticut avenues northwest.

It is proposed to change from residential to commercial zoning 1309 Seventeenth street northwest, 3614 and 3616 Georgia avenue northwest and 787 Fairmont street northwest.

NEW LIGHT SYSTEM INITIATED DOWNTOWN

New street lamps designed to give the downtown section of the city improved lighting facilities received their initial try-out last night when current was turned on for the lamps on Fourteenth street northwest, from the District Building to Thomas Circle.

The new lamps are mounted on posts which are almost twice as hig' as the posts formerly in use, and are of the type known as the General Electric Co. luminous arc lamps. On the double sockets the lamps are of 3,000 candle-power, with a power of 1,100 watts.

The new lighting system has not been completed as yet, but officials of the Potomac Electric Power Co. said last night that they hoped to have the new lamps installed on all of the downtown streets before New Year's.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed.

Oldest Marine Ends 32 Years of Service

John W. Armstrong, oldest member of the Marine Corps, retired yesterday, after 32 years service, having served as messenger, clerk, and assistant librarian at Marine Corps headquarters since 1895. During his service the corps grew from 7,000 to 18,000 men.

He carried corps executive orders in both the Spanish-American and World Wars, and during the past few years has been assisting in preparation of an official history of the corps. He will engage in farming in New York State.

Thief Uses Hooks To Steal Fur Coats

Unable to force entrance to the store of William Rosendorf, at 1215 G street northwest, early yesterday morning, a fur thief wielding a grappling hook dragged three fur coats through a second-floor window and made his escape with the loot, valued at $960.

The loss was discovered by employes on opening the store. They found the window raised. Footprints on the roof of a shed in the rear gave evidence how the robbery occurred. Detectives found fingerprints on the window ledge.

REGULATIONS DRAWN TO GOVERN TAX SALES

Parcels Will Be Offered as in the Order They Appear on Advertisements.

TO START ON JANUARY 10

Regulations to govern the tax sale next month, at which the District will recover taxes in arrears on much of the property of delinquent taxpayers, were adopted yesterday by the District Commissioners on recommendation of C. M Towers, collector of taxes.

Parcels of property will be sold in the order in which they were named in advertisements of the sale. No bids will be received prior to the day of the sale of each parcel. Parcels in squares 1 to 600 will be disposed of January 10; squares 601 to 1450, January 11; squares 1451 to 2862, January 12; squares 2863 to 4192, January 13; squares, 4193 to 5206, January 14; squares 5207 to 5725, January 17, and the remainder January 18.

Permission was granted the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to erect and maintain wooden loading platforms on the west side of Eleventh street northwest just north of F and G streets, respectively.

The commissioners confirmed an order by Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, suspending Private Fred W. Steele, pending hearing before the police trial board on a charge of unwarranted use of his revolver.

CIVIC FEDERATION FAVORS 60-40 PLAN

Commissioners Are Urged to Give Vigorous Support to Proposed Ratio.

The Federation of Civic Associations which met last night in the board room at the District building went on record in favor of the adoption of the 60-40 plan of local taxation.

A letter was directed to be sent to the District Commissioners urging them to give vigorous support to this plan. The federation went on record also, following discussion, in favor of universal suffrage for the District of Columbia, and in opposition to passage of proposed blue laws.

The board of trade investigation of the police trial board was commended through a resolution introduced by Huver I. Brown, as for the best interests of the citizens of the District. Brown's report which served as a basis for the resolution indicated an "understanding between the trial board and the police department to discourage civilians from bringing charges before the board."

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS RESULT IN PROTEST

Delegation Calls on Kellogg to Air Indignation Over Roumanian Outbreaks.

A protest against recent anti-Jewish outbreaks in Roumania was presented to Secretary of State Kellogg yesterday by a deputation from the Committee on the Rights of Religious Minorities.

The delegation included the Rev. R. C. McGowan, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, and Gustav Hartman, of the Independent Order of B'rith Abraham.

The committee called on the State Department to renew its inquiry made some months ago to the American Minister at Bucharest, not only as a protest against any measures of governmental or administrative tolerance of recognized student riots, but in regret over the hurt done to friendly relations between the countries, members of the delegation said after the conference.

GYPSY KING IS REFUSED WRIT TO GET PRINCESS

DEPARTS WITH HUSBAND

Princess Julia Mitchell Osborn, daughter of King Emil Mitchell, of the Mitchell tribe of gypsies and wife of William L. Osborn, 2222 Shannon place southeast, was freed from the invisible bonds of restraint yesterday by Chief Justice McCoy in Circuit Court in a contest between the king and his son-in-law over the custody of the princess.

Calling the 15-year-old daughter of gypsy royalty to the bar of the court, the chief justice said to her, "You can go where you please. You are freed of whatever illegal restraint exists."

The princess departed from the courtroom followed by her husband. The king and the other members of the royal family remained seated while the princess and her husband walked out.

No restraint of a nature cognizable by the court existed, despite the protests of the king that his daughter was being detained by Osborn illegally. The girl is alleged to be under age, but she is the wife of Osborn and no court has yet acted upon the petition of the king to annul the marriage. The king attempted to have the Equity Court turn his daughter over to him, but he was unable to serve Osborn with a rule to show cause why the girl should not be surrendered.

It was apparent from the demeanor of the girl that she intends to stick to Osborn as she was walking by his side before they left the courthouse. Her father engaged in a long argument with her before court convened, but apparently he made no impression on her except to start her crying. Attorneys Whelan and O'Connell appeared for Osborn and protested against the court turning the girl over to her father on a writ of habeas corpus. The writ was quashed.

"Lefty, Pencil Man," Dead, Victim of Gas

J. C. Wallace, 45 years old, known as "Lefty, the Pencil Man," to thousands of F street pedestrians, died at his room at the Salvation Army, 119 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, from the effects of gas poisoning early yesterday morning. Wallace was for years a familiar figure selling pencils along the thoroughfare.

Responding to an emergency call, the Fire Department rescue squad attempted to revive the gas victim, who still showed signs of life. Emergency Hospital physicians pronounced him dead when he failed to respond to the oxygen. Acting Coroner Joseph D. Rogers was notified. Wallace had no relatives in this city, police reported.

Commission Declines To Reroute Bus Line

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday denied a request of Harold E. Warner, principal of the Hine Junior High School at Seventh and C streets southeast, that the motorbuses of the Washington Railway & Electric Co.'s Randle Highlands-Eastern High School line be routed by the school in the morning and afternoon for the accommodation of its pupils.

Mr. Warner said that a canvas showed that at least 30 pupils would use the bus consistently and that the number would be increased to 90 in inclement weather. The commission took the position, however, that the existing rail and motorbus service in the vicinity of the school is adequate.
